D. C. Quotas Of Services Are Filled for 18-Year-Olds

Armed Forces Enlist 120 Youths Allowed in First Recruiting Period

District recruiters filled their immediate quotas of one-year enlistments yesterday from the continued line-up of 18-year-olds eager to sidestep the draft.

By midafternoon, Army, Navy and Marine Corps recruiting stations had filled Washington's total quota of 120 for the first recruiting period.

The Navy has begun a waiting list, but in any case no more Navy or Marine recruits can be sworn in for the one-year hitch before August 21. The Army and Air Force are closed for these enlistments until August 1, but will take applicants numbering up to 146 to cover the period ending August 31.

Changes in Act Possible

With a national limit of 161,000 on the number of one-year enlistments, the Nation's estimated 1,200,000 youths of 18 had a ray of hope from Capitol Hill yesterday that the door might be opened wider. Staff aides of Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said he had asked Secretary of Defense Forrestal for a report on possible changes in the draft act.

By signing up for one year now, an 18-year-old avoids the draft call when he turns 19. Registration of youths 18 to 25 will begin August 30 and end September 18. Actual induction of 19 to 25-year-olds will start about October 1, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey said, who again is national Selective Service director.

Marine Enlistments High

The stimulus to recruiting in general in recent months was pointed up last night in an announcement from the Marine Corps. Enlistments have been so high in that branch that the Marines will need no draftees in 1949. More than 4000 volunteers have signed up thus far this month, it was reported. The Marine Corps quota is 36,000 plus 6000 18-year-olds under the one-year plan.

Draft machinery in the District, meanwhile, was in motion under Attorney William E. Leahy, who headed local selective service during the war. Frank D. Norton, in charge of District selective service records, said details of the draft setup here may be announced today.

Hershey yesterday reported appointments of nine more State directors, bringing the total thus far to 29. Named yesterday for Virginia was Col. Mills F. Neal of Richmond. The Maryland director is Col. Henry C. Stanwood of Baltimore.

Three B-29s Are Off on World Flight

Three B-29s from the Air Force base at Tucson, Ariz., have taken off on a round-world flight, the United States Air Force announced last night.

They refueled at MacDill base, Tampa, Fla., and at 5:33 p. m. headed out to sea.

This will be the first globe-circling flight for B-29s.

The Air Force planned such a project more than a year ago, but the proposal was turned down by the State Department at that time. There were reports that this country did not want to arouse Russia then by any display of U. S. air power.

Yesterday's announcement said the flight now under way has the "concurrence of the State Department."

The announcement described the flight—which will go eastward by way of the Azores, Africa, Asia, Japan and Alaska—as a "routine long distance training" operation.

The same language has been used recently to describe missions of B-29s going to England and Germany.

Continued Independence

Meyer Transfers Post Voting Stock to Grahams; Committee To Act on Any Future Change

EUGENE MEYER, Chairman of the Board of The Washington Post, announced yesterday completion of a plan to insure the continued operation of The Post as an independent newspaper dedicated to the public welfare.

Voting stock of The Washington Post Company, under this plan, has been transferred to Mr. and Mrs. Philip L. Graham, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. Meyer, and a committee of five has been named to approve any future changes of control.

Nonvoting stock continues to be held by Eugene Meyer and Agnes E. Meyer.

Members of the committee are:

1. Chester I. Barnard, President of The Rockefeller Foundation.
2. James B. Conant, President of Harvard University.
3. Colgate W. Darden, jr., President of the University of Virginia.
4. Bolitha J. Laws, Chief Justice, District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.
5. Mrs. Millicent C. McIntosh, Dean of Barnard College.

MR. MEYER STATED: "Mr. Graham has been associated with me in publishing The Washington Post since his release from the Army at the beginning of 1946, and for the past two years he nas been in direct charge of its affairs as publisher. Mrs. Graham has worked in various departments of the paper over the last 10 years. I am confident that under their control the paper will adhere to its principles of independence and public service.

"It is the joint concern of Mr. and Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Meyer and myself that The Washington Post shall always serve those principles. The committee has been established so that any control of The Post subsequent to that of Mr. and Mrs. Graham will also be determined by loyalty to the same ideals. It is our purpose that the control of The Post shall be treated as a public trust, and that it shall never be transferred to the highest bidder without regard to other considerations.

"When I acquired The Washington Post after experience in business and long Government service, I was aware of the power and responsibility of a newspaper. This awareness has been sharpened by the daily work of running a newspaper. To survive, a newspaper must be a commercial success. At the same time, a newspaper has a relation to the public interest which is different from that of other commercial enterprises. This is more than ever apparent in these days when our free institutions are under their severest trial and closest scrutiny.

"The citizens of a free country have to depend on a free press for the information necessary to the intelligent discharge of their duties of citizenship. That is why the Constitution gives newspapers express protection from Government interference. The authors of the Bill of Rights considered any Government interference with the press incompatible with American ideas of freedom and liberty. It is also possible for the public interest to be defeated by the way a newspaper is conducted since the principal restraint upon a newspaper owner is his self-restraint. I am confident that the appointment of this committee will assure The Post a management conscious of its public responsibility."

THE COMMITTEE has been established under newly amended articles of incorporation of The Washington Post Company, a Delaware corporation. The amended articles, filed this week, provide that the object of the Company is to publish The Washington Post "as an independent newspaper dedicated to the welfare of the community and the Nation, in keeping with the principles of a free press."

The articles further provide that voting shares of the Company shall only be transferred to persons who are considered by the committee to hold this view of the newspaper's function. The committee is given "absolute discretion" to approve or disapprove any persons to whom it is proposed to transfer voting shares. Committee members are appointed for life. In case of death or resignation of a member, a successor is to be appointed by the remaining members.

Mr. Meyer further stated: "The committee has no authority over or responsibility for the policies or operations of The Post. Mr. and Mrs. Graham will have full control so long as they own the voting stock which I hope will be for a long time. This should insure the maintenance of those principles which have been developed by myself and my associates over the past 15 years.

"The sole duty of the present committee members or their successors is to provide a disinterested group for approving any subsequent owners of voting shares of The Post. In selecting the committee, I attempted to give representation to the national and local communities because of the dual responsibility of a newspaper in the Nation's Capital. Whenever the present committee members or their successors may be called upon to approve a new owner of voting shares of The Post, I am sure they will particularly seek the advice of members of The Post's staff as well as that of other competent newspapermen.

"I wish to express my gratitude to the distinguished members of the committee for undertaking as a public service this effort to safeguard the ideals of responsible journalism."

Zoned 'Industrial'

Gas Company Offers to Sell 6.5-Acre Tract for 3 Million

By Conrad P. Harness
Post Reporter

ONE of downtown Washington's largest undeveloped plots, a valuable 6½-acre tract in the Northwest Triangle at Virginia ave. and Rock Creek Parkway, has been quietly listed for sale for three million dollars by the Washington Gas Light Co., it was disclosed yesterday.

The tract's present zoning of "industrial" would permit erection of luxury type apartments and stores. A sales brochure distributed by the gas company to a few "picked" brokers showed one conception of use: Eight-story apartment building along the outer fringe of the plot abutting New Hampshire and Virginia aves., the balance being developed with five-story buildings between the taller apartments and Rock Creek-Potomac Parkway. A shopping center was suggested for the corner of Virginia ave. and Rock Creek Parkway.

Col. Gustave Ring, head of one of Washington's biggest building firms, said he was interested in the plot, had inspected it, but that the price was "too high."

The tract is located within easy walking distance of many Government buildings, is within one-third mile of the Pennsylvania ave. shopping areas, and overlooks the Potomac River.

In addition, it adjoins property south of F street which has been acquired as a building site for the Navy Department.

The property has been used as a manufacturing plant by the utilities firm up until May, 1947. Conversion to natural gas made the plant surplus to its needs, a Washington Gas Light Co. official said.

A check of several District brokers revealed that the asking price of three million dollars would find few takers. However, a gas company spokesman said the firm was "open to offers."

A rumor that realtor Morris Cafritz had purchased the property and would erect luxury type apartments on it proved groundless when Cafritz said he had not submitted a bid.

The property was listed for sale in "its entirety," with indications that piecemeal offers would be rejected. Acceptance of any offer is subject to the approval of the board of directors of the Washington Gas Light Co.

The brochure added: "The company is of the opinion that a purchaser of the entire tract might, upon application to the District Commissoners, be granted the use of certain streets traversing the property or even get such streets closed and deeded to him as reasonable cost, thus adding materially to the value of the property.

U. N. Thrown In Turmoil By 'Bomb'

War Veteran Drops Small Explosive From Tiny Plane To Show Disgust

New York, July 22 (U.P.).—The pilot of a tiny Piper Cub dropped a small explosive today over the headquarters building of the United Nations at Lake Success and threw the world peace organization into turmoil.

Police tonight sought the pilot, a World War II B-17 gunner, who reportedly was disgusted at the apparent ineffectiveness of the U. N. and feared the United States was headed for another war.

Police believed the flier, Stephen Supina, flew the little plane 115 miles from Willimantic, Conn., to Long Island, zoomed over the sprawling plant which houses the U. N. and dropped the explosive. The "bomb" went off in the air, about 100 yards from the building. It caused no damage and no casualties.

Pilot Disappears

Then Supina flew from Lake Success to La Guardia Field. He told workers he wanted to refuel, borrowed 40 cents from a clerk in the operations office and disappeared.

A State-wide police alarm was sent out.

The explosion caused hundreds of the 3000 U. N. workers to stream out of the building, many of them believing an air raid was under way. Nassau County police rushed an emergency squad to the scene, the Civil Aeronautics Administration began an investigation and the big Air Force base at nearby Mitchell Field was notified.

Supina's brother, Thomas, said in Willimantic that Stephen had been very depressed in recent weeks about the Berlin crisis, the U. N. and the need for something to jolt them into action.

Saw Many Buddies Die

"He had been through a war and seen many of his buddies die," Supina said. "He shot down two planes over Europe and once he and the captain flew a bomber back from Germany after the rest of the crew had bailed out. He didn't want to go through another war and he kept saying that somebody ought to 'blast' the United Nations into action."

Supina said his brother might have used a war souvenir "signal flare" to "wake up the U. N."

Detective Edward C. Horning of the Nassau County police, which investigated, said he believed the explosive was a "mail-drop torpedo," used as a warning by planes which are about to drop mail. They contain several pounds of black powder and are sometimes used as noisemakers.

Supina had been taking flying lessons at the Willimantic Airport from Ray Ives. He was certified as a student pilot but did not have permission to make cross-country flights.

Early this afternoon Ives fueled up his Piper Cub. Supina took off about 1:30 p. m., presumably to cruise around the field. Ives said Supina had been very depressed about the current crisis and often had said that something must be done.

At 3:25 p. m., almost exactly the time required to fly from Willimantic to Lake Success, a little red-and-yellow plane came in low over the big factory which the U. N. shares with the Sperry Gyroscope Co. It barely missed the short-wave radio aerial on the roof

Lands at La Guardia

There was an explosion that could be heard for a mile. Then the little plane disappeared. Startled guards recalled that the plane's identification number started out "NC36—" and that the plane bore a red X-shaped mark.

Sixteen minutes later, a Piper Cub came down at busy La Guardia Field, which permits landings only by radio-equipped planes. The Cub had no radio. Officials inspected the plane and found Supina's and Ives' names and several maps. On one of them "X" marks had been made over Lake Success. The pilot had borrowed 40 cents in the operations office and had disappeared.

Rationing Plea Hinted By Truman

Message to Ask Price Curbs, Touch On Civil Rights, He Indicates

President Truman indicated yesterday that his Tuesday message to Congress will include recommendations for rationing as well as price controls for certain products, and will discuss civil rights.

Efforts to get specific details on various domestic subjects to which the message may refer were blocked, however. Tthe message will be the best evidence, Mr. Truman told his news conference, adding that it will speak for itself.

One reporter asked what agency would handle price controls and rationing. That will be set out in the message, Mr. Truman answered. To a question about civil rights, he said he hoped to mention such legislation, but again said that the message would be the best evidence.

Authoritative sources had previously revealed that Mr. Truman would ask for controls on meat and some other items.

When Congress gets Mr. Truman's message about high prices it will have evidence close at hand of the rising cost of living. When the House restaurant reopened yesterday for the extra session, the price of its plate luncheon—the day's special—was quoted at 75 cents. It used to be 65 cents. The increase is about 15 per cent.

President Truman's call for Congress was a political move that got the support of one of his close friends, Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.) yesterday. Of course politics entered into it, Hatch said, but that was no reason the lawmakers should confine the session to electioneering.

"In fairness, it should also be added that no more politics entered into the call than controlled the premature adjournment with much vital legislation left uncompleted," Hatch added.

"If Congress meets in the proper spirit to finish its uncompleted work there is no reason why the session should consist of merely political bickering."

On the Republican side, the call was criticized by Senator Arthur V. Watkins (R., Utah). But Watkins added:

"I don't want to see the Republicans descend to the same level and just play politics. There are a number of bills on which we could act."

Watkins called standby rationing and price controls "unrealistic." "We could not even get the machinery in motion before election," he said.

Mr. Truman's conference yesterday covered a lot of subjects—usually answered with no comment, or with the questioner referred to next week's message. Among the subjects were:

1. That Mr. Truman won't do any campaign traveling during the session.

2. The President had no comment on recent criticism of his extra session call by Herbert Brownell, jr., campaign manager for Gov. Thomas A. Dewey, Republican presidential candidate.

Reasons Set Out Carefully

3. When asked his reasons for calling the extra session, Mr. Truman said he had set them out very carefully in Philadelphia.

4. He declined to comment on whether he would ask for the TVA steam plant again.

5. All sorts of Democrats will figure in Mr. Truman's campaign plans. Mr. Truman confirmed a statement by Democratic Chairman J. Howard McGrath that party leaders will confer with him from time to time at the White House. Some of these, he thinks, will be Southern Democrats.

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 22.—A blunt charge that Henry Wallace's new party is the Communist-dominated instrument of Soviet policy exploded in the new party's platform committee today and set old New Dealers at each other's throats.

The charge, aimed by James Loeb, jr., national secretary of the Americans for Democratic Action, brought a bitter retort from platform chairman Rexford Guy Tugwell, who served under Wallace in the early New Deal.

Tugwell called it an "unscrupulous and demagogic denunciation worthy of the cheapest politicians" and said it was "insincere, hypocritical and immaterial." He asked if the ADA is about to "retreat to Dewey."

Repercussions continued into the night as Loeb, whose ADA group of former New Dealers long since denounced communism, called a press conference to renew the charge.

Loeb said he was "shocked" that Tugwell dismissed him from the stand before the chairman's attack on ADA. He said no member of the committee would "discuss the issues."

"Their failure to do so confirms our belief that the so-called hearings of the platform committee have been a sham and that the third party is irrevocably committed to the course set by the

Truman Calls Chances For Peace Excellent; Confers With Gen. Clay

National Security Council Meeting Implies No 'Crisis,' White House Says

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

President Truman and his National Security Council, which he heads, heard first-hand yesterday about the "siege" of Berlin from the American commander in Germany, Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

Two hours before the talk the President told his news conference he considered the chances for world peace excellent.

The council, created by the Armed Forces Unification Act, is made up of Secretary of State Marshall, Defense Secretary Forrestal, and Secretaries Royall (Army), Sullivan (Navy) and Symington (Air).

Mr. Truman had told his weekly news conference that he thought the chances of world peace are just as good as they have ever been. Then he added that he was sure we will get world peace eventually.

Agrees With Marshall

In fact, the President repeated that assurance several times. He once declared that he was in full agreement with Secretary of State Marshall. Marshall told newsmen Wednesday that this country was giving no thought to the use of force in its dealings with Russia. Instead, Marshall said, it planned to exhaust every peaceful resource of negotiation and diplomacy before it would give consideration to more forceful methods.

The President also definitely stated that his message to Congress Tuesday will not discuss the tense situation in Berlin.

The White House Security Council session lasted an hour and a half. Mr. Truman remained for an hour of it, his secretary, Charles G. Ross, told reporters.

When asked if the conference foreshadowed a change of policy in Berlin, Ross replied:

The meeting foreshadowed nothing. No conclusions can be drawn from it. The council simply listened to General Clay. General Clay is going to hold a press conference tomorrow."

When the meeting broke up, Clay declined to discuss it, except that it was devoted to his report on the German situation. Clay, who arrived Wednesday night, is flying back to Germany tonight.

Silent on Future

Clay refused to comment on whether he had received any "guidance" as to further policy in Germany. He also declined to answer a question as to whether the conference might lead to any change in policy in Germany.

When reporters reminded Clay that more than a year ago he had said he would like to retire from active duty soon, he replied, "Obviously that is now out of the question."

The answer was taken as a repudiation of reports in the German Communist press that Clay was "recalled" to be "rebuked for his mistakes" in Germany.

Observers speculated on whether Clay's report would be made the basis for a later report by President Truman to Congress. It seems certain, however, that his opinions will be given consideration by Secretary Marshall and other State Department officials in preparing with Britain and France the new note expected to be sent to Moscow within a few days.

Under consideration, it is believed, is a suggestion by the British. This suggestion is that the note leave the way open for re-

Sokolovsky Says Reds Will Lift Traffic Bars If U. S. Will

By John B. McDermott

Berlin, July 22.—Marshal Vasily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet commander in chief in Germany, said tonight Russia is blockading Berlin because the United States made Russians get special permits to visit the United States occupation zone.

Sokolovsky called Russia's action a "reciprocal" measure to counter American regulations, and said Russia would lift the blockade if the Americans would open their zone to Russian traffic.

"When you have a guest at your table for dinner you do not expect him to walk off with the legs of your dinner table," Sokolovsky said.

"When I have a guest at my table I do not expect that of him either.

"For three years we permitted Americans free access (over the international railroad and superhighway) through our zone to Berlin.

"But in June the Americans ordered that all Russians going to the United States zone would have to have 'propusk' (visas).

"So we reciprocated."

It was the first time the Russian commander in chief had spoken directly about the German problem to a Western Allied correspondent. The interview took place at a supper party at the headquarters of the Polish mission here. Maj. Gen. J. Prawin, chief of the Polish mission, invited most of the diplomatic corps and military representatives to the party in celebration of Poland's national holiday.

Action Taken Reluctantly

Germans Consent to Form Trizonal Regime in West

Ruedeshiem, Germany, July 22 (AP).—German politicians reluctantly consented today to "take full responsibility" for setting up a new trizonal administration in western Germany.

With this action, the Germans appear to have paved the way for agreement with the allied military governors on a plan for uniting the American, British and French occupation zones under one German rule.

The allies offered the setup to the Germans more than a month ago. But the Germans, fearful of being accused of splitting their country, hedged at setting up any new administration which would not include the Russian zone.

A weak German counterproposal was rejected by the allied military governors last Tuesday, however. So the Germans met here in a Rhine River castle to redraft their plans.

Today's agreement came after two days of debate by the ministers-presidents of all 11 states in the three west zones.

The communique the presidents issued was still a cautiously worded document. They still avoided calling the new creation a government, or its basic law a constitution.

But the communique did say: "The Ministers-Presidents decided to take full responsibility for a new order of the German situation."

According to Germans who attended the meeting, the Presidents

Robertson Plans to Vote For Truman

Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) said yesterday he will vote for President Truman and will have no part of the Dixiecrat Party formed by rebellious Southerners.

But he repudiated Mr. Truman's stand on civil rights and the Democratic platform plan calling for repeal for the Taft-Hartley labor law.

As a precedent for his stand he cited the course followed by the late Senator Carter Glass of Virginia in the 1896 campaign.

Robertson is a candidate for reelection.

Robertson, as a member of the Virginia delegation to the recent Democratic Convention at Philadelphia, joined with other Southerners in voting for Senator Russell of Georgia instead of Mr. Truman as the presidential nominee. However, he later supported Senator Barkley of Kentucky for the vice presidential spot.

6 New Polio Cases Reported, Bringing Season Total to 24

Six more poliomyelitis cases were reported in Greater Washington yesterday, bringing the season's total to 24.

Two cases involved Washington residents while the other four were from Alexandria, Fairfax County and Berwyn, Md. Resident total to date is 10 and nonresident, 14.

Although these 24 cases were three times the number of resident and nonresident cases reported last year at the same time, Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health officer, declared the situation here "is not abnormal." Last July 22 there were three resident cases and five nonresident cases reported.

The physician scoffed at theories recently expressed that public swimming pools may be a breeding ground for the disease.

"There is no scientific proof brought to support the theory," Dr. Ruhland asserted. "Investigation of swimming pools by competent persons fail to show any connection with the disease."

Meanwhile, Dr. Charles Armstrong, chief of the division of infectious diseases at the National Institute of Health, left for North Carolina, where 47 new cases of the crippling ailment were reported yesterday.

A total of 830 victims have been listed in that State his year, with 413 reported for this month, 290 for June and 73 for May. Dr. Armstrong will confer with State officials on methods of fighting the disease.

With the three new Virginia cases reported yesterday the total for the State climbed to 59.

The two new District cases reported yesterday were:

A 16-month-old girl of the 1400 block of Morris rd. se., admitted to Gallinger Hospital Wednesday.

Nonresident cases reported yesterday were:

New Vote Taken By Newfoundland On Form of Rule

St. John's, Newfoundland, July 22 (AP).—Residents of this British colony voted today on whether they want union with Canada or self-government.

Some advocates of self-government also stand for economic union with the United States.

In a referendum last June 3, voters were given a third choice—retention of the present government by the seven-man commission which has run the country since 1934. Commission advocates got only 22,300 votes, compared with 69,400 for responsible government, and 64,000 for union with Canada.

That vote was a stalemate, since no one got the 51 per cent required for victory. Hence, a run-off was held today.

D. C. Quotas Of Services Are Filled for 18-Year-Olds

District recruiters filled their immediate quotas of one-year enlistments yesterday from the continued line-up of 18-year-olds eager to sidestep the draft.

By midafternoon, Army, Navy and Marine Corps recruiting stations had filled Washington's total quota of 120 for the first recruiting period.

Staff aides of Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said he had asked Secretary of Defense Forrestal for a report on possible changes in the draft act.

Actual induction of 19 to 25-year-olds will start about October 1, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey said, who again is national Selective Service director.

Marine Enlistments High

The stimulus to recruiting in general in recent months was pointed up last night in an announcement from the Marine Corps. Enlistments have been so high in that branch that the Marines will need no draftees in 1949. More than 4000 volunteers have signed up thus far this month, it was reported. The Marine Corps quota is 36,000 plus 6000 18-year-olds under the one-year plan.

Draft machinery in the District, meanwhile, was in motion under Attorney William E. Leahy, who headed local selective service during the war. Frank D. Norton, in charge of District selective service records, said details of the draft setup here may be announced today.

Hershey yesterday reported appointments of nine more State directors, bringing the total thus far to 29. Named yesterday for Virginia was Col. Mills F. Neal of Richmond. The Maryland director is Col. Henry C. Stanwood of Baltimore.

Three B-29s Are Off on World Flight

Three B-29s from the Air Force base at Tucson, Ariz., have taken off on a round-world flight, the United States Air Force announced last night.

They refueled at MacDill base, Tampa, Fla., and at 5:33 p. m. headed out to sea.

This will be the first globe-circling flight for B-29s.

The Air Force planned such a project more than a year ago, but the proposal was turned down by the State Department at that time. There were reports that this country did not want to arouse Russia then by any display of U. S. air power.

Yesterday's announcement said the flight now under way has the "concurrence of the State Department."

The announcement described the flight—which will go eastward by way of the Azores, Africa, Asia, Japan and Alaska—as a "routine long distance training" operation.

The same language has been used recently to describe missions of B-29s going to England and Germany.

Meyer Transfers Post Voting Stock to Grahams; Committee To Act on Any Future Change

EUGENE MEYER, Chairman of the Board of The Washington Post, announced yesterday completion of a plan to insure the continued operation of The Post as an independent newspaper dedicated to the public welfare.

Voting stock of The Washington Post Company, under this plan, has been transferred to Mr. and Mrs. Philip L. Graham, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. Meyer, and a committee of five has been named to approve any future changes of control.

Nonvoting stock continues to be held by Eugene Meyer and Agnes E. Meyer.

Members of the committee are:

1. Chester I. Barnard, President of The Rockefeller Foundation.
2. James B. Conant, President of Harvard University.
3. Colgate W. Darden, jr., President of the University of Virginia.
4. Bolitha J. Laws, Chief Justice, District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.
5. Mrs. Millicent C. McIntosh, Dean of Barnard College.

MR. MEYER STATED: "Mr. Graham has been associated with me in publishing The Washington Post since his release from the Army at the beginning of 1946, and for the past two years he has been in direct charge of its affairs as publisher. Mrs. Graham has worked in various departments of the paper over the last 10 years. I am confident that under their control the paper will adhere to its principles of independence and public service.

"It is the joint concern of Mr. and Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Meyer and myself that The Washington Post shall always serve those principles. The committee has been established so that any control of The Post subsequent to that of Mr. and Mrs. Graham will also be determined by loyalty to the same ideals. It is our purpose that the control of The Post shall be treated as a public trust, and that it shall never be transferred to the highest bidder without regard to other considerations.

"When I acquired The Washington Post after experience in business and long Government service, I was aware of the power and responsibility of a newspaper. This awareness has been sharpened by the daily work of running a newspaper. To survive, a newspaper must be a commercial success. At the same time, a newspaper has a relation to the public interest which is different from that of other commercial enterprises. This is more than ever apparent in these days when our free institutions are under their severest trial and closest scrutiny.

"The citizens of a free country have to depend on a free press for the information necessary to the intelligent discharge of their duties of citizenship. That is why the Constitution gives newspapers express protection from Government interference. The authors of the Bill of Rights considered any Government interference with the press incompatible with American ideas of freedom and liberty. It is also possible for the public interest to be defeated by the way a newspaper is conducted since the principal restraint upon a newspaper owner is his self-restraint. I am confident that the appointment of this committee will assure The Post a management conscious of its public responsibility."

THE COMMITTEE has been established under newly amended articles of incorporation of The Washington Post Company, a Delaware corporation. The amended articles, filed this week, provide that the object of the Company is to publish The Washington Post "as an independent newspaper dedicated to the welfare of the community and the Nation, in keeping with the principles of a free press."

The articles further provide that voting shares of the Company shall only be transferred to persons who are considered by the committee to hold this view of the newspaper's function. The committee is given "absolute discretion" to approve or disapprove any persons to whom it is proposed to transfer voting shares. Committee members are appointed for life. In case of death or resignation of a member, a successor is to be appointed by the remaining members.

Mr. Meyer further stated: "The committee has no authority over or responsibility for the policies or operations of The Post. Mr. and Mrs. Graham will have full control so long as they own the voting stock which I hope will be for a long time. This should insure the maintenance of those principles which have been developed by myself and my associates over the past 15 years.

"The sole duty of the present committee members or their successors is to provide a disinterested group for approving any subsequent owners of voting shares of The Post. In selecting the committee, I attempted to give representation to the national and local communities because of the dual responsibility of a newspaper in the Nation's Capital. Whenever the present committee members or their successors may be called upon to approve a new owner of voting shares of The Post, I am sure they will particularly seek the advice of members of The Post's staff as well as that of other competent newspapermen.

"I wish to express my gratitude to the distinguished members of the committee for undertaking as a public service this effort to safeguard the ideals of responsible journalism."

Zoned 'Industrial'

Gas Company Offers to Sell 6.5-Acre Tract for 3 Million

Post Reporter

ONE of downtown Washington's largest undeveloped plots, a valuable 6½-acre tract in the Northwest Triangle at Virginia ave. and Rock Creek Parkway, has been quietly listed for sale for three million dollars by the Washington Gas Light Co., it was disclosed yesterday.

The tract's present zoning of "industrial" would permit erection of luxury type apartments and stores. A sales brochure distributed by the gas company to a few "picked" brokers showed one conception of use: Eight-story apartment building along the outer fringe of the plot abutting New Hampshire and Virginia aves., the balance being developed with five-story buildings between the taller apartments and Rock Creek-Potomac Parkway. A shopping center was suggested for the corner of Virginia ave. and Rock Creek Parkway.

Col. Gustave Ring, head of one of Washington's biggest building firms, said he was interested in the plot, had inspected it, but that the price was "too high."

The tract is located within easy walking distance of many Government buildings, is within one-third mile of the Pennsylvania ave. shopping areas, and overlooks the Potomac River.

In addition, it adjoins property south of F street which has been acquired as a building site for the Navy Department.

The property has been used as a manufacturing plant by the utilities firm up until May, 1947. Conversion to natural gas made the plant surplus to its needs, a Washington Gas Light Co. official said.

A check of several District brokers revealed that the asking price of three million dollars would find few takers. However, a gas company spokesman said the firm was "open to offers."

A rumor that realtor Morris Cafritz had purchased the property and would erect luxury type apartments on it proved groundless when Cafritz said he had not submitted a bid.

The property was listed for sale in "its entirety," with indications that piecemeal offers would be rejected. Acceptance of any offer is subject to the approval of the board of directors of the Washington Gas Light Co.

The brochure added: "The company is of the opinion that a purchaser of the entire tract might, upon application to the District Commissoners, be granted the use of certain streets traversing the property or even get such streets closed and deeded to him as reasonable cost, thus adding materially to the value of the property.

U. N. Thrown In Turmoil By 'Bomb'

War Veteran Drops Small Explosive From Tiny Plane To Show Disgust

New York, July 22 (U.P.).—The pilot of a tiny Piper Cub dropped a small explosive today over the headquarters building of the United Nations at Lake Success and threw the world peace organization into turmoil.

Police tonight sought the pilot, a World War II B-17 gunner, who reportedly was disgusted at the apparent ineffectiveness of the U. N. and feared the United States was headed for another war.

Police believed the flier, Stephen Supina, flew the little plane 115 miles from Willimantic, Conn., to Long Island, zoomed over the sprawling plant which houses the U. N. and dropped the explosive. The "bomb" went off in the air, about 100 yards from the building. It caused no damage and no casualties.

Pilot Disappears

Then Supina flew from Lake Success to La Guardia Field. He told workers he wanted to refuel, borrowed 40 cents from a clerk in the operations office and disappeared.

A State-wide police alarm was sent out.

The explosion caused hundreds of the 3000 U. N. workers to stream out of the building, many of them believing an air raid was under way. Nassau County police rushed an emergency squad to the scene, the Civil Aeronautics Administration began an investigation and the big Air Force base at nearby Mitchell Field was notified.

Supina's brother, Thomas, said in Willimantic that Stephen had been very depressed in recent weeks about the Berlin crisis, the U. N. and the need for something to jolt them into action.

Saw Many Buddies Die

"He had been through a war and seen many of his buddies die," Supina said. "He shot down two planes over Europe and once he and the captain flew a bomber back from Germany after the rest of the crew had bailed out. He didn't want to go through another war and he kept saying that somebody ought to 'blast' the United Nations into action."

Supina said his brother might have used a war souvenir "signal flare" to "wake up the U. N."

Detective Edward C. Horning of the Nassau County police, which investigated, said he believed the explosive was a "mail-drop torpedo," used as a warning by planes which are about to drop mail. They contain several pounds of black powder and are sometimes used as noisemakers.

Supina had been taking flying lessons at the Willimantic Airport from Ray Ives. He was certified as a student pilot but did not have permission to make cross-country flights.

Early this afternoon Ives fueled up his Piper Cub. Supina took off about 1:30 p. m., presumably to cruise around the field. Ives said Supina had been very depressed about the current crisis and often had said that something must be done.

At 3:25 p. m., almost exactly the time required to fly from Willimantic to Lake Success, a little red-and-yellow plane came in low over the big factory which the U. N. shares with the Sperry Gyroscope Co. It barely missed the short-wave radio aerial on the roof

There was an explosion that could be heard for a mile. Then the little plane disappeared. Startled guards recalled that the plane's identification number started out "NC36—" and that the plane bore a red X-shaped mark.

Sixteen minutes later, a Piper Cub came down at busy La Guardia Field, which permits landings only by radio-equipped planes. The Cub had no radio. Officials inspected the plane and found Supina's and Ives' names and several maps. On one of them "X" marks had been made over Lake Success. The pilot had borrowed 40 cents in the operations office and had disappeared.

Rationing Plea Hinted By Truman

Message to Ask Price Curbs, Touch On Civil Rights, He Indicates

President Truman indicated yesterday that his Tuesday message to Congress will include recommendations for rationing as well as price controls for certain products, and will discuss civil rights.

Efforts to get specific details on various domestic subjects to which the message may refer were blocked, however. Tthe message will be the best evidence, Mr. Truman told his news conference, adding that it will speak for itself.

One reporter asked what agency would handle price controls and rationing. That will be set out in the message, Mr. Truman answered. To a question about civil rights, he said he hoped to mention such legislation, but again said that the message would be the best evidence.

Authoritative sources had previously revealed that Mr. Truman would ask for controls on meat and some other items.

When Congress gets Mr. Truman's message about high prices it will have evidence close at hand of the rising cost of living. When the House restaurant reopened yesterday for the extra session, the price of its plate luncheon—the day's special—was quoted at 75 cents. It used to be 65 cents. The increase is about 15 per cent.

President Truman's call for Congress was a political move that got the support of one of his close friends, Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.) yesterday. Of course politics entered into it, Hatch said, but that was no reason the lawmakers should confine the session to electioneering.

"In fairness, it should also be added that no more politics entered into the call than controlled the premature adjournment with much vital legislation left uncompleted," Hatch added.

"If Congress meets in the proper spirit to finish its uncompleted work there is no reason why the session should consist of merely political bickering."

On the Republican side, the call was criticized by Senator Arthur V. Watkins (R., Utah). But Watkins added:

"I don't want to see the Republicans descend to the same level and just play politics. There are a number of bills on which we could act."

Watkins called standby rationing and price controls "unrealistic." "We could not even get the machinery in motion before election," he said.

Mr. Truman's conference yesterday covered a lot of subjects—usually answered with no comment, or with the questioner referred to next week's message. Among the subjects were:

1. That Mr. Truman won't do any campaign traveling during the session.

2. The President had no comment on recent criticism of his extra session call by Herbert Brownell, jr., campaign manager for Gov. Thomas A. Dewey, Republican presidential candidate.

Reasons Set Out Carefully

3. When asked his reasons for calling the extra session, Mr. Truman said he had set them out very carefully in Philadelphia.

4. He declined to comment on whether he would ask for the TVA steam plant again.

5. All sorts of Democrats will figure in Mr. Truman's campaign plans. Mr. Truman confirmed a statement by Democratic Chairman J. Howard McGrath that party leaders will confer with him from time to time at the White House. Some of these, he thinks, will be Southern Democrats.

ADA Charge of Communism Brings Wallace Party Clash

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 22.—A blunt charge that Henry Wallace's new party is the Communist-dominated instrument of Soviet policy exploded in the new party's platform committee today and set old New Dealers at each other's throats.

The charge, aimed by James Loeb, jr., national secretary of the Americans for Democratic Action, brought a bitter retort from platform chairman Rexford Guy Tugwell, who served under Wallace in the early New Deal.

Tugwell called it an "unscrupulous and demagogic denunciation worthy of the cheapest politicians" and said it was "insincere, hypocritical and immaterial." He asked if the ADA is about to "retreat to Dewey."

Repercussions continued into the night as Loeb, whose ADA group of former New Dealers long since denounced communism, called a press conference to renew the charge.

Loeb said he was "shocked" that Tugwell dismissed him from the stand before the chairman's attack on ADA. He said no member of the committee would "discuss the issues."

"Their failure to do so confirms our belief that the so-called hearings of the platform committee have been a sham and that the third party is irrevocably committed to the course set by the

Sokolovsky Says Reds Will Lift Traffic Bars If U. S. Will

Berlin, July 22.—Marshal Vasily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet commander in chief in Germany, said tonight Russia is blockading Berlin because the United States made Russians get special permits to visit the United States occupation zone.

Sokolovsky called Russia's action a "reciprocal" measure to counter American regulations, and said Russia would lift the blockade if the Americans would open their zone to Russian traffic.

"When you have a guest at your table for dinner you do not expect him to walk off with the legs of your dinner table," Sokolovsky said.

"When I have a guest at my table I do not expect that of him either.

"For three years we permitted Americans free access (over the international railroad and superhighway) through our zone to Berlin.

"But in June the Americans ordered that all Russians going to the United States zone would have to have 'propusk' (visas).

"So we reciprocated."

It was the first time the Russian commander in chief had spoken directly about the German problem to a Western Allied correspondent. The interview took place at a supper party at the headquarters of the Polish mission here. Maj. Gen. J. Prawin, chief of the Polish mission, invited most of the diplomatic corps and military representatives to the party in celebration of Poland's national holiday.

Action Taken Reluctantly

Germans Consent to Form Trizonal Regime in West

Ruedeshiem, Germany, July 22 (AP).—German politicians reluctantly consented today to "take full responsibility" for setting up a new trizonal administration in western Germany.

With this action, the Germans appear to have paved the way for agreement with the allied military governors on a plan for uniting the American, British and French occupation zones under one German rule.

The allies offered the setup to the Germans more than a month ago. But the Germans, fearful of being accused of splitting their country, hedged at setting up any new administration which would not include the Russian zone.

A weak German counterproposal was rejected by the allied military governors last Tuesday, however. So the Germans met here in a Rhine River castle to redraft their plans.

Today's agreement came after two days of debate by the ministers-presidents of all 11 states in the three west zones.

The communique the presidents issued was still a cautiously worded document. They still avoided calling the new creation a government, or its basic law a constitution.

But the communique did say: "The Ministers-Presidents decided to take full responsibility for a new order of the German situation."

According to Germans who attended the meeting, the Presidents

Robertson Plans to Vote For Truman

Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) said yesterday he will vote for President Truman and will have no part of the Dixiecrat Party formed by rebellious Southerners.

But he repudiated Mr. Truman's stand on civil rights and the Democratic platform plan calling for repeal for the Taft-Hartley labor law.

As a precedent for his stand he cited the course followed by the late Senator Carter Glass of Virginia in the 1896 campaign.

Robertson is a candidate for reelection.

Robertson, as a member of the Virginia delegation to the recent Democratic Convention at Philadelphia, joined with other Southerners in voting for Senator Russell of Georgia instead of Mr. Truman as the presidential nominee. However, he later supported Senator Barkley of Kentucky for the vice presidential spot.

6 New Polio Cases Reported, Bringing Season Total to 24

Six more poliomyelitis cases were reported in Greater Washington yesterday, bringing the season's total to 24.

Two cases involved Washington residents while the other four were from Alexandria, Fairfax County and Berwyn, Md. Resident total to date is 10 and nonresident, 14.

Although these 24 cases were three times the number of resident and nonresident cases reported last year at the same time, Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health officer, declared the situation here "is not abnormal." Last July 22 there were three resident cases and five nonresident cases reported.

The physician scoffed at theories recently expressed that public swimming pools may be a breeding ground for the disease.

"There is no scientific proof brought to support the theory," Dr. Ruhland asserted. "Investigation of swimming pools by competent persons fail to show any connection with the disease."

Meanwhile, Dr. Charles Armstrong, chief of the division of infectious diseases at the National Institute of Health, left for North Carolina, where 47 new cases of the crippling ailment were reported yesterday.

A total of 830 victims have been listed in that State his year, with 413 reported for this month, 290 for June and 73 for May. Dr. Armstrong will confer with State officials on methods of fighting the disease.

With the three new Virginia cases reported yesterday the total for the State climbed to 59.

The two new District cases reported yesterday were:

A 16-month-old girl of the 1400 block of Morris rd. se., admitted to Gallinger Hospital Wednesday.

Nonresident cases reported yesterday were:

A 15-month-old boy from Lunn Loring, Fairfax County, admitted to Children's Hospital yesterday.

A 6-year-old boy of Lincolnia, Fairfax County, also admitted to Children's Hospital yesterday.

National Security Council Meeting Implies No 'Crisis,' White House Says

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

President Truman and his National Security Council, which he heads, heard first-hand yesterday about the "siege" of Berlin from the American commander in Germany, Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

Two hours before the talk the President told his news conference he considered the chances for world peace excellent.

The council, created by the Armed Forces Unification Act, is made up of Secretary of State Marshall, Defense Secretary Forrestal, and Secretaries Royall (Army), Sullivan (Navy) and Symington (Air).

Mr. Truman had told his weekly news conference that he thought the chances of world peace are just as good as they have ever been. Then he added that he was sure we will get world peace eventually.

Agrees With Marshall

In fact, the President repeated that assurance several times. He once declared that he was in full agreement with Secretary of State Marshall. Marshall told newsmen Wednesday that this country was giving no thought to the use of force in its dealings with Russia. Instead, Marshall said, it planned to exhaust every peaceful resource of negotiation and diplomacy before it would give consideration to more forceful methods.

The President also definitely stated that his message to Congress Tuesday will not discuss the tense situation in Berlin.

The White House Security Council session lasted an hour and a half. Mr. Truman remained for an hour of it, his secretary, Charles G. Ross, told reporters.

When asked if the conference foreshadowed a change of policy in Berlin, Ross replied:

The meeting foreshadowed nothing. No conclusions can be drawn from it. The council simply listened to General Clay. General Clay is going to hold a press conference tomorrow."

When the meeting broke up, Clay declined to discuss it, except that it was devoted to his report on the German situation. Clay, who arrived Wednesday night, is flying back to Germany tonight.

Silent on Future

Clay refused to comment on whether he had received any "guidance" as to further policy in Germany. He also declined to answer a question as to whether the conference might lead to any change in policy in Germany.

When reporters reminded Clay that more than a year ago he had said he would like to retire from active duty soon, he replied, "Obviously that is now out of the question."

The answer was taken as a repudiation of reports in the German Communist press that Clay was "recalled" to be "rebuked for his mistakes" in Germany.

Observers speculated on whether Clay's report would be made the basis for a later report by President Truman to Congress. It seems certain, however, that his opinions will be given consideration by Secretary Marshall and other State Department officials in preparing with Britain and France the new note expected to be sent to Moscow within a few days.

Under consideration, it is believed, is a suggestion by the British. This suggestion is that the note leave the way open for re-

New Vote Taken By Newfoundland On Form of Rule

St. John's, Newfoundland, July 22 (AP).—Residents of this British colony voted today on whether they want union with Canada or self-government.

Some advocates of self-government also stand for economic union with the United States.

In a referendum last June 3, voters were given a third choice—retention of the present government by the seven-man commission which has run the country since 1934. Commission advocates got only 22,300 votes, compared with 69,400 for responsible government, and 64,000 for union with Canada.

That vote was a stalemate, since no one got the 51 per cent required for victory. Hence, a run-off was held today.

Key Figures In Plans for Washington Post's Future

Eugene Meyer, who took steps this week to make sure that The Washington Post always will be operated as an independent newspaper, entered the newspaper business in June, 1933.

He launched his journalistic career at the age of 57, after successful careers in private business and in Government.

A firm belief in the public responsibility of newspapers has distinguished his conduct of The Washington Post. Soon after he became the owner of the newspaper, he put his journalistic creed into words. In a five-point profession of faith he declared:

1. The first function of The Washington Post is to inform.

2. A newspaper must serve as the conscience of its community.

3. The opinions of The Washington Post must appear on its editorial page, not in its news columns.

4. The primary interest of a newspaper must be the welfare of the immediate community which supports it.

5. The Washington Post is a public institution. Its duty is to its readers, and not to the private interests of its owners.

Dollar-a-Year Adviser

Mr. Meyer

In 1917, when the United States entered the war with Germany, Meyer was 41 years old, already a financial figure with a world-wide reputation. He liquidated his investment firm, Eugene Meyer, Jr., & Co., in New York, and came to Washington as a dollar-a-year adviser on nonferrous metals to the Advisory Board of the Council of National Defense. Subsequently he served on the staff of the War Industries Board, the National War Savings Committee, as special assistant to the Secretary of War and as managing director of the War Finance Corporation. His service in Government continued after the war. He reorganized the Federal Farm Loan Board, served as governor of the Federal Reserve Board, framed the legislation creating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and became its first chairman. He resigned from the Federal Reserve Board in 1933, completing 17 years of Government service.

It was his intention to retire to his Westchester County farm. After a week in retirement, he bought The Washington Post, and devoted the next 15 years to building it into a newspaper of national influence and reputation.

President Roosevelt, in 1941, appointed him to the National Defense Mediation Board.

First Head of World Bank

President Truman appointed him as the first president of the Bank for International Reconstruction and Development in June, 1946. He resigned as editor and publisher of The Washington Post to undertake the organization of the institution better known as the World Bank. When the task of organization was completed, he returned to The Post as chairman of the board.

As vice chairman of the Famine Emergency Committee in 1946, Meyer was instrumental in getting under way the national effort to relieve the acute food crisis in Europe.

During all the years of his ownership of The Washington Post Meyer continued active in many local and national civic affairs, contributing a large part of his time to these duties.

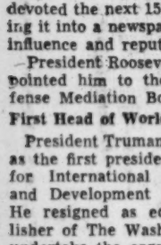
Philip L. Graham joined The Washington Post as associate publisher in 1946 upon his release from the Army Air Forces. He was appointed publisher in June of the same year when Eugene Meyer left the paper to become first president of the World Bank. Then 31, he was one of the youngest metropolitan newspaper publishers in the country.



Mr. Graham

Graham was born in 1915 in Terry, S. Dak., a western mining town where his father was employed as a mining engineer. In 1921 the family moved to Florida, where the senior Graham became manager of a sugar plantation in the Everglades, near Miami. The family now operates this property as a dairy farm.

After attending public schools of Miami and graduating from the University of Florida, Graham went to the Harvard Law School where he was president of the Harvard Law Review.

In 1939, he came to Washington as law clerk to Supreme Court Justice Stanley Reed, and the following year became law clerk to Justice Felix Frankfurter. In 1941-42 he was an attorney in the Office for Emergency Management and the Lend-Lease Administration.

Enlisted as Private

In the summer of 1942, he enlisted as a private in the Army Air Forces. He was later commissioned and served the last year of the war in the Southwest Pacific on the intelligence staff of the Far East Air Forces. He was discharged as a Major. During his military service, he received the Legion of Merit.

Active in the community life of Washington, Graham is a director of the District of Columbia Tuberculosis Association, the Community Chest Federation, the National Press Club Building Association and the American Security and Trust Co. He also is a director of the Advertising Council and a member of the Editors and Publishers Committee to Review the Nieman Fellowship for newspaper reporters at Harvard University.

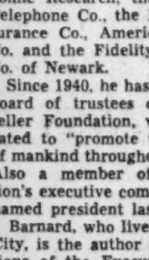
Since The Washington Post was acquired by Eugene Meyer in 1933, Agnes E. Meyer has been actively interested in its publication—and has contributed extensively to it.



Mrs. Meyer

Her wartime articles on social conditions in the United States and in England appeared in The Washington Post. They drew wide comment and were reprinted in other newspapers. They have provided the basis for her book, "Journey Through Chaos."

Mrs. Meyer has not been content with going into the byways to report social conditions as she saw them. She has also been a great advocate for measures of reform directed at the conditions she exposed.

As a civic leader, she has crusaded for increased Federal aid to education; she has actively advocated creation of a new Federal department to pull together the health, welfare, and education functions of the Federal Government. She is president of the Social Legislation Information Service which strives to keep workers in the social welfare fields informed of federal legislation concerning their activities.

Born in New York City on January 2, 1887, Mrs. Meyer graduated from Barnard College in 1907 and did postgraduate work at the Sorbonne in Paris in 1908 and 1909.

Before her marriage Mrs. Meyer entered newspaper work as a reporter on the New York Sun, continuing on the staff of that newspaper until 1908.

In addition to her reporting assignment on the Sun in 1907 and 1908, she has held these civic posts:

Chairman, Westchester County Recreation Commission, 1923-1941; appointed member, Library of Congress Trust Fund Board, 1929; trustee, Barnard College, 1933; chairman, Washington Committee of Child Welfare League of America; member, Board of Trustees of District Public Library, 1940-1946; third vice president and member executive committee of Washington Community Chest, 1942.

In July, 1946, she was appointed by President Truman to his Commission on Higher Education which made recommendations for dramatic expansion of American educational machinery.

The Meyers have one son and four daughters. Dr. Eugene Meyer III is with Johns Hopkins Hospital and is a director of The Washington Post Co. Mrs. Florence Homolka, Bel Air, Calif., is active in photography. Mrs. Elizabeth Lorentz of New York City is the wife of Pare Lorentz, noted documentary film maker who produced "The River," "The Plow That Broke the Plains" and who was in charge of world-wide air route movies for the American Transport Command as a lieutenant colonel during the war. Miss Ruth Meyer is a teacher at the Lenox Hill Nursery School in New York.

Katharine Meyer Graham, who with her husband now holds the voting stock of The Washington Post, was born in New York City in 1917.

Mrs. Graham

She attended Montessori, Potomac and Madeira Schools here and later studied at Vassar and the University of Chicago. She graduated from the University of Chicago in 1938.

Following college, Mrs. Graham worked as a reporter on the San Francisco News. The next year she returned to Washington and joined the editorial staff of The Washington Post. She continued on The Washington Post until 1945, working in the Sunday, circulation and editorial departments.

Since 1947 Mrs. Graham has written a Sunday column reviewing current periodicals under the title "The Magazine Rack." The feature also appears in the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Active in Washington affairs, Mrs. Graham was one of three residents of the community appointed last year by President Truman to serve on the District of Columbia Sesqui-Centennial Committee. She is on the board of the Children's Country Home and has been active in Community Chest work.

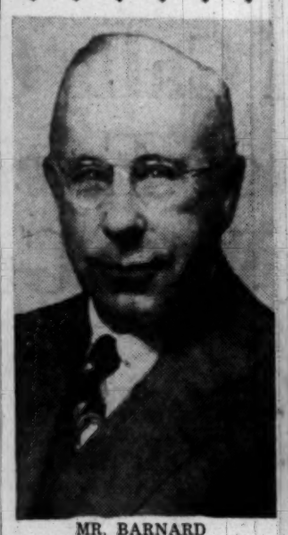
The Grahams have three children, Elizabeth Morris 5, Donald Edward 3, and William Welsh born last May.

Leaders From Science, Education, Foundation, Court Serve Public Interest on Washington Post Committee

The committee that in future years will be called upon to make sure that The Washington Post remains in the hands of those who will regard it as a public trust is drawn from the Nation's great institutions of learning, from a great foundation and from the law.

They represent a cross section of American intellectual leadership. They also are representative of the diverse responsibilities of a Washington newspaper—to its own community, to the region around it and to the nation.

Three of the five members of the committee were born in the area directly served by The Washington Post—one in the District of Columbia, one in Virginia and one in Maryland.



MR. BARNARD

Chester Irving Barnard, president of The Rockefeller Foundation, has had an intensely active career in the fields of business, civic and international affairs.

Former president of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co., he was a member of the State Department Consultants' Committee which produced the Acheson-Lilienthal report setting forth American policy on control of atomic energy.

He is a consultant to the American representative on the United Nations Atomic Energy Committee, and a recognized authority on executive management, with wide association in arts, science philosophic and civic groups.

During the last war, he was national president of United Service Organizations, Inc., and chairman of its executive committee. He holds the Presidential Medal of Merit for his services in this post, and the Navy's Meritorious Civilian Service Award and the Navy's Certificate of Appreciation for manpower survey aid in World War II.

Born at Malden, Mass., November 7, 1886, Barnard worked his way through Mount Hermon School, Northfield, Mass., and studied for three years at Harvard University.

He began his 39 years' service in the Bell Telephone System as a clerk with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. He became a recognized authority on telephone commercial practice and the economics of telephone rates, rising to the presidency of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. in 1927.

In 1931, Barnard organized and directed New Jersey's model Emergency Relief Administration.

He was a director of the United States Chamber of Commerce, 1931-34, served on special industrial survey committees appointed by the Secretary of Labor, and was vice president of the New Jersey Reformatory at Rahway, N. J.

Barnard was named head of the USO in 1942, when it had less than 700 units, and expanded it to almost 3000 units serving an estimated 30 million service personnel a month in the United States and overseas.

He holds honorary degrees from six universities, and is a director of the National Bureau of Economic Research, the New Jersey Telephone Co., the Prudential Insurance Co., American Insurance Co. and the Fidelity Union Trust Co. of Newark.

Since 1940, he has served on the board of trustees of the Rockefeller Foundation, which is dedicated to "promote the well-being of mankind throughout the world." Also a member of the foundation's executive committee, he was named president last March.

Barnard, who lives in New York City, is the author of "The Functions of the Executive," and numerous published addresses.

DR. CONANT

Dr. James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard University, is one of the Nation's foremost scientist-educators.

His scientific reputation spans two world wars and the peace period between wars. He is regarded as one of the leading liberalizing influences in university education.

He helped develop the atom bomb in World War II, and deadly Lewisite gas in World War I. He is one of the world's outstanding authorities on chlorophyll (the green coloring matter in plants); he has performed major research in cancer, and in hemoglobin (the coloring matter in blood). He helped streamline synthetic rubber development in World War II.

Dr. Conant is Harvard's 23d president, elected to that post in 1933.

He established at Harvard national scholarships for freshmen, designed to offset financial handicaps. He launched courses in general education to "humanize" learning, and strongly advocated a Federal Government scholarship fund as a future military asset.

A descendant of Plymouth Pilgrims, Conant was born in Dorchester, Mass., March 26, 1893, and finished two years of college chemistry and one year of college physics at Roxbury Latin School before he even entered Harvard in 1910.

Graduated from Harvard in three years with high honors, he helped develop Lewisite gas in World War I while serving as a major in the Chemical Warfare Service. He returned to Harvard after military service, as assistant professor of chemistry. When he became one of its youngest presidents, after serving as chairman of its department of chemistry, he was often mistaken for an undergraduate.

Long before World War II he was advocating scientific and military preparedness. He was appointed to the National Defense Research Committee in 1940, and organized work of the Chemical Division on Gas Warfare, Incendiaries and Explosives.

In June, the following year, he was named deputy director of the Office of Scientific Research and Development, headquarters for wartime scientific development which coordinated atom bomb development. He also served as chairman of the National Defense Research Committee.

A former president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and author of many technical books, Dr. Conant holds degrees from 33 universities, here and abroad.

He is married to the daughter of his former chemistry teacher, Nobel-prize winner Prof. Theodore W. Richards. They live in Cambridge, and have two children.

Ex-GOV. DARDEN

Colgate Whitehead Darden, jr., president of the University of Virginia, is a former Governor of Virginia, Congressman, lawyer, farmer, teacher, banker and one of the Old Dominion's favorite sons.

A member of the House of Representatives for nine years, he left the House to become Governor of Virginia in 1941, serving a term marked by advancements in aid to education, penal reform and public health.

Darden dropped a brilliant political career to become chancellor of the College of William and Mary in 1946, after personally halting a move to draft him for the Senate seat of the late Carter Glass. In June, 1947, he became president of the University of Virginia.

His appointment to the University of Virginia was a homecoming for Darden. Born in Southampton County, February 11, 1897, he left the University of Virginia at the age of 19 to join the French Army, and saw action in an ambulance unit.

He returned to the United States in 1917 to become a naval aviation cadet, and went overseas again as a Marine flight lieutenant. Two weeks before the armistice, a plane in which he was riding crashed, killing the pilot and breaking Darden's back.

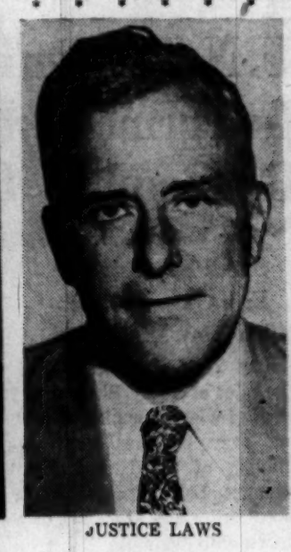
After a year's hospitalization, he returned to the University of Virginia and completed his schooling. He went on to earn an LL.B. degree at Columbia University and to study international law at Oxford.

Darden served successively as a teacher, lawyer, banker, farmer and member of the Virginia General Assembly before his election to the National House in 1929.

His service as a Congressman was marked by an interest in naval affairs. Later he served as vice chairman and then chairman of the Civilian Advisory Committee on Naval Affairs. In March, 1946, he was prominently mentioned as a candidate for Undersecretary of the Navy.

At his inauguration as president of the University of Virginia, Darden declared that life offered no greater opportunity than to be associated in "educating our young people."

Darden and his wife, the former Constance S. duPont of Wilmington, Del., have two sons and a daughter and live quietly at the university president's home on Carr's Hill in Charlottesville.



JUSTICE LAWS

Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia has a reputation as an outstanding leader in legal and civic affairs.

Often honored for civic achievement, the career of Justice Laws embraces the prosecution, defense and trial judge aspects of the courtroom. He has combined dignity on the bench with an unusual activity outside the court.

At the time of his appointment as Chief Justice of the District Court, Attorney General Francis J. Biddle noted that he was the first District native ever to achieve that post.

The son of an architect-artist, Justice Laws was born August 22, 1891. At the age of 16 he became sole support of his mother and sister. Despite this, after two years of prelegal night school sessions he entered Georgetown Law School, earning an LL.B. in 1913, and an LL.M. the next year. He served as editor of the Georgetown Law Journal.

His first job was as stenographer in the United States Attorney's office here. He was soon appointed an Assistant United States Attorney, gaining prominence as a criminal prosecutor during six years in office.

Later he served as a special assistant to the Attorney General, assistant general counsel to the Federal Shipping Board, and in 1922 entered private practice here.

He had reached the presidency of the District Bar Association when President Roosevelt appointed him to the District Court bench in 1938. There he demonstrated outstanding legal ability, gained establishment of the office of Domestic Relations Commissioner after observing other cities' methods of relieving jammed court calendars, and added laymen to his Committee on Improving the Administration of Justice to further reduce delays in disposing of court cases.

In 1943, he was also named to the United States Emergency Court of Appeals. In January, 1945, his nomination as Chief Justice of District Court was unanimously approved by the Senate.

Meantime, his wide interest in civic and church affairs brought awards and citations from such groups as the Society of Natives, the Washington Federation of Churches, the Council of Social Agencies, and the Cosmopolitan Club. Most recent of these achievements was his campaign for the sorely needed new courthouse for the District, recently authorized by Congress.

Gregarious father of four children, Justice Laws and Mrs. Laws live at 7 Oxford st., Chevy Chase.

DR. McINTOSH

Dr. Millicent Carey McIntosh, dean of Barnard College, has served as head of that prominent women's educational institution since July, 1947.

Barnard College is the women's undergraduate school of liberal arts and sciences of Columbia University. At Barnard, Dr. McIntosh was selected as the best equipped educator to succeed famed Virginia C. Gildersleeve, dean there for 35 years.

Fourth dean of Barnard, Dr. McIntosh is a strong advocate of a larger place under the sun for educated womanhood. She came to Barnard with wide experience as an educator at Bryn Mawr College and New York's Brearley School.

Native of Baltimore

Niece of the late Dr. M. Carey Thomas, distinguished president of Bryn Mawr, Dean McIntosh was born in Baltimore, November 30, 1898.

She was graduated from Bryn Mawr in 1920, and in 1926 received her Ph. D. from Johns Hopkins. She also studied at Newnham College, Cambridge, England, and has received honorary degrees from Smith College, New York University and Goucher College.

Dean McIntosh began her career as an educator at Rosemary Hall, Greenwich, Conn., where she served as an instructor from 1922 to 1923.

In 1926 she joined the staff of Bryn Mawr College as a member of the English department. Two years later, she was named freshman dean, and in 1929 her exceptional ability brought her appointment as acting dean of the college.

Holds Important Posts

She is a member of the education committee for school and college activities of the American Association for the United Nations, a sponsor of the American Cancer Society, and active in antiinfantile paralysis work. A trustee of Bryn Mawr College, Dr. McIntosh is also a member of the board of managers of the Bryn Mawr School.

She was married in 1932 to Dr. Rustin McIntosh, Carpentier Professor of Pediatrics at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, and Director of the Babies Hospital. Despite her extensive academic activities, Dean McIntosh has found time to raise five children, four sons and a daughter.

Woman Scared; Mob Organized

Chester, S. C., July 22 (AP).—Police Chief M. C. Chandler said today a Negro had been arrested for frightening a white woman—a report which caused an armed mob to organize quickly.

Chandler said he doubted that charges could be preferred against the suspect, whom he refused to identify.

He quoted the suspect as accosting the woman near Chester with the remark:

"Where do you think you're going?"

Farmers, textile workers and townsmen armed with pistols, shotguns and rifles spread through the thickets. Three hours afterward the group dispersed at the urging of Chandler. Officers took arms from several men.

U. S. Zone Entry For Reds Unlikely

By the United Press

A high Army Department official said here last night the United States could not give the Russians free entrance into the American zone of Germany in exchange for use of the railroad and highway into Berlin.

He was commenting on a United Press dispatch quoting Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet commander in Germany, as saying that Russia would lift its blockade of Berlin if the Americans open their zone to Russian traffic.

The official said the United States is entitled by international agreement to the use of the two routes.

Should the United States open its zone to the Russians, he said, then Americans would have to be given permission to enter the Soviet zone.

The official said Russians were free to come into the United States zone until the Soviets began tightening up on United States citizens entering the Russian zone.

The State Department declined immediate comment.

The interview was read to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander in Germany, by Undersecretary of the Army William H. Draper. Neither Clay nor Draper would comment officially.

The high Army official, as well as several members of Congress, thought the Soviet commander's statement's made "no sense," but believed they foreshadowed a "weakening" of the Soviet position.

No Complaint Before, Colonel Howley Says

Berlin, July 22 (U.P.) — Col. Frank L. Howley, American military governor in Berlin, said tonight the Soviets never had complained in the four-power Allied kommandatura about needing special permits to visit the United States occupation zone.

"But this question is on too high a level for me to comment," Howley said.

U. S. Blamed For Blockade

sian and English with a Polish representative interpreting.

First Sokolovsky denied flatly that there was any blockade around Berlin.

"There is no blockade," he insisted, with a broad smile. I explained that there really was, that the blockade prevented me from taking my car out of Berlin for a vacation and then returning.

Sokolovsky said that if I wanted a visa for my trip I would be given one. (Visits to 19 Russian officers by a New York Times correspondent had failed to produce anyone who knew how such a permit could be obtained.)

"Would the Soviets lift the blockade to American traffic if the Americans opened their zone to the Russians?" I asked.

"If you did that we would," Sokolovsky replied.

The conversation took place in a far corner of the room near one of the large tables covered with food.

I told Sokolovsky it was a pleasure to see him because it refuted reports that he had been recalled to Moscow and had not returned. "But why are there such reports?" Sokolovsky asked. "Here I am."

Tonight was the first time in several months he had attended an all-nations gathering or appeared in public.

"Do you think that because of the Berlin crisis—the blockade—there is danger of war between the Soviet Union and the United States?" I asked as a final question.

Before Sokolovsky could answer we were interrupted by Russian officers who had been trying for several minutes to present friends to him.

Berlin Blocks Russian Talks, Bevin Explains to Commons

London, July 22 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told the House of Commons it was "impossible" to open talks with Russia on German problems until the Berlin blockade is lifted.

Earlier he had placed a draft of the Western powers' projected second note to Moscow on the Berlin blockade before a full meeting of the cabinet.

The American and French Ambassadors, Lewis Douglas and Rene Massigli, met again with Sir William Strang of the Foreign Office. They have been collaborating in writing the Western powers' reply to the Soviet refusal to lift the blockade.

Bevin told the Commons "It is impossible for a self-respecting government to sit down and discuss these things when your troops are cut off from normal communications and 2,500,000 people (in western Berlin) are being used to put pressure upon you to come to a decision.

"If these technical difficulties are now removed, and we have free access to our troops and free access to the people we have undertaken to feed, then nothing can stop discussions at once," he continued.

To this, Prime Minister Clement Attlee added: "As soon as agreements and rights of the occupation forces are reestablished so that I shall not be meeting—or any other members of His Majesty's government meeting—under duress to discuss these things, I am open to discuss any matter the Soviet government decides."

newed talks with Russia on major German issues, provided the Berlin blockade is lifted permanently.

High American Government officials were reported last night as miffed at the British Foreign Office for "leaking" its suggestion on the new note. In some quarters it was regarded that the premature publicity given the plan in London was an effort to bring pressure on the United States to go along with the British suggestion.

Press Secretary Ross impressed upon newsmen that yesterday's White House meeting was "not in the nature of a crisis meeting." Ross pointed out that the Security Council meets regularly at the White House at least every two weeks.

Meeting with the council and Clay were Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff; Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force chief, a top Navy officer, Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, former presidential envoy to China, and Arthur M. Hill, chairman of the National Security Resources Board.

Clay will appear before the House Foreign Affairs Committee today to "bring them up to date on the Berlin situation," Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) announced.

Red Fighter Planes Buzz British Transport

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, July 22 (NYHT).—Soviet fighter planes today buzzed a British transport, flying in formation in and out of clouds in the corridor area and towing a target, apparently for gunnery practice.

The British protested the Soviet fighter activity as violation of air-safety regulations.

American planes set a new record for tonnage carried in the air lift to Berlin, bringing in a total of 1638 tons of food and coal.

The buzzing occurred when two Russian Yaks zoomed within 300 feet of a British four-motored York as it was leaving the Gatow Airfield here. British officials said no firing was actually heard or seen at the moment the target was sighted. The plane towing the target was followed by three Yak fighters.

Three American citizens were arrested by the Russians. Two of them are American military policemen picked up when they wandered into the Soviet zone "by mistake."

The third was a manpower official for the American military government who, according to the Soviet German news agency, was arrested when he tried to sneak his car across the Soviet zonal border to the west.

The Soviet campaign to win over west Berliners by promises of food, fuel and power received a rebuff tonight from the British. A Soviet offer to give power to an electric parts manufacturing plant in the British sector was rejected when the Russians insisted that the plant should handle orders only for the Soviet sector and Soviet zone.

The Allies, in a move to protect dwindling reserves in their sectors of Berlin, announced that Germans possessing Soviet ration cards will no longer be able to eat in West-sector restaurants.

O'Donnell's Bid On Astor Villa Is Turned Down

New York, July 22 (NYHT).—Chetwode, the 14-room French villa and estate of John Jacob Astor at Newport, R. I., will not be transferred to James O'Donnell, former owner of a drug store chain in Washington, D. C., who was declared the purchaser at an auction of the property last Saturday, but will be retained by Astor for his own occupancy.

H. Howard Babcock, attorney for Astor, reported today that O'Donnell's bid of $71,000 had been rejected by the owner, as was his privilege under the terms of the sale, because in taking into consideration the furnishings and extensive landscaped grounds, the top bid was only about 20 per cent of what Astor had felt he should receive for the property.

No. 2 Yugoslav Calls Regime Democratic

By Homer Bigart

Belgrade, July 22 (NYHT).—Col. Gen. Alexander Rankovich, Minister of Interior, and next to Marshal Tito the most powerful man in Yugoslavia, revealed today some hitherto top-secret facts of the Yugoslav Communist Party structure in an effort to disprove Cominform charges that the organization was "undemocratic."

He told the party delegates in the second day of their momentous congress that there was very slight prospect for the revolt demanded by the Cominform against party leadership. He disclosed that three fourths of the political and organizing commissars had joined the party either during the Partisan struggle or before the war. "Hence they enjoy the full confidence of the central committee," he said.

The delegates cheered as Rankovich dismissed point by point the accusations of the Cominform resolution. The speech was as firm as Marshal Tito's had been on opening day and again emphasized how the Yugoslav Communist Party and the Cominform have arrived at a situation which offers no graceful exit.

Rankovich rejected the Cominform accusation that party meetings either were not held or were held in secret.

Rankovich said there are too many party meetings. Twice a week, he suggested, ought to be quite sufficient.

He admitted that in some of the more remote districts party gatherings might have been held clandestinely, but that was because Konspiratsia, the Balkan term for secrecy, was so deeply ingrained in party members who remembered long years of persecution.

Rankovich said it was quite natural that many party leaders were former Partisan fighters. He added that within the present army over 90 per cent of all ranks were either members of the Yugoslav Communist Party or Communist youth organizations.

The party organization contained 25,655 cells of local committees, he revealed.

also consented to submit the proposed new constitution to a vote of the people—instead of the state legislature. Upon these points the military governors had insisted.

Although the Germans did not reveal the exact nature of the compromises they reached, they indicated they thought they had gone far enough to satisfy the military governors.

Their communique predicted a "final agreement" when they meet with the military governors here Monday for their third attempt to unite on a plan.

U. S. Regime Austrian Missing in Soviet Zone

Vienna, Austria, July 22 (U.P.).—An Austrian official of the American zone provincial government has not been heard from since his Vienna-bound train entered the Soviet zone four days ago, police reported today.

They have listed Friedrich Mueller, displaced persons adviser to the Salzburg provincial government, as "missing."

Soviet Weekly Blames West For War Talk

Moscow, July 22 (NYHT).—Talk of war arising from the current Berlin situation was described here yesterday as "irresponsible."

The statements of Secretary of State George C. Marshall, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and other Anglo-American statesmen were blamed by the weekly New Times for providing material for "irresponsible journalists and politicians who are yelling about the danger of war."

There has been no suggestions to the Soviet population by its press that there is any danger that a war may be caused by the situation in Berlin. But it is true that Soviet readers have been prepared psychologically by the Soviet press to regard the western powers led by the United States as embarked upon a policy directed against the Soviet Union. Many American leaders also have been accused of being warmongers.

The Literary Gazette contained a lengthy blast against John Foster Dulles, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's foreign affairs adviser, who was accused of proposing a plan to organize an intelligence group which would embark upon a program of terroism and espionage in Europe exceeding anything undertaken by Hitler.

Notwithstanding such articles, however, the general line followed by the Soviet press is that the United States will be prevented from achieving its aims without recourse to war, and that still seems to be the view prevailing here.

It is assumed here the United States, Great Britain and France will be obliged to withdraw peacefully from Berlin unless they come to terms on the basic issues in Germany. Such terms would include giving up the idea of creating a separate regime in western Germany and acceptance of the Soviet ideas on four-power control of the Ruhr, reparations and a central German government.

The New Times maintained the Soviet Union will not retreat from its present position, leading to the assumption that the western powers must retreat from their present stand and accept the Soviet terms.

Dewey to Confer With Dulles And Vandenberg on Berlin

Pawling, N. Y., July 22 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will confer here Saturday night with Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg and John Foster Dulles.

The Republican presidential candidate and his visitors will discuss the international situation in general and the Berlin crisis in detail.

Vandenberg, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, will travel by train from Washington to New York and probably will motor up to Pawling with Dulles, Dewey's foreign affairs adviser.

The conference, which will take place after dinner at Dewey's farm, points up the close attention being given by the Republican standard bearer to the American-Russian impasse.

May State Position

A statement setting forth the Republican position on the Berlin blockade may be issued after the conference, as Dewey has called a news conference for 8:30 (EST) Saturday.

There are indications that although Dewey has been frequently critical of the Truman Administration's handling of foreign policies he believes bipartisan cooperation now is a must in solving the Berlin crisis.

Dewey and his advisers contend much of the present difficulty stems from concessions President Truman made to the Russians at the Potsdam Conference without advance consultation with the Republican leadership.

Is In Close Touch

Dewey made this criticism of the Truman Administration often during his campaign for the GOP presidential nomination. Through Dulles, his liaison with the State Department on international affairs, the Governor has kept in close touch with the Berlin developments.

Dewey said yesterday the "slightest mismanagement" of Berlin situation "cound have serious consequences."

Except perhaps in general terms, or insofar as it may concern foreign affairs, Dewey, Vandenberg and Dulles are not expected to concern themselves Saturday with the special session of Congress, which begins Monday.

Host to Farm Editors

Dewey will be host to more than 75 farm editors from various parts of the country at a dinner in Pawling Grange Hall Saturday afternoon. The Governor will speak extemporaneously, probably on farm problems.

Chairman Hope (R., Kans.) of the House Agriculture Committee and Senator Aiken (R., Vt.), a top-ranking member of the Senate committee, expected to attend.

Aiken is expected to suceed Senator Capper (R., Kans.) as Senate Agriculture chairman next year if Republicans retain control of the chamber. Capper is retiring.

Marshall Cautions Hungary on 'Voice'

Secretary of State Marshall told Communist-run Hungary yesterday that free peoples everywhere will watch to see whether Hungarians are allowed to listen to United States news broadcasts.

"Freedom to listen has become a cardinal requirement in the modern world," Marshall said in a note to the Hungarian government.

The note was the second from the United States on the subject. Hungary had filed a protest against a charge made July 9 by Assistant Secretary George V. Allen that Hungarians listening to State Department "Voice of America" broadcasts were being persecuted. The second United States note answered that protest.

Hungary denied there were any such legal or police restrictions, but said the police "will detain and prosecute anybody who incites against Hungarian democracy."

Marshall observed that the protest indicated Hungary intends to give effect to the "freedom to listen" principle. He added, however, that "the American public has gained a contrary impression regarding the Hungarian's government's attitude on this point not only from reports received from Hungary but also from the tenor of statements appearing in the Hungarian press itself."

In the first American note, Allen said the State Department has been advised that Hungarian authorities "are carrying forth what appears to be a systematic campaign to frighten the people of Hungary from listening to the news broadcasts and commentaries on the Voice of America." He said the measures took the forms of arrests on charges of "inciting against Hungarian democracy."

The Hungarian Charge d'Affaires said in the protest that Allen's charge was based on the arrest of persons who spread a rumor that atomic bombs would be dropped on Hungary in a few weeks.

Hopkins Story Sheds Light on Stalin's Role

By The Associated Press

Is Stalin or the Politburo the boss of Russia?

The question has been much debated since President Truman said Stalin had to take orders from the Politburo.

A curious experience which Prime Minister Churchill and U. S. Ambassador Harriman had with Stalin in August, 1942, is related in the current installment in Collier's of Robert E. Sherwood's series on "The Secret Papers of Harry L. Hopkins."

Stalin had been insisting on a second front in France, but the British and American governments had decided against it and were preparing to launch an invasion of North Africa instead.

Churchill flew to Moscow to explain, and in his first talk with the generalissimo apparently won him over completely. Stalin seemed actually enthused over the North African invasion, and said, "May God help this enterprise to succeed."

The next night Stalin's attitude had totally changed. He handed out a brusque memorandum which caustically denounced the Allies for failing to fulfill their promises of aid to Russia. And for the rest of the meeting he kept Churchill and Harriman on the defensive.

"There was considerable puzzled speculation in the British delegation as to what had produced the dismaying reversal in Stalin's attitude as between the first night's session and the second," Sherwood wrote.

"The same technique was to be encountered on subsequent occasions, and the most usual explanation of it was that when Stalin got really tough he was expressing the attitude of the mysterious Politburo rather than his own personal appraisal of the main issue."

Britain Opposes Printing Tehran, Yalta Papers

By The Associated Press

Diplomatic officials reported yesterday a British embassy suggestion to the State Department that the "best interests of all concerned" would be served by not publishing now certain documents on the wartime Tehran and Yalta conferences.

The action was based, these officials said, on the serial publication in Collier's Magazine of papers of the late Harry Hopkins, wartime adviser of President Roosevelt.

The documents were not identified. Whether they were official records of the meetings of Mr. Roosevelt with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin, or were Hopkins' own notes, was not disclosed.

The embassy acted on instructions from the British foreign office. It made "informal representations" about two weeks ago, according to officials who asked not to be identified. These informants indicated the step was taken largely as a formality without expectation that the State Department would, or could, do anything.

The Hopkins articles were written by Robert E. Sherwood.

They cover some of the same wartime recollections now being written by Churchill in his memoirs.

Churchill himself is reported to have taken no position on the Hopkins documents. Portions of the first volume of his memoirs were published serially by the New York Times and Life Magazine.

British Movie Makers To Get 20 Million Loan

London, July 22 (U.P.).—The British motion picture industry, one of the nation's major dollar-earners is so hard up that the Government is preparing to loan producers a total of 20 million dollars to keep their movie cameras going, it was announced today.

"Pretty well the whole of the industry outside the (J. Arthur) Rank organization is now facing a stoppage, unless we do something," Harold Wilson, head of the Board of Trade, said.

Runs 10 Years

1st ECA Loan Carries 3% Interest

The Government's Export-Import Bank said yesterday the first loan by the Economic Corporation Administration will bear interest at 3 per cent a year and be payable in 10 years.

The loan goes to Iceland. An agreement signed yesterday lets Iceland borrow up to $2,300,000 to buy U. S. machinery, equipment and supplies to increase production of fishing industry.

The Export-Import Bank announced that the money may be drawn until next June 30. Principal payments will start three years from the date Iceland draws out the first money.

Presumably, the three per cent interest rate sets the pattern for loans ECA makes in the European recovery program. This is a somewhat higher rate than that provided in the 3750-million-dollar British loan, now exhausted, but corresponds generally to the rate on loans the Export-Import Bank makes to foster U. S. trade.

The ECA is directed by Congress to make 20 per cent of its aid fnuds in the form of loans, while the other 80 per cent may be grants for which no repayment will be expected. Grants mostly cover food and other relief supplies, while loans are expected to aid in industry development.

Tombstone to Lose Communist Emblem

Waterloon, Ontario, July 22 (AP).—A hammer and sickle emblem will be removed from a tombstone in Mount Hope Cemetery, the parks board decided last night.

The emblem, along with the words "Workers of the World Upite," is inscribed on a stone standing over the grave of a Morris Wohansky.

The Canadian Legion branch here demanded its removal, terming it "a slap in the face to all veterans."

Wohansky's widow is believed to live in Detroit, although efforts to trace relatives have been fruitless.

The parks board said the emblem will be removed under its authority over types of headstones erected in the cemetery. The "Workers-of-the-world" slogan will remain.

4 Members of Band Injured in Accident

Pete Candoli, 25, of South Bend, Ind., a trumpet player, and Bob Pring, 25, were treated for minor injuries and released.

Ex-Red Reports 'Federal Spy Ring'

Seattle, July 22 (U.P.).—A former Communist claimed today that 150 employes of the Government in Washington, D. C., are operating as a Soviet spy ring and are relaying secret documents to Russia.

The charges were made by New York Newspaperman Howard Rushmore while testifying before a State legisaltive committee investigating alleged subversive activities at the University of Washington here.

"Communist 'cell' units have been set up in Government buildings, including the State Department," Rushmore said. "Workers deliver copies of the document to 'cell leaders' who relay the material by reliable messengers to the Soviet Embassy."

Four Professors Face Contempt

As the in estigating group continued its third public hearing, Chairman Alfred F. Canwell said that witnesses who refuse to answer questions will face contempt charges in Superior Court.

Yesterday four professors refused to answer questions concerning Communist affiliations, and were ordered off the witness stand.

Canwell said the four would be cited for contempt.

Florence Bean James, assistant director of the Repertory Playhouse, which was identified as a "recruiting center" for the Communist Party, was escorted from the committee room when she rose to protest a ruling.

She was followed by former teaching fellow Philip Hunt Davis, who shouted from the rear of the room, "that's no way to treat a lady."

Attorney Is Removed

Attorney John Caughlan was removed shortly before the noon recess when he attempted to speak on behalf of his client, Herbert J. Phillips.

Dr. Phillips, now under suspension for not answering the committee's subpena on opening day, refused three times to answer to whether he had ever been a Communist.

"For conscience sake and for political sake, I refuse to answer the question," the 57-year-old professor of philosophy said.

Dr. Garland Ethel, former professor of English literature at the university, refused for the second time to name persons with whom he had attended Communist meetings during seven years he was a member of the party from 1934 to 1941.

Others Evade Questions

Dr. Ralph H. Gundlach, associate professor of psychology, refused to say whether he had ever been a Communist. He charged, "that's a loaded question—like, 'When did you stop beating your wife?'"

The fourth professor who refused to testify was Dr. E. Harold Eby, professor of American literature, who said he joined the party in 1936, but left in 1946 to devote his full time to research.

He first pleaded extreme shortness of memory in failing to recall incidents of his activities as a Communist.

When probed further, he answered, "I find that I couldn't face myself and live any more if I named any of my associates."

Three Reds Sought After 9th Surrenders

By John Chabot Smith

New York, July 22 (NYHT).—The Federal Bureau of Investigation pressed its search today for the three remaining members of the Communist Party's national board still at large after Irving Potash surrendered this morning.

Potash, manager of the Furriers Joint Council (CIO), brought to nine the number of Communist leaders who have been arraigned and released in bail since Tuesday. Two surrendered voluntarily, six were arrested in their offices and one at home. It appeared today the missing three had gone into hiding.

They are Robert G. Thompson, New York State chairman of the Communist Party; Gus Hall of Clieveland, Ohio State chairman, and Gilbert Green, Chicago district chairman. Their associates professed to know nothing of their whereabouts.

FBI Seeking Three

Edward Scheidt, agent in charge of the New York FBI office, said no effort was being spared to track down the indicted men. Frank H. Gordon, special Assistant Attorney General, said he was confident they would be caught.

Justice Department attorneys refuse today to discuss any feature of their plans. They parried questions about espionage plots.

Gordon said he and United States Attorney John F. X. McGohey would conduct the prosecution.

Potash's bail of $5000 was provided by the Civil Rights Congress, as in the case of most of the other defendants. Like the others, Potash pleaded not guilty.

Previously arraigned were William Z. Foster, Eugene Dennis, Henry Winston, Benjamin J. Davis, jr., Jacob A. Stachel, John B. Williamson, John Gates, and Carl Winter. Hearing on preliminary motions will take place on August 23, and the trial is expected to begin in October or November.

Arrests Are Protested

Protest against the arrests were issued today by the national executive board of the National Lawyers Guild, the Bronx County American Labor Party, and three officers of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, a CIO affiliate. They were Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the union; Julius Emspak, secretary-treasurer, and James J. Matles, director of the organization.

Dispatches from Moscow said news of the indictments occupied major space in Pravda, the Communist Party organ, and Izvestia, the government newspaper. Neither printed any editorial comment.

U. N. Brands State Officials' Subversive Charge 'Slander'

Lake Success, July 22 (AP).—The United Nations secretariat declared today minor State Department officials had slandered U. N. workers and damaged their morale.

This was the U. N. answer to charges before a congressional subcommittee by officials of the State Department's visa section that the U. N. is being used as a screen for subversive agents.

The answer was given by Victor Hoo, acting secretary-general, at a news conference. Hoo said U. N. employes had received the charges with a "great shock" and are "most indignant."

Hoo said prestige of the U. N. has been injured by the charges, even though they have been disavowed by Secretary Marshall.

U. N. Workers Pass Resolution

He added it is only natural that they would affect the morale and efficiency of the Secretariat.

The staff committee of the United Nations, representing the workers, unanimously approved a resolution at a special meeting backing the U. N. administration in whatever steps it might take to vindicate the reputation and integrity of the secretariat.

Hoo read this resolution at the news conference and said he indorsed it.

The resolution repeated the oath it said every U. N. worker must give before commencing duty. It follows:

"I solemnly swear (undertake, affirm, promise) to exercise in all loyalty, discretion and conscience the functions entrusted to me as a member of the International Service of the United Nations, to discharge those functions and regulate my conduct with the interests of the United Nations only in view, and not to seek or accept instructions in regard to the performance of my duties from any government or other authority external to the organization."

No Complaints on Aanyone

The resolution added that the statement by officials of the State Department implied that members of the secretariat are false to that oath.

Then it said the U. N. workers noted with satisfaction Secretary Marshall's statement yesterday in effect disavowing the views of subordinate officials. It added that the staff committee "strongly affirms its belief that, subject only to the terms of their oath, members of the United Nations secretariat from all 58 member nations must enjoy the ordinary freedom of movement and expression associable with democratic traditions and international practice."

Hoo declared the U. N. had no complaints on any U. N. employe. He said the U. N. always found high officials of the State Department cooperative.

"The minor officials do not always appreciate the importance of the United Nations in the United States," he said.

143,000 'Diplomats' Enter U. S. in 11 Years

More than 143,000 persons have been admitted to the United States under diplomatic status in the last 11 years.

This estimate, from the files of the Immigration Service, was laid today before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee studying possible subversive activities by foreign agents.

The Immigration Service said 16,517 persons were admitted to the United States under diplomatic status during the year which ended June 30, 1947.

Robert C. Alexander, assistant chief of the State Department's visa section, who testified last week that Communist employes of the United Nations are undermining United States security, was on the stand again yesterday.

He testified that he regards any alien Communist Party member as potentially dangerous to the country, but questions whether Communist employes in the U. N. can be kept out.

Asked how subversive foreign agents could be dealt with, he said, "We can only wait" until they are caught in an illegal act.

Secretary of State Marshall said yesterday that he doesn't know of a single case in which a foreigner came to this country for the U. N. and has threatened American security in any way.

Alexander said again that probably several hundred of the employes of U. N. and related agencies could be kept out as subversives under the general immigration laws. He said it would not be in the public interest to identify them.

Tiny Republic Sets Up One-Kilowatt Station

San Marino, July 22 (U.P.).—San Marino, the world's smallest republic, today inaugurated a one-kilowatt radio station for its 15,000 inhabitants.

The transmitter will be powerful enough to blanket San Marino's 38 square miles and will be heard outside the country's borders in northern Italy. The programs will consist mainly of advertisements and orders to the country's 12 soldiers and 20 policemen.

French Cabinet Set For Vote Tomorrow

Paris (Friday), July 23 (U.P.).—Premier-designate Andre Marie announced early today that he would form his cabinet and present it to the National Assembly Saturday for a vote of confidence.

Marie's announcement came after two days of consultations with leaders of all political parties except the Communists. After his appointment Wednesday as Premier-designate by President Vincent Auriol, Marie said he would form an anti-Communist coalition government. The Premier-designate is a member of the Rightist Radical Socialists and served as Minister of Justice in two preceding cabinets.

Marie's chances were enhanced yesterday when politically powerful former Premiers Leon Blum and Paul Reynaud threw their support behind him. Some slight opposition was still shown by the powerful Catholic Popular Republicon Movement (MRP) but today's announcement indicated that the difference had been composed.

Milk Found Vital Need In Europe

KATHERINE LENROOT

The greatest need of the children of Europe is milk, Miss Katherine Lenroot, head of the Children's Bureau, reported yesterday after returning from a 10-day flying visit to the continent.

Miss Lenroot, United States representative on the board of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, attended a meeting of the program committee in Geneva. She also visited in Hungary and Czechoslovakia, paying particular attention to homes for children.

Last year's drought, an insufficient number of cows and lack of transpotration, containers and of means to keep milk fresh contributed to the milk shortage, Miss Lenrott said.

The committee recommended that aid be given to countries participating in the program to set up powdered milk processing plants, she said.

Also recommended by the committee was an appropriation of $3,800,000 to maintain the present level of care for children. If participating countries match the contribution the program may be expanded, Miss Lenroot said.

Pekkala Out As Premier Of Finland

From Press Dispatches

Helsinki, Finland, July 22.—Premier Mauno Pekkala resigned tonight.

President Juho Paasikivi asked the government to remain in office until a new one is formed.

He is expected to ask a Social Democrat, probably former Speaker of Parliament K. A. Fagerholm, to form a new cabinet. Pekkala belongs to the Social Union Party.

Dr. Urho Kekkonen, Agrarian, was elected speaker of Parliament today with Alpo Lumme, Social Democrat, deputy speaker, and Toivo Kujala, Communist, second deputy.

The Agrarians and Social Democrats agreed to support Fagerholm for premier.

The Agrarians and Social Democrats, the two largest parties, are reported to have agreed that the new cabinet shall contain six members of each of their parties, four Popular Democrats, one Swedish Liberal and one non-party member.

Gasperi Beats No-Confidence Move by Reds

Rome, Italy, July 22 (AP).—The Italian Senate tonight defeated a Communist attempt to force Premier Alcide de Gasperi and his cabinet to resign because of the shooting of Communist Boss Palmiro Togliatti last week. Togliatti was reported out of danger today.

The Senate voted down a Communist nonconfidence motion, 173 to 83, after hearing De Gasperi charge the civil disorders last week were a seditious attempt to overthrow the government by force.

De Gasperi read from Communist propaganda leaflets distributed last Thursday urging the general nation-wide strike be continued until the government quit.

The Premier said the strike collapsed because a majority of the workers were hostile to its political implications.

De Gassperi said antistrike legislation is being prepared.

The National Council of the Italian Catholic Workers Association announced it has approved the decision of De Gasperi's Christian Democrat labor leaders to leave the Communist-led General Confederation and take one million members with them.

Restricted Air Route Plan For Pan American Opposed

By The Associated Press

Final argument on the application of Pan American Airways for a network of blue ribbon domestic routes closed yesterday with a sharp dispute over the suggestion that the routes be granted with a restriction to "fill up" traffic.

The objection came from the domestic airlines which are opposed to giving Pan American any internal routes under any conditions.

Henry J. Friendly of New York, Pan American counsel, said in his rebuttal statement which ended 3½ days of legal debate before the Civil Aeronautics Board that the decision might be to give his company the privilege of carrying passengers between United States points to the extent that seats are available on international flights.

(This is known as "fill up" traffic and when applied to international air travel involves the complicated and much disputed "fifth freedom.")

Howard C. Westwood of American Airlines told the board that Friendly had in effect presented a new issue. Westwood took the position that Pan American throughout the 41 months the case has been before the CAB had demanded unrestricted domestic routes and that the opposition of the domestic airlines was based upon that application.

John T. Lorch of Chicago, speaking for United Air Lines, said that if the board intended to consider giving Pan American domestic routes with restrictions, the case should be opened for testimony.

Friendly replied by saying that all the airlines knew the board did not always grant everything that was asked; that it sometimes awarded routes which had not been applied for, and that it would be not unusual for it to apply restrictions in this case even though Pan American sought unrestricted routes.

In his prepared rebuttal, Friendly argued for the proposed routes as a step to bolster the Pan American system, which he said had made the largest national defense contribution of any air carrier and should be in a position to do so again.

Pan American is asking eight basic routes linking 13 major cities which are terminals for its 100,000-mile international network. Although it flies all over the world, Pan American does not carry traffic between points in the United States.

Jews Hint Desire For Arab Treaty

Trading to Resume

Peso's Value Trimmed By Mexico

Mexico City, July 22 (U.P.).—Mexican bankers agreed to resume trading in foreign exchange today at a temporary rate representing a loss of value in the peso of approximately 20 to 25 per cent, it was learned tonight.

The decision was taken at a meeting of bankers at the Treasury Ministry after the Mexican government unpegged the peso in a surprise announcement last night.

Private bankers agreed to resume trade tomorrow at a temporary rate of 5.75-6.00 pesos to the dollar compared with the former pegged rate of 4.85 to 1.

Earlier, Bank of Mexico and Mexican Embassy officials conferred in Washington with International Monetary Fund and United States Treasury officials as the Bank of Mexico here halted temporarily all foreign exchange operations and took over all gold and foreign exchange owned by private banks in excess of their obligations in foreign exchange and specie.

Private banks were advised by the Bank of Mexico that they could operate freely in the market with no restrictions as practiced in countries where exchange controls exist.

Mexico has been fighting to stem the outward flow of dollars since the end of the war, when it had a dollar balance estimated at 350 million dollars.

Donovan Continues Probe

—Athens, July 22 (A.P.).—Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan, wartime chief of the United States Office of Strategic Services, arrived today to continue his investigation of the unsolved murder of CBS Correspondent George Polk.

Tel Aviv, July 22 (NYHT).—Prime Minister David Ben Gurion, reporting tonight to the Israeli legislative council on the latest phase of the Arab-Jewish war, indicated that Israel was ready to conduct direct negotiations with the Arab states on a peace settlement in Palestine.

Without proposing that United Nations mediation machinery under Count Folke Bernadotte be bypassed, Ben Gurion implied that the real hope for lasting peace in the Holy Land rested upon discussions between representatives of both contestants.

He asserted that only through a treaty with Israel would the Arab world be able to free itself "from its open and covert dependence on external forces exploiting it," an obvious reference to Britain.

Haifa's Oil Refinery Resumes Operations

Tel Aviv, Israel, July 22 (A.P.).—Haifa's oily refinery has resumed operations after a three-month shutdown, it was disclosed today.

No new truce violations were reported today, and Count Folke Bernadotte, the U. N. mediator, deployed his corps of observers to maintain the peace.

Children's Fund Board Rejects Brazil Proposal

Geneva, Switzerland, July 22 (A.P.).—The executive board of the Emergency International Children's Fund tonight rejected a five-million-dollar relief project for Latin America and the Middle East.

The United States delegation opposed the proposal, which had been suggested by Brazil.

The executive board set the 1949 budget at 78 million dollars. It will be distributed this way:

Child relief in Europe, exclusive of Germany, 42 million dollars; China, 12 million dollars; southeast Asia, $4,100,000; India, Pakistan and Ceylon, $1,100,000; antituberculosis campaign, three million dollars; health train, two million dollars; administration, $1,500,000; milk, clothing and other commidities, seven million dollars, and reserve fund, $5,300,000.

Georgia Klan to Admit 1000 While 'Peculiar Cross' Burns

Atlanta, July 22 (A.P.).—The Ku Klux Klan laid plans today for a mammoth cross burning and initiation atop Stone Mountain and not far from the unfinished carving of God-fearing Gen. Robert E. Lee.

The Klan's grand dragon, Dr. Samuel Green, said the ceremony tomorrow night would boast a new and "the most peculiar cross you ever saw" and 1000 new Klansmen.

He predicted that all told some 8000 to 9000 Klansmen in robes would be on hand to welcome the new members into the "Invisible Empire."

Dr. Green said the Klan's new cross would be 42 feet high with crossarms extending 10 feet on either side.

It is made of 2-inch pipe with quart buckets containing oil spaced every 12 inches. Dr. Green estimated they would burn from five to seven hours.

The Grand Dragon said he would conduct photographers about with a restriction against photographing the faces of initiates.

Normally the initiates proceed to an altar placed before the cross. There they kneel, reveal their faces and take an oath to obey the laws of the Klan, to uphold Southern womanhood and to fight for the supremacy of the white races.

They also pledge themselves to uphold the laws of the United States.

Thereafter, and with Klan permission, they are permitted to wear robes resembling a bedsheet and a peaked hood.

Governor Honors 'Miss Maryland'

MISS LUCILE ANDREWS

of Chevy Chase, University of Maryland senior and "Miss Maryland of 1948," has been designated by Governor Lane as the State's official representative on Maryland night, July 31, at "The Common Glory" presentation at Williamsburg, Va. The date falls on the day after the 219th anniversary of Baltimore's founding. It will be the ninth in a series of special nights set aside by sponsors of Virginia's official drama in honor of the thirteen original colonies.

Chiang Kai-shek Flies Into and Out Of Red Noose

Nanking, July 22 (A.P.).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek flew into a Communist noose and safely out again today.

The Chinese government leader went to Communist-encircled Taiyuan, conferred with Gen Yen Hsi-shan and completed the 1200-mile round trip back to Nanking at dusk tonight.

The Communists, estimated 150,000 strong, are at the walls of Taiyuan. They have captured one airfield and brought a second under artillery fire.

Wife Accused Of Murder

Vanceboro, Me., July 22 (U.P.).—A young, red-headed wife described as an "awful nice lady," was arrested today on a charge of murdering her 56-year-old husband who died mysteriously in their wilderness vacation cottage on the Canadian border.

Officials investigating the death of Oscar Marcil a Schenectady, N. Y., super-market manager, would not say what made them suspect "nice" Mrs. Marcil.

"The death certificate lists angina pectoris, I believe," said County Attorney Thomas S. Bridges, "but this seems to be a case of some one inducing heart trouble."

Marcil, his 33-year-old wife, Margaret, and their 3-year-old daughter were vacationing at Spednic Lake. According to reports, they were alone Tuesday while other members of their party were on the lake shore.

Suddenly Mrs. Marcil rushed to the beach, shouting:

"Oscar's dead!"

The wife is a tall, slender former Navy nurse. When charged, she broke into tears and shrieked: "I didn't do it. I didn't do it."

PAC Head Likes Truman's New Look

Milwaukee, July 22 (AP).—Jack Kroll, director of the CIO Political Action Committee, said today President Truman "has a new look now, and I must say that the new look becomes him."

Addressing the convention of the CIO United Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers, Kroll pointed out that neither the CIO nor CIO-PAC has made a Presidential indorsement. But, he added:

"It may be that the plain people of the United States have found another champion. It may be that President Truman has found himself."

Kroll praised the Democratic platform as an "outstanding document and one of the most progressive" ever adopted by a major political party.

"I think it (the Democratic platform) will go a long way to separate the sheep from the goats during this coming election campaign," he said.

Kroll declared the Republican Party "is still wrestling with its old problem—the problem of how to get the many to vote for the interests of a few."

Earlier today, Acting Secretary of Labor John Gibson called for outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley Law and redommended that Congress enact a program to "protect" the workers of the Nation "from natural and economic hazards which they face every day."

AFL, CIO Remain Neutral On Presidential Candidate

Leaders of both big labor organizations refused yesterday to give the nod to any presidential candidate.

CIO President Philip Murray said after a talk with President Truman that his organization has not yet decided whom it will support in November.

The 30-member administrative committee of the AFL Political League, holding its first meeting since the Democratic and Republican nominating conventions, also postponed taking sides between Mr. Truman and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Murray, who called on Mr. Truman to offer a CIO program for price controls, said the question of backing a presidential nominee would be taken up at the next meeting of the CIO Political Action Committee in about 30 days.

The AFL officials discussed the major party platforms and tickets, and mapped plans for taking a hand in congressional contests in about 85 districts.

One AFL official said the league is not yet ready to come out for either candidate. It may sidestep a presidential indorsement entirely and concentrate on trying to defeat members of Congress who voted for the Taft-Hartley Act.

AFL President William Green said recently that that labor organization will "never" support Dewey. He did not say, however, that it would support Mr. Truman.

The league leaders will meet again in Chicago next month.

Body Found in Bay Is Identified as That of Lieut. Todd

Norfolk, Va., July 22 (AP).—A Naval Board of Inquiry late today identified a body found floating in Chesapeake Bay yesterday as that of Lieut. George Todd, USN, of Cambridge, Md.

Todd had been missing since Monday morning, when a 20-foot sailboat in which he had left Cambridge for Charleston, S. C., was discovered beached and pilotless on Haven Beach in Mathews County.

The court of inquiry said identity had been established "beyond a doubt." Papers found aboard the sloop had indicated that the 55-year-old Todd had been its sole occupant.

Todd's body was sighted in the water about 10 miles from the beached vessel yesterday by a Coast Guard helicopter. Investigation of the circumstances of Todd's death continued tonight.

Here's hoping someday the law will permit all margarine to be colored the best way...
RIGHT IN THE CHURN IT'S MADE IN!*

but in the meantime...

NUCOA'S "Bowl Mix" is today's best way!

1 BECAUSE It Protects the Fine Quality, Taste, and Texture that Make Nucoa America's Favorite Margarine! No halfway measures are tolerated in the making of Nucoa. Appetizingly churned, chilled, made into pounds, and triple-wrapped, Nucoa comes to you with the finest churn-fresh flavor, the smoothest churn-fresh texture any spread can have. It is not melted and poured into a trick coloring package, for we do not believe you would want us to impair the flavor and texture of delicious Nucoa this way. So, until the law frees us to give you yellow Nucoa, you, we think, will want to continue to color it for your table by the nicer "bowl mix" method.

2 BECAUSE It's as Quick as Any Way—Test It! Here's the quick, easy, appetizing way to color margarine: Let Nucoa stand at room temperature until it is soft—not soupy, but soft enough for quick sandwich spreading. Remove it from the package to a large bowl and with a large fork or spoon cream in the coloring shaken from the pure color wafer. It takes less than a minute and a half to mix the color in evenly—and no other method is quicker than this; no other method so well protects the texture.

3 BECAUSE It Brings You the Best Margarine—Cheaper! When you buy margarine in a trick coloring package, you pay extra for the package. When you buy Nucoa you buy its finer flavor, its year-round, churn-fresh goodness, its rich food energy and dependable Vitamin A. You get the best margarine—the margarine you're proudest to put on your table—actually cheaper! Is there any question about what you want?

* Obtainable yellow (where not prohibited by state law) at a higher cost, to cover high Federal taxes and license fees.

Robertson Won't Bolt

issued by some other Virginia congressional candidates who are worried over the prospect of losing their seats to Republicans if the State party should spit.

Two ranking Democrats who have kept silent thus far are Gov. William Tuck and Senator Harry Flood Byrd.

"I have been a Democrat all my life and intend to vote the Democratic ticket this fall," Robertson said. "But I have no idea of accepting the interpretation of our Democratic platform with respect to a civil rights program which Mr. Truman has placed on it.

"The platform in 1944 and again in 1948 provided for action within the framework of the Constitution. The Congress has no constitutional power to act and even if it had such power it should not attempt to exercise it because such legislation would do more harm than good."

Robertson did not specifically mention the Dixiecrat movement, which started in protest over Mr. Truman's stand on racial issues and the civil rights plank of the Democratic platform. But he clearly had the new Southern party in mind when he said:

"I do not have to indorse the views of anyone who seeks Federal action on his civil rights program in order to call myself a Democrat nor leave the party of my fathers because of his attitude."

Robertson, who voted to override Mr. Truman's veto of the Taft-Hartley bill, said he had not changed his mind on that issue. He said he believed the law was "definitely in the interest of the rank and file of labor as well as all consumers."

Reminding that he succeeded Glass in the Senate, he said he would follow Glass' example of supporting the Democratic Party, "regardless of a plank in the party platform which I do not approve or the personal position of a party nominee which I do not approve."

Wallaceites Hit At Major Parties

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 22.—Peace—peace and security—that's the slogan of the self-styed Gideon's army gathered here for the New Party convention to nominate Henry A. Wallace as its presidential candidate.

In literature, in banners and even on the sound truck in front of the Bellevue-Stratford the two majority parties are represented as the tools of the imperialist warmongers of Wall Street.

A group called "Caravans for Wallace" whom the convention public relations department describes as "a group of theatrical-minded youngsters" are touring Philadelphia with a sound-truck on which the Democratic Donkey and GOP elephant are represented as going around "The Same Old Merry-Go-Round" under the banner of Wall Street.

The charges and even the name are reminiscent of the pre-World War II "Peace Caravans," which toured the United States opposing conscription during the period of the Soviet-Nazi pact.

There are similar echoes in the official songbook of the convention published by "People's Songs" address not given.

They're young, these delegates down here.

Of 468 who replied to a New Party questionnaire some days ago, 60 per cent were under 40 years of age, convention headquarters here announced.

Potash Is Missing

Missing, however, is one strong—and not so young—supporter of Henry Wallace.

That is Irving Potash of the CIO Furriers Joint Council who surrendered himself to Federal authorities in New York today to answer charges of a conspiracy to overthrow the Government of the United States.

Potash is one of a group of 12 indicted members of the Communist Party's National Board. He is the ninth to surrender himself and furnish $5000 bail.

The support by Potash of the New Party and Henry Wallace was disclosed by the Americans For Democratic Action, liberal anti-Communist group currently waging a knock-down drag-out battle with "Gideon's Army."

Potash was on the Wallace side when the 70-member Council of African Affairs split wide open last spring over the Wallace and New Party issues. On April 5, Dr. Max Yergen, executive director of the council, angrily charged that the Communist members of the council, were attempting to divert its educational efforts to support of Wallace.

At that time Yergen said Paul Robeson, openly pro-Soviet singer and cochairman of the National Wallace for President Committee, and Doxie Wilkerson, former American Peace Mobilization supporter and now a member of the National Committee of the Communist Party, tried to use a council publication to give the impression the council was officially supporting the Wallace campaign. He named Potash as one of the Wallace backers in this battle.

Police Are Ready

"Gideon's Army," which promises such a militant battle for peace and especially denounces any thought of difficulty with Russia, has landed in Philadelphia with hardly a ripple to show.

Police Superintendent Guy E. Parsons told The Washington Post today that if any trouble arises the Philadelphia police have plenty of reserves on hand to handle it.

Asked if the police were taking any more precautions for this convention than for either of the other two held here recently, Parsons said "Not necessarily."

"You can always expect some trouble from outside hoodlums," Parsons added, "but if it comes we can handle it."

He made it clear that he was not referring to any persons connected with the convention as "outside hoodlums," but to groups who might attempt to break up the convention.

Postcards for Press

Parsons said he had talked with those arranging the convention and they had been most "cooperative."

The new party has already pulled one new stunt which has correspondents here chuckling.

In each of the very complete and thorough "press kits" provided for those covering the convention is included a natty postcard to send back home—or somewhere.

On the face of it is a cartoon showing President Truman playing the piano with GOP Nominee Thomas E. Dewey draped over it—Lauren Bacall style.

The Chief Executive and Dewey are singing the same tunes, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and "A Good Man Is Hard to Find."

D. C. Wallace Delegates May Join Md. Motorcade

Baltimore, July 22 (AP).—Maryland will have 88 delegates and 64 votes in the Wallace party convention which opens at Philadelphia Friday night.

Most of the delegates will go to the Quaker City in a motorcade scheduled to leave Baltimore tomorrow. Ten cars with Washington delegates may join the parade.

Harry Spector, one of the delegates, plans to deck out the vehicles with signs and banners.

Local party leaders said they expected between 400 and 500 observers and guests from Maryland will attend the convention sessions.

The delegation plans to have its first caucus in Philadelphia at 6:30 Friday evening and elect a chairman. Either James Stewart Martin, Annapolis attorney, or Dr. James T. Camper, Baltimore Negro physician who is the party's candidate for one of the Baltimore seats in Congress, is expected to get the post.

They are cochairmen of the State organization.

Party spokesmen said a move would be made at Philadelphia to have the convention take notice of its campaign for the elimination of racial segregation in the city's municipal parks.

Seventeen persons have been indicted by the grand jury for participating in mixed white-Negro tennis matches in a Baltimore City park on Sunday, July 11. The outing was sponsored by the Young Progressives of Maryland, an affiliate of the Wallace organization.

Third Party Ruled Eligible in Ohio Vote

Columbus, Ohio, July 22 (AP).—The Ohio Supreme Court ruled today that the Wallace third party ticket could go on the State's election ballots next November.

Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel had declined to put the third party ticket on the presidential ballot in Ohio.

In hearings before the Supreme Court, Hummel had contended that several Wallace adherents in Ohio were Communists.

The court issued a writ ordering Hummel to place a slate of Wallace presidential electors on the ballot.

Hunt for Slayers of 3 Spreads to 20 States

Mansfield, Ohio, July 22 (AP).—Five law enforcement agencies compared meager clues today as the far-flung hunt for the cornfield killers of Mansfield reformatory's superintendent and his wife and daughter spread over 20 States.

The agencies swept into action yesterday when the nude bodies of John E. Niebel, 50; his wife Nolanda, 52, and their daughter, Phyllis, 21, were found in a head-high stand of corn 6 miles northeast of here.

Wallace Meeting Opens in Discord

Communist Party," Loeb told reporters.

He charged that Tugwell "prefers not to recognize or discuss the dominant role of the Communists within the third party" and had brushed aside ADA's case for the Marshall Plan.

He said Tugwell revealed "once again his total separation from the New Dealers" if he seriously meant the ADA would back Dewey.

Asked if he believed Tugwell was a Communist, Loeb said he did not. He said several other members of the committee had "consistently followed the Communist Party line."

In the latter category, he named Julius Emspaka, Lillian Hellman, Harry Bridges and Mrs. Paul Robeson. He wasn't prepared to charge they were party members. He said Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP., N. Y.), chairman of the new party rules committee, was another who followed the party line.

The angry clash in the resolutions committee, and Loeb's later press conference, followed a full day's parade of witnesses before the platform-drafting group. Tugwell kept Loeb cooling his heels with his statement all day.

Loeb accused Tugwell of stalling, after promising him time to make his statement. Tugwell made one last attempt to persuade Loeb to simply file the ADA statement for the record, and when that failed called him to the stand.

"We anticipate . . . that the new party will once again demonstrate that as an instrument of Soviet policy it has sacrificed any claim to the support of independent liberals," said Loeb, "that it will continue to betray its stated objectives of raising mass living standards, expanding freedom and promoting peace throughout the world."

Loeb challenged the new party to renounce "Communism and totalitarianism" and throw its support behind the European Recovery Program but said the present structure of the group "makes such a declaration virtually impossible."

"The presence of Mr. Wallace does not alter the fact that the real authority in your party is vested in the hands of men and women many of whom followed the dictates of totalitarianism in the period of the Nazi-Soviet pact," Loeb went on.

"Mr. Wallace's candidacy does not obscure the fact that the Communists and their collaborators guide the major policies and word the major pronouncements of this party."

The platform-drafting committee, including Lee Pressman, former CIO counsel, and many other powerful leaders in the Wallace movement, listened silently throughout the assault.

Then Tugwell hauled off with his charge that the ADA had made an "intemperate attack which . . . is, of course, a matter of taste." He said it was "insincere, hypocritical and immaterial."

Tugwell said ADA "only a week or two ago was sitting on General Eisenhower's doorstep, hat in hand," and asked if it is now getting ready to indorse Governor Dewey.

New party delegates, jammed into the hearing room off the main convention hall, cheered loudly as Tugwell concluded:

"Mr. Truman has already been denounced . . . You, of course, have the right to indorse Mr. Dewey. I will not criticize you for doing that; in fact, I shall regard it as wholly logical. But you have chosen the wrong place to do it. You ought to have made a trip to Albany rather than to Philadelphia."

Dean Joseph Johnson of Howard University Medical School picked up the rebuttal where Tugwell left off. He said Loeb had "insulted" the committee by claiming ADA won a civil rights victory at the Democratic convention.

Johnson said the subsequent bolt of two Southern States and organization of the Dixiecrats made it clear that the old line parties cannot carry out their platform pledges. He said Democratic leaders already are wooing "the Southern bourbons" back into camp.

"Our only hope for establishment of these freedoms is in a new party—in Henry Wallace and Senator Glen Taylor," he concluded, amid more cheers from the delegates.

In these other developments:

1. Dr. Francis Townsend, 81-year-old founder of the Townsend Old-Age Pension movement, after presenting his familiar program for a 3 per cent gross income tax to pay pensions to presons over 60, told reporters millions of Townsendites will pull out of the Wallace movement if it "pussyfoots" on his pension plan in its platform. Denying he had ever indorsed Wallace, Townsend said he will be "as indifferent as I am to the Republicans and Democrats" unless the new party approves the Townsend plank.

2. Tugwell announced a tentative civil rights plank far broader than either the Democrats or Republicans approved. The tentative draft demands full equality for racial minorities by name—for Negroes, Spanish-Americans, Japanese-Americans and all other national groups. It calls for a presidential proclamation ending segregation and all forms of discrimination in the armed forces and in Federal employment. In addition to antilynch, antipoll tax and FEPC bills, it asks legislation abolishing segregation in interstate travel (Jim Crowism).

Tugwell announced that the committee is considering proposals:

1. For a Federal law which would outlaw the full-time employment of persons under 18.

2. For reducing the voting age from 21 to 18 (it is already 18 in Georgia).

3. Senator Glen Taylor (Idaho), predetermined vice presidential running mate on the Wallace ticket, beat Wallace in town by 24 hours and immediately held a press conference. Taylor said he was not concerned with Communist infiltration into the new party. He said he expected the support of the "pink" Communists, but would not renounce any Communist backing, "pink or red."

Taylor distinguished between the "pink and red" Communists this way:

"I think the pink Communists will support our party. The red Communists will vote for Dewey.

"The pink Communist wants progress by Democratic processes, by evolution, not revolution. The reds want revolution. They will support Dewey because the best way to get a revolution is through another Hoover administration."

Third Party Appeals Most To Young and City Voters

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 22.—As the political spotlight turns on the first national convention of the Wallace Third Party, these are the main features about the rank and file supporters of Henry A. Wallace:

1. He is proportionately twice as strong among young voters as he is among those over 50 years old. Out of every 100 voters under 30 years, eight today say they would vote for Wallace, compared with four out of each 100 over 50 years of age.

WALLACE VOTE BY AGE

21-29 years	8%
30-49 years	7
50 and over	4

2. Relatively three times as many people in the Pacific Coast and Middle Atlantic States support Wallace as in the Solid South. One out of every 10 voters in the Pacific Coast States want him as President.

WALLACE VOTE BY SECTIONS

New England	5%
Middle Atlantic	9
Central	5
South	3
West	4
Far West	10

3. Wallace's strength among manual workers is relatively double his support among the Nation's farmers, and union members are even a little more inclined to vote for him than unorganized labor.

Wallace Vote by Occupation

Prof. & Bus.	6%
White Collar	6
Farmers	4
Manual Workers	8
Union Members	9

4. Voters supporting the Third Party are relatively three times as numerous in the large cities as in small communities. While every eighth voter in cities over 500,000 population is a Wallace supporter, in the small towns the Third Party votes gets down to one in 25.

Wallace Vote by City Size

Under 10,000	4%
10,000 to 100,000	6
100,000 to 500,000	6
Over 500,000	12

5. But the group where the new party makes its most powerful and effective appeal are the independent voters, who were so largely responsible for President Roosevelt's successes at the polls. About one in every seven independent voters today says he will support the Third Party candidate.

6. Veterans of World War II also give Wallace above average support, one in 11 of these men today naming him as their choice for President.

The above analysis of the Wallace following is based on the Institute's most recent "presidential trial heat" conducted prior to the major party conventions. The survey pitted Wallace against Truman and Dewey, Wallace receiving 6 per cent of the national vote at that time.

While, as shown by an Institute poll earlier this week, most Americans believe the Third Party is run by Communists, it is significant to learn the reasons given by the 6 per cent of voters for preferring Wallace as President.

To uncover these reasons Institute interviewers from coast to coast tried an unusual experiment in public opinion polling. First they asked a national cross-section of representative voters whether they had talked to anyone who planned to vote for Wallace. Fourteen per cent replied they had, and they were then asked: "What is the main reason they give for supporting Wallace?"

In terms of frequency of mention, these are the chief arguments of Wallace voters:

1. Wallace is for the "common man."
2. He is for peace and the prevention of war.
3. Because the Nation today needs another party to oppose the major parties.
4. Wallace is fair and not a politican.
5. He will follow Franklin D. Roosevelt's doctrines.
6. He has a good foreign policy.

U.S. Standard Still Gold, Truman Says

By The Associated Press

President Truman said yesterday the United States has been on the gold standard all the time.

The U. S. dollar, he said, is backed by gold and that is what makes it good.

The subject, which came up at the President's news conference, promptly provoked a challenge and a suggestion from Representative Clarence Brown (R., Ohio).

Brown challenged what the President meant by saying the country is on the gold standard.

"You're not on a gold standard if you can't get gold for paper money," he told a reporter.

Then he suggested that if the country were on a gold standard that "could mean the end of inflation. Sooner or later this country has to go back on the gold standard if we are going to have a stabilized currency."

Gold Bill Pending

Another Republican, Representative Buffett (Nebr.) has a bill pending in Congress to return the U. S. to the "gold coin standard." That is the standard which the Treasury says prevailed until 1933. You would get gold coins for paper money or silver coins.

(Mr. Truman's remark that the U. S. is on the "gold standard" apparently referred to the fact it has a fixed value rate of $35 for an ounce of gold. On this basis it will exchange paper dollars for gold or gold for paper dollars in dealings with foreign governments at their central banks.

(The Treasury's official definition calls this a "limited international gold bullion standard." This is in contrast to what the Treasury calls the "gold coin standard" that prevailed in this country until 1933. That allowed the free exchange of paper money or silver coins for gold coins at a gold exchange rate of $20.67 an ounce.

(Since most money experts consider "gold standard" to mean free exchange of gold coins is permitted, the Treasury avoids that term in its official definitions.)

(Treasury experts suggested Mr. Truman meant "gold standard" in a limited sense.)

Answers Reporter

The gold standard subject came up at Mr. Truman's news conference when a reporter posed this question:

"Mr. President, some of the Republicans are talking about a resolution to restore the country's gold standard as a means of combating inflation. What do you think about that?"

The country, the President replied, has been on the gold standard all the time.

He added that we own more gold than any other government in the history of the world.

"I can't turn in a dollar for it, though, sir," the reporter countered.

No, you can't, Mr. Truman replied, but then your dollar is backed by that gold backing, that's what makes it good.

Later, Brown told a reporter that if Mr. Truman meant paper currency could be exchanged for gold in saying that the United States is now on the gold standard, it indicated one of three things:

"First, it means that the Administration has already started steps to go back on the gold standard.

"Second, that the Administration contemplates such action, which could be done by Executive order.

"Or third, it is a pitiful picture of the President of the United States not knowing that we are not on the gold standard and that you can't take paper money and get gold for it.

"And you're not on a gold standard if you can't get gold for paper money."

Wholesale prices measured by Bureau of Labor Statistics pushed to an all-time high yesterday. The index topped any previous figure in BLS records going back to before 1800.

The index reached the new record by advancing 1.3 per cent for the week ended July 17.

It rose to 168.9 per cent of the 1926 average. At that point it is 2.2 per cent above four weeks ago and 12.4 per cent over a year ago.

The prior record for the wholesale index of more than 900 commodities was in May, 1920, following the first World War. The index, then measured monthly, was 167.2.

The new index increase was caused by boosts of 3.2 per cent for the week in average food prices and 1 per cent in average farm prices.

Food wholesale prices were 5 per cent higher than their highest point last January. During the July 17 week, meats advanced "sharply," BLS said, with pork 5 per cent higher and mutton up 60 per cent.

Wholesale price increases for lard, sugar, coffee and wheat flour helped shove average food prices up to a point 5.8 per cent higher than a month ago and 13.8 per cent higher than a year ago.

Among farm products, price increases for livestock, eggs and feed contributed to the rise in that group.

The BLS began keeping the wholesale index in 1890 when the agency was part of the Commerce Department. BLS has been in the Labor Department since that department was created in 1913.

As historical background for its own statistics, the BLS has adopted wholesale indices prepared by a committee for Congress for the period between 1800 and 1890 and, prior to that, by civilians whose work is accepted as the most accurate figures available for the pre-1800 era.

Resistance Bringing Meat Price Down Here

Stiff buyers' resistance yesterday led one area supermarket to slash meat prices—in some instances as much as 10 cents on the pound.

A local chain also announced a new drop in certain beef prices but declined to explain the cut. Porterhouse steaks went from $1.10 to 99 cents a pound and sirloin from $1.05 to 98 cents.

While meat prices dipped 4 to 6 cents a pound in one New York chain, however, the firm's Washington outlets reported a boost in certain cuts—as much as 11 cents per pound on porterhouse and T-bone steaks.

The firm also announced that the housewife will be paying 6 cents more for chuck roast—75 cents instead of last week's 69 cents per pound.

"New York runs their own prices and we run ours," a spokesman explained. He anticipated lower prices next week, however.

In the meantime the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced that average primary market prices advanced 1.3 per cent during the week ended July 17—led by sharply higher prices for dressed meats.

The meat index recorded a 7.1 per cent increase in the week from July 10 to 17.

The BLS-tabulated wholesale-price advance was reflected in a continuing increase in retail meat prices here, except in isolated spots where buyers' resistance principally nipped the upward spiral into an unexpected tailspin.

Meat retailers queried in a spot survey looked for the upward trend to continue, some until "this time next year at the earliest."

Principal bright spot in the housewives' horizon as the heavy pre-weekend shopping period approached was a drop in the price of butter—in some stores from 1 to 3 cents on the pound. Crisco and Spry also were down—2 cents in at least one large chain.

Milk and egg prices, reported on the incline in some areas, remained stable here for the most part. Poultry prices also were holding their own.

The meat situation continued most startling, with some stores quoting prices up to $1.25 for choice steak cuts. Other market managers, especially in middle and lower income neighborhoods, failed to show any choice cuts. One Northeast merchant explained:

"I'll try to be without choice cuts of meat this week because the prices are terrific . . . I haven't got the heart to charge my customers such high prices."

A chain store manager virtually pleaded for his customers to stay away from the meat counter.

"That's the only way to get prices down," he said. "Some are staying away from beef but not as much as they should . . ."

A supermarket in nearby Virginia reported that heavy buyer resistance last week caused prices to dip and a spokesman announced that "if it continues, we'll continue to bring prices down."

He said pork chops, up in virtually all other stores surveyed, will sell today for 79 cents a pound—compared with 89 cents last Friday.

Farmer Brown's Magic Cell Acts Like Concrete

Middleboro, Mass., July 22 (AP). If Farmer John Brown has discovered a "master cell" of benefit to plant and animal life, it is too elusive for the State police.

After laboratory examination of four of Brown's cement matrices, in which he claimed to have encased his discovery, State Chemist Joseph T. Walker said he was unable to detect in them any property not possessed by an ordinary concrete block.

At Washington, the Food and Drug Administration said some of Brown's "cells" had arrived for testing at its laboratories at Beltsville, Md. Brown's material will be tried against a chicken disease—possibly coccidiosis. The administration authorities estimated this might take a couple of weeks.

Missourian Named Counsel to GOP

Boy, 10, Fools Doctors but Dies Finally

Detroit, July 22 (AP).—Little Tommy Scott was supposed to die last year. That is, doctors said cancer probably would take his life before Christmas.

So his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Scott, celebrated Christmas for the 10-year-old boy last October. They cut down a small pine tree outside their cottage and moved it inside for a Yule tree.

Tommy grinned when they asked him what he wanted and mentioned roller skates, baseball gloves and bats and lots of outdoor things. It twisted his parents' hearts because it didn't look like Tommy ever would need that kind of toys.

But the sandy-haired, blue-eyed youngster fooled them. In between trips to the hospital, he played baseball, hiked and romped like any kid.

"I think he realized what was coming," his physician, Dr. J. J. Angel, said. "But he never said a word about it."

Stubborn Tommy just played harder and grinned wider at his shot a day in arm or leg.

But at night, the doctor said, he had nightmares and cried out in fear.

Six days ago, Tommy went back to the hospital, still grinning, still planning what he'd do when he got home. The roller skates and bats and balls went back in the closet to await his return.

Tommy won't be needing them any more.

Today he looked up from his hospital bed. His grin was gone. He whispered hoarsely:

"Take me home, Mommy."

Then he died.

Japs Will Get More Food, Soap and Wine

Tokyo, Japan, July 22 (U.P.).—Japanese can look forward to being a little fatter, a little cleaner, and little tipsier after November.

The government announced today that staple food rations will be increased a tenth of a point daily after November. Rations of fats and oils will be tripled.

In addition, each Japanese will be allotted three and a half pieces of soap yearly after that date, and the rice wine ration will be increased to one full pint per family per year.

Reds Held Demanding Italian Ships Again

The newspaper said Italy has replied the peace treaty allows her two years in which to turn over the ships.

D.C. Institutions Hit By High Meat Cost

Roland M. Brennan, District Purchasing Officer, yesterday asked the Commissioners to impose two meatless days a week at most District institutions because of high prices.

Bids opened by the Bureau of Federal Supply (through which the District obtains most of its meat) yesterday were "only slightly higher than the contract prices for the month of July." Brennan said, "considering the fact that the July prices are high, the August prices are also high."

The Commissioners are expected to act on the recommendation at their next regular board meeting Tuesday, District officials said.

Brennan told the city heads he "proposes to enter into supplemental contracts for the month of August for additional quantities of poultry, fish, and eggs, so that any District agency finding that its budget will not permit the purchase of normal quantities of meats can utilize these supplemental contracts."

In addition to the two meatless days, Brennan asked for "a greater use of meat extenders and meat substitutes, except where inconsistent with medical advice and dietary controls."

District purchasing officials said the largest increases were for large pork loins, which went up from 52.62 cents a pound in July to 62.53 cents a pound for August, and small pork loins, up from 54.90 a pound to 65.23 a pound.

Commercial beef went down "astoundingly" from 53.40 cents a pound to 53.32, and good grade beef carcass was about the same, increasing only from 56.40 to 56.90 a pound.

Grocery Chains Cut Price on Some Meats

Chicago, July 22 (U.P.).—A major grocery chain slashed over-the-counter meat prices as much as 20 cents a pound today and others were expected to follow suit.

Wholesale meat prices skidded at Chicago and New York, and livestock pirces at major Midwest terminals were lower.

The Great Atlantic & Peific Tea Co. announced drastic price reductions on certain cuts of fresh meat in the New York and Chicago areas, effective Friday.

The chain said it was "following the market" of meat-on-the-hoof prices, which have begun to fall from record highs set last week.

Market analysts, however, said consumers' resistance to high prices at the butcher shop was having its effect. They said refusal to buy and the current hot weather were combining to leave meat unsold in the shops.

The A. & P. at Chicago said that beginning Friday its butchers would sell leg of lamb at 69 cents a pound instead of 89. Beef chuck roast will be cut from 79 to 69 cents a pound, and rib pork roast 57 to 49 cents. Similar cuts were announced for other types of meat.

Another large Chicago chain, the Jewel stores, followed suit with equal price cuts and predicted prices would be even lower next week.

At New York, the A. & P. announced a 2 to 10 per cent price reduction on certain cuts. Whole shoulder lamb was reduced from 65 to 59 cents a pound, while breast and shank of lamb were cut from 39 to 35 cents a pound.

Hog prices slumped 50 cents a hundredweight at Chicago, Indianapolis and most other Midwest markets, but were steady to weak at St. Louis. Most cattle was down 50 cents a hundred pounds, while lamb skidded as much as $1.50 in slow trading.

Gasoline Fumes Kill Cuban Revolutionary

Key West, Fla., July 22 (U.P.).—Carlos Duque de Estrada, 46, Cuban revolutionary, was found dead in the engine room of his war surplus motor vessel yesterday, apparently the victim of gasoline fumes.

Estrada had been involved in a number of revolutionary plots and at one time at least was imprisoned by the dictator, Machado. He was the author of a book on "Revolutionary Processes in Cuba."

13-Cent Increase Granted by Ford

Detroit, July 22 (AP).—The auto industry settled the last of its 1948 wage problems today as the Ford Motor Co. gave 116,000 production workers a 13-cent-an-hour increase.

The agreement left only the supply problem in the way of near-capacity production of hard-to-get automobiles.

The CIO United Auto Workers were prepared to set a strike date if the last-ditch conferences failed. A walkout would have closed 46 Ford plants in 25 States.

Besides the wage boost, the UAW-CIO got fringe concessions which it said amounted to nearly 4 additional cents an hour.

Reuther Takes Part

President Walter P. Reuther of the UAW-CIO, nervously massaging the aching fingers of his shattered right arm, estimated the new contract "package" was worth 32 million dollars extra a year to Ford workers.

The company made no estimate of the over-all cost.

A Ford spokesman declined to estimate at this time whether the UAW wage boost and the steel price increase will be reflected in car prices. When Ford introduced its new models in mid-June, price increases ranging from $85 to $125 were announced.

Present for the windup was Reuther, his arm in a cast from a shotgun blast fired at him last April by an unknown assailant. He gulped pain-deadening pills, ignored a hospital appointment and disregarded his doctor's orders to help whip through the agreement.

The new pact requires ratification by the union's 100-man national Ford council and final approval by the rank-and-file before August 16. Spokesmen said there should be no difficulty in meeting that deadline.

The agreement brought Ford's average production wage to about $1.65 to $1.66 an hour. It compared with Chrysler Corporation's current average of $1.63, reached after a 17-day strike this spring, and General Motors Corporation's $1.61. The GM figure goes up with the cost of living, however.

Other Provisions

Besides the 13-cent wage boost, the Ford agreement provided:

An increase of 2 to 5 cents an hour in premium pay for afternoon and night shifts.

A liberalized vacation program.

An improved group insurance plan, details of which were not announced.

An agreement to study insurance plans further.

48,000-Ton Superliner Proposed by U. S. Lines

By the United Press

The Maritime Commission is considering an offer by the United States Lines to put up 25 million dollars toward the construction of a 48,000-ton superliner that would be the largest and fastest passenger vessel ever built in the United States, Vice Admiral William W. Smith, commission chairman, disclosed Wednesday.

Smith said he discussed the offer today with John Franklin, president of United States Lines. Further conferences will be held with the Navy Department before a final decision is reached. The Navy is being consulted since the vessel, like other passenger ships, could be turned into a troop transport in the event of war.

40 Alabama Ave. Residents Protest on New Liquor Store

Objections were raised yesterday to the proposed opening of a retail liquor store at 2826 Alabama ave. se. by 40 residents of the area who appeared at a hearing before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board in the Municipal Building.

Application for permission to operate a liquor store in the Alabama ave. shopping area was filed jointly by Ben and Mae Ticktin, both of 825 Juniper st. nw., who have operated a liquor store at 3333 Connecticut ave. nw. for the past three years.

Only liquor store in the immediate area now is the Skyland Liquor Store at 2449 Good Hope rd. se. which has been open since 1940.

The Hillcrest Citizens Association, represented by executive board member James H. Reed, 2310 33d st. se, said the area was in need of other types of business than liquor stores.

Raymond V. Taylor, vice president of Shannon & Luchs, real estate agents, testified for Ticktin that plans for a complete shopping center in the immediate neighborhood are being drawn up.

Mrs. E. Craig, 2714 31st st. se., representing the Hilltop Recreation Council objected that adults might purchase liquor from the proposed store and carry it to a secluded park area one-half block away, also used by children in the neighborhood.

Other protests were made by Mrs. James T. MacIntosh, president of the Stanton School Parent-Teachers Association, of 3008 W st. se. and Mrs. May T. Kyle, principal of the school, of 2129 32d st. se. and resolutions were presented for the Holy Comforter Lutheran Church Council and the congregation of the East Washington Heights Baptist Church at Branch and Alabama aves. se.

A petition signed by 128 persons, asking that the application be granted, was presented by Ticktin.

11,000 Volts Crumple Two

Philadelphia, July 22 (AP).—Two painters were turned into balls of fire today and hurled 45 feet from a pole carrying the main power line of the Pennsylvania Railroad. They were injured critically.

More than 11,000 volts passed through the men, Lawrence Bokafegio, 37, Philadelphia, and Joseph Palese, 27, of Camden, N. J. Their bodies were covered with deep burns.

Both are employed by the John Creticos Painting Co., which has a contract for painting poles near the railroad's 15th st. yard.

Bokafegio was working near the top of a pole when Palese, foreman of the crew, and other painters saw him topple across a girder.

Palese, realizing the painter had hit a live wire, climbed the pole after directing others on the ground to rig a chair with which to lower Bokafegio.

After fastening the chair to a rope, the painters on the ground tossed the other end of the rope to Palese, and he pulled the chair to him and managed to place Bokafegio in it.

A blinding flash followed, and the men on the ground saw Bokafegio and Palese hurled to the ground.

Lewis' Action In Coal Pact Under Attack

By The Associated Press

A hot legal battle began yesterday on a Government charge that John L. Lewis violated the Taft-Hartley Law in negotiating his new soft coal agreement.

Attorneys for Lewis argued at the outset that if the agreement's contested union shop clause runs afouls of the labor law then coal mine owners who agreed to it are equally guilty.

The charges, being aired at a National Labor Relations hearing, are that Lewis illegally insisted on the clause in a contract signed June 31 with "captive" coal mines—that is, mines owned by the steel industry.

The Taft-Hartley Act says a union shop cannot be established unless the workers vote for it in an election conducted by the NLRB, but Lewis was prevented from obtaining an election because access to NLRB's facilities is available only to unions whose officers sign a non-Communist affidavit. Lewis refuses to sign one "as a matter of principle."

Lewis' Position Argued

Lewis argued in a motion filed by his attorneys that the miners demonstrated, by their refusal to work the captive mines during the week of July 6, that they wanted the union shop. Such a provision has been in past coal agreements since 1941.

The "captives" work stoppage ended when they agreed with Lewis—in an out-of-court settlement arranged with Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough's help—to put the union shop into effect temporarily pending the outcome of the NLRB case on the election requirements.

Lewis' attorneys also contended that the election requirement is invalid.

Most of yesterday's hearing was occupied with testimony by Harry Moses, negotiator for the captive interests, on details of the lengthy contract negotiations leading up to the settlement.

Hearing Resumes Today

Moses testified that Lewis insisted on the union shop without an election. The rest of the coal industry accepted this but Moses said he refused to go along for the captives. He testified the steel settlement reached in Judge Goldsborough's chambers was a "compromise" and preserved the right to contest the matter.

The clause in question requires mine owners to fire any worker failing to join the UMW within 30 days after being hired.

The hearing, being held by an NLRB examiner, will be resumed today. Any NLRB decision is expected to be appealed to the courts. Lewis hopes either to get the NLRB election requirement invalidated by the courts or prevail on Congress to repeal it. Meanwhile the miners are working under the union shop arrangement.

4 Liquor Permits Approved In Prince Georges; 1 Withheld

The Prince Georges County Board of Liquor Commissioners yesterday approved four permits for sale of beer, wine and liquor following a public hearing at Upper Marboro.

The commissioners, however, declined to act on the controversial application of John D. Stancliff, whose efforts to obtain a license for sale of beer and light wine at his Lanham restaurant has been opposed by the Lanham Citizens Association.

A ruling that Stancliff's application was improperly prepared resulted in the decision to withhold action. He was told he must resubmit his request.

The application was ruled improper because of his statement that he had previously had a license revoked when actually it was the license application. More than 30 persons representing the Lanham civic group were on hand to protest.

The board approved the following permits:

Fred J. Pfohl, Class D license for on-sale of beer at the Chillum Market, 905 Chillum rd., Hyattsville; Elmer W. Baker, Class D license for on-sale of beer at the Federal Grill, Baltimore blvd. and Sunnyside rd., Berwyn; Blair L. Hamel, Class D license for on-sale of beer and light wine at the Corner Delicatessen, 5426 Riverdale rd., Riverdale, and Mrs. Lacy Whitfield, Roby Whitfield and Oscar H. P. Clark, Class A license for off-sale of beer, wine and liquor at Roby's Liquors, 3105 Naylor rd., Silver Hill.

Smoke Overcomes 50 In Philadelphia Fire

Philadelphia, July 22 (AP).—More than 50 firemen and building employes were overcome by dense smoke today from a fire smoldering in the subbasement paper storage section of the Philadelphia Inquirer's new rotogravure building.

Twenty firemen and two building workers were treated at nearby hospitals while others were revived and treated at the scene where emergency services were set up by the department of public safety.

Lansburgh Bros. Labor Dispute Comes Up Monday

A fresh attempt to iron out a dispute involving some 130 AFL building service employes at the Lansburgh & Bro. department store will be made Monday.

Union-management representatives will meet at 2:30 p. m. at the store, it was announced yesterday.

Samuel Levine, counsel for Building Service Employes Local 62, said workers are seeking a 16-cent hourly wage boost. Currently, he said, wages range from $23 weekly for cleaners, maids and light stock clerks to $31.50 for a small group of heavy stock workers.

Ralph L. Goldsmith, vice president and general manager of the firm, expressed hope the conference will lead to a settlement. He pointed out that the union's contract with the store expired last February.

U. S. to Request U. N. Ceiling on Budget Shares

Lake Success, N. Y., July 22 (AP).—The United States, principal contributor to the United Nations budget, today asked the forthcoming meeting of the U. N. General Assembly to place a ceiling on individual nations' contributions to the U. N.

The United States was expected to seek a ruling under which no nation would be called upon to contribute more than a fourth or, at the extreme, a third of the yearly budget.

The Assembly meets in Paris in September. It must adopt a new budget, probably higher than this year's $32,000,000 and set a new scale of contributions from the 58 member countries. This year the United States is paying 39.89 per cent, or $13,800,000.

Artificial Kidney Uremic Poisoning Aid

Buffalo, N. Y., July 22 (U.P.).—An artificial kidney, made chiefly of plastic and cellophane, was ready for use today in the Millard Fillmore Hospital here.

Intended to aid uremic poisoning victims, the artificial kidney was designed by Dr. George E. Slotkin of the University of Buffalo.

Couple Charges Landlord Listened In by Microphone

MRS. DUARD HAMILTON

Cincinnati, July 22 (AP).—Carl Radabaugh, described as their landlord, was sued for $20,000 damages today by a married couple who charged that he installed a microphone in their apartment to listen to "confidential, personal, secret conversations."

Mr. and Mrs. Duard Hamilton filed separate suits in Common Pleas Court, each asking $10,000 damages. They declared the defendant "with the purpose of destroying the peace, quiet, happiness, tranquility and domestic felicity of the plaintiffs did with a low, mean, vulgar, filthy, vicious and malicious intention" install the microphone.

It also charged Radabaugh on July 17, 1948, in Municipal Court "openly, wantonly, maliciously and brazenly admitted said aforementioned actions and further confessed that he had made numerous recordings of all of said conversations and communications."

The Hamiltons asserted that as a result they had suffered "shame, humiliation, mortification and mental suffering."

Vatican Criticized

Moscow, July 22 (U.P.).—Russian Orthodox Church officials who met here last week passed a resolution charging the Vatican with being a war incendiary and the center of international fascism, Izvestia, official Soviet newspaper, said today.

Draft Begins

Registration for the new draft, which will start on August 30, will occasion some harking back to the fateful day of October 16, 1940, and the events that followed. That was the registration date for Selective Service preceding World War II. It was the period when the hold of isolationism was still strong, and the draft was not popular. Indeed, in the summer of 1941, conscription survived by a single vote in Congress. Fortunately today, in the wake of a devastating war, there is considerably greater acceptance of America's world responsibilities. The importance as a war preventive of military strength in being is emphasized by the happenings in Berlin.

In planning to call men in the 25-year-age bracket first, draft authorities are following the dictates of necessity. When the large number of exempted veterans is discounted, the pool of eligible men in the 19-25-year group is not large. Its effectiveness is further limited by the restriction of the period of service to 21 months. Hence it is important to procure the services of men in this year bracket before they become ineligible by reason of age.

In many ways it is fortunate that the older men are being considered for the first call. They are more mature and hence better equipped to represent America abroad. At the same time it must be realized that the burden of the draft falls heaviest on older men who have spread roots and begun careers. One way to minimize the disruption among such men would be to call them according to age so that they could know in advance when they would be inducted. This procedure could be facilitated by the method of registration, which this time is by age group rather than mass enrollment.

For the most part the men who will be drafted are those who for one reason or another escaped service in World War II. It is proper that they should respond to the national need. In one respect, however, the draft law seems to us to work an injustice. It makes no exception for veterans of the merchant marine. Whereas, strictly speaking, these men were not part of the armed services in World War II, certainly they risked their lives in service often as hazardous as combat. They were, to be sure, well paid for their efforts; but they also took years out of their lives away from their families and jobs, and they have not been accorded the readjustment benefits given former GIs. Perhaps the same standards of deferment given other veterans should not apply to men of the merchant marine, but certainly there ought to be some consideration given by executive order to those seamen who served, say, for two years or more in and out of combat zones.

Defense Authority

Subsequent reports on Air Secretary Symington's speech in Los Angeles Saturday do not bear out the early inferences that it was an insubordinate blast at his superior, Secretary of Defense Forrestal. Mr. Symington scored the farce of unification without sparing anyone's feelings. But he also included a statement to the effect that real unification is a difficult, long-term problem which Secretary Forrestal is doing his best to expedite. Mr. Symington's quoted observations are by no means charitable, but they are profoundly true. There has been "bickering and jockeying" among the three services, and private business would find it hard to get financing in the disorganized way the services approach Congress. "Duplications and triplications" undoubtedly are a strain on the economy which "must be eliminated if America is not to destroy itself by debt." With truth, Mr. Symington could have dubbed the setup, as we have ourselves, "quadruplication," for there is a Defense Department on top of the three services, Army, Navy and Air.

It may, however, be pointed out that at least part of the bickering and jockeying of which Mr. Symington complains has come from his own department, the Air Force. The 70-group Air Force was seized upon by Congress after Mr. Forrestal had recommended a smaller program. Indeed, it is possible to detect just a bit of ax grinding in the Symington denunciation of "ax-grinders dedicated to obsolete methods" who felt that air power should be put in balance with the Army and Navy. The "true integration of the services" pleaded for by Secretary Symington, calls, among other things, for acceptance of interservice decisions as soon as they have been achieved, even though they may be unpopular with one particular element.

What Mr. Symington's comments really point to is the need for strengthening the unification structure. The Joint Chiefs of Staff, who now must attain agreement unanimously, sometimes seem to be more dedicated to harangue than to the evolving of an effective military policy. The joint staff under it is a debating society, not a general staff. A single Chief of Staff for the armed forces responsible to an Undersecretary of Defense would do much to resolve conflict. By the same token, the three semi-autonomous Secretaries of the individual services occupy an anomalous position in any genuinely unified setup. Bickering and jockeying could be minimized by adopting Senator Morse's suggestion to recast them as Assistant Secretaries of Defense responsible to an Undersecretary. Such changes would leave the Secretary of Defense himself free to concentrate on items of broad policy instead of being continually concerned with the interservice wrangling which the present organization encourages. In considerable measure, to be sure, unification is an exercise in persuasion as well as growth; but unless there is a clear line of authority to invoke when persuasion fails, there is danger that the whole project will prove to be merely an expensive superstructure.

Gideon's Army

It may be that the national convention of Mr. Henry A. Wallace's third party, which will open today, will afford to whatever citizens of Philadelphia there may be who have not been permanently cured of any taste for politics, and to the country in general, a more interesting and exciting exhibition than either of the two conventions which have preceded it.

For one thing, Mr. Wallace's followers have not had time to develop anything resembling a party machine. This perhaps is the principal reason why the Communists, with their celebrated party discipline, have been able to capture the Wallace movement and, up to this point, to conduct it pretty much as they pleased. However, a conflict is said to be brewing between the Communist and non-Communist delegations, and at this time it is almost impossible to say what will come of it. Because there is no party machinery, there will be no steam roller which can be used to put the comrades in their place. And since Mr. Wallace has no hope of election, nor even any chance of capturing any important local governments, there is no common anticipation of spoils to assure the sort of unity now evident among Republicans of all persuasions.

But all this does not mean that the Wallace movement has ceased to be an important factor in the campaign. In a good many States it may prove just powerful enough to swing the balance. This, of course, will not be the case if the convention results in a general secession of non-Communists from the party, as has already been threatened if the Communists persist in retaining leadership of the movement. The danger of such a secession was real enough for Mr. Wallace to beseech Communists to get out.

No one, not even Mr. Wallace, supposes that they will comply with this request. They may, however, now be willing to withdraw from active control of the movement. A hint of this possibility can be read into a statement by Simon W. Gerson to a New York State convention of the Communist Party. The new third party, said Gerson, > is not a Socialist or Communist Party and we are not seeking to make it one . . . Our socialist outlook and firm conviction that only a socialist restoration of society can bring permanent peace, security and prosperity are no barriers to cooperation with persons of nonsocialist conviction in creating this new alignment. We seek no special position by reason of our advanced views and will of course oppose any special disabilities because of such views.

Like most party pronouncements, of course, that can be read two ways, and perhaps only party insiders can tell which of them is the right one. Still, the logic of the situation seems to indicate that it will be the policy of the comrades to keep the Wallace movement in being at all costs. Votes for Mr. Wallace next November, as Comrade Gerson pointed out himself, should come from three sources: (a) ultraradical intellectuals and other fellow travelers; (b) Negroes in the industrial cities who suspect the sincerity of the Republican and Democratic pledges concerning civil rights, and (c) those bitterly opposed to any international policy which might lead to war.

The first two groups of voters are on the whole unlikely to be frightened away by association with overt Communists. The third group, however, is much the largest and a good deal of it is in areas, such as the rural Midwest, where the Communists have no influence whatever and are indeed feared and distrusted. But this is precisely the group that is most important to the Communist purpose, which is, of course, to discredit the bipartisan foreign policy.

Atom Toys

Just as reports from New York note a marked decline in the fortunes of the entertainment industry, including, presumably, the Saturday afternoon serial, there comes the announcement that a Hagerstown, Md., concern has been licensed to manufacture an atomic energy outfit for children. In other words, Junior now is to get his thrills in the home. Moreover, the atomic energy set is authentic to the extent of including a sample of uranium ore. Whether it also includes a mushroom cloud is not stated.

It would be nice to think that the use of these toy sets would be directed at peaceful pursuits, such as experimentation with radio isotopes. But given the predilections of their elders, the temptations of the kids to play atom bomb may be irresistible. Anyone who has witnessed the cutthroat tactics of the junior portion of the younger generation with such passe implements as tin soldiers, model tanks and death rays knows the intensity with which the new toy is likely to be used. Though the social contribution of atomic toys is doubtful, perhaps it is just as well that the youngsters receive this sort of matter-of-fact introduction to the force their parents have been unable to master and to the kind of world they may have to live—or die—in. But certainly there are simpler ways, such as the marketing of a Junior Safecracking Set, to teach the little darlings how to blow themselves to smithereens.

Soviet Offer

Moscow's promise to feed Berlin and furnish light and power to the population puts the Russo-Western tussle in a somewhat different setting. It enables the Western powers to concentrate on their rights in the German capital instead of on their responsibilities for succoring 2¼ million people. The date that the Soviet promise will come into effect is August 1, or seven days hence, during which time the people can be fed and maintained by means of the Western airlift. The question of what to do when the air lift could no longer be sustained as a general provisioner is thus relegated to the background.

But it would be as premature to rejoice over the news of the Russian decision as it was last weekend to see no alternative to war. To be sure, the Russians have not attached conditions to their offer, but, according to the Moscow newspapers, they still profess a determination to coerce the Western powers into quitting Berlin, even though the Russians feel they can no longer be put in the position of starving Berlin in order to accomplish that objective. It is Western insistence on recognition of this right in Berlin, together with the Western demand for relaxation of the Soviet siege, that prevents West and East from embarking on fresh negotiations.

Granted a Soviet climbdown on these points, the Western powers are at one nowadays in favoring a resumption of Russo-Western discussions on Germany as well as on Berlin, in accordance with the Soviet suggestion. The Western change of tone in this respect is unmistakable, and it is sensible, for it is the fundamental rule in diplomacy that conversations can never be excluded. That is diplomacy's business, and the Western powers have nothing to lose in inquiring what is now in the Soviet mind in regard to Germany. Moscow in its note of July 15 made a great point of the charge that the Western powers were abetting the dismemberment of Germany by providing for a new government at Frankfurt. This idea could be abandoned without loss of face to the Western powers, for the proposition is distasteful to the Germans, anyway.

On two points, however, the Western powers should be immovable. One is their opposition to the Molotov thesis for a centralized government for Germany. A loose federation of German states is the political organization that should be aimed at, if not, in view of ERP and the movement to integrate Europe, a commonwealth of German states. No more Reich is the prime lesson of three great wars within three quarters of a century. The other point which can admit of no compromise is that control of the Ruhr must be kept in Western hands. Output as well as distribution should be put in care of an international authority limited to wholly European powers, and we agree with John Foster Dulles that if Britain refuses to be a European power to the extent of pooling some part of her sovereignty with the Europeans, she has no legitimate place on such an authority. The management should be part of the setup of an integrated Europe.

The possibility that the crisis in Berlin may wind up in a conference on Germany lends extra weight to the five-power discussion in Europe on a defense union. For the first time military officers have been included from the United States and Canada. This is the beginning of the "association" authorized in the Vandenberg resolution on military aid to western Europe. We hope the North Americans will work single-mindedly to promote a supernational establishment to be armed in part by the United States. Nothing less would be an instrument of security, and time is overdue for decision. In this matter the lessening of the crisis in Berlin does not diminish the need for integrated defense, though the crisis spurred the new get-together; it merely gives, we hope, a breathing spell in which to put into practice the lessons that are being learned from Soviet intimidation.

MILL

Who is smiling there when the morning's hazy,
And Silence wears a mouse gray coat
And the woodland muffles up its throat
In mist? And again, during the lazy
Forenoon, when no bird haunts the air,
And not even the mill's green water
Remembers the little daughter
And her paper boats—who is smiling there?

Someone does, I know, though there's no call
Ever rises, and only the dust grows
Day by day along the empty rows
Of the Miller's bins, and over all
The flour stains the spiders trudge and weave,
And down along the shadowed floors
The tiny ones go back and forth, explore
Endlessly the finite trails they leave.

For often, when the sun's poking through
The crumbling roof, and the afternoon
Is quiet as a small mosquito's tune,
And nothing in the whole world could be new,
Often, then, I've gone down there and lain
Waiting and watching—just my heart and I—
And felt a sigh, the very faintest sigh,
And someone smiling quietly again.

Letters To The Editor

Communications must be addressed to the editor and must carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

"Success And Failure"

It was with shocked disbelief that I read your editorial of July 20, "Success and Failure," lauding the peculiar virtues of Mr. Leo Durocher's brand of Americanism. I even looked for a tongue-in-cheek tone to the writing. Unable to find such a slant, I finally decided that the article was written to test readers' reactions.

This is a letter to tell you that at least one man's cynicism has not reached the depths of the brand of Americanism you praise, that of winning and the hell with how it's done. The the vicious implications of such a stand are horrible to contemplate when applied universally. You have unequivocally placed yourself against the teachings of fair play which most Americans have at least paid lip service to in all aspects of life, especially in sports.

ARTHUR K. TYNER.
Washington.

Congratulations on your very neat condemnation of the philosophy boasted of as Americanism: "the thing is to win and the hell with how you do it." Such opportunism has undoubtedly made this country "strong and great." But the necessary sacrifice of integrity has also left the people confused in the matter of moral values, and the country unprepared for its present position of world leadership.

BARBARA O'NEIL.
Eastpines, Md.

One might say that your wonderful concept of Americanism is a slight repudiation of this Nation's traditional ethos.

JOHN E. GARDNER.
Washington.

I believe Mr. Durocher by his associations, his record of blasphemy, his pattern of living and his methods of achieving what you consider success, would obviously justify any action taken by individuals or groups of individuals in removing him from a position of influence upon the immature minds of the youth of Brooklyn or any other city.

PETER GORMAN.
Washington.

Editor's Note—This was written in a satirical vein—a warning to us not to run any more pieces in the manner of Swift.

"Fixed Star"

Please accept my warmest congratulations on your splendid July 1 editorial about the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship and its suit to be withdrawn from the Attorney General's blacklist. Your sane and reasonable article could do more to suppress un-American activities than a whole month of "hearings" by Mr. J. Parnell Thomas.

As you sensibly point out, the issue is not whether one agrees with the council's program, but the very disturbing and profound question: can any Government official be permitted to define what is or is not orthodox in respect to people's thoughts? It is becoming uncomfortably apparent that the objective of the "loyalty" rage, at present, is not loyalty but conformity, which (to quote another great Supreme Court decision) gives us only "the unanimity of the graveyard." Keep up the good work: we need so much more of it.

KATHERINE L. HARRIS.
Great Neck, N. Y.

"Home On The Range"

Congratuations on your splendid editorial "Home on the Range" in the issue of July 11. Such editorials should help a great deal to arouse the owners of our Federal lands—all the citizens of the United States—to the serious threat to the integrity of their property and to the relatively insignificant contribution to the Nation's meat supply by this small minority of the Western stockmen that purports to represent the stockmen of America, and infers that its production of meat from the National forests is vital to the Nation's economy. The public needs more facts as given in your splendid editorial.

Transit Traffic

In the published reasons why the transit company should be given an increase in rates is the contention the volume of traffic has fallen off.

This seems to be the reverse of the law of supply and demand. Certainly when jobs are scarce in the employment market, workers are expected to accept less wages, not more.

Many riders seem to be against the fare increase because they find buses and cars as crowded as during the war. The situation warrants a thorough investigation. For instance, following another fare boost, the company may find itself deeper in the red than before.

Pershing's Humor

Current tributes to General Pershing, whose military concepts and ruthless acts I admired while serving on his staff in France, attribute to him a Prussian iciness and lack of humor.

An observation to the contrary was made in mid-1918, in Paris, where I had been sent to a conference, so wordy that afterward I wondered whether the Crillon bar was surviving the war. It proved to be peopled with officers, British and French. The bar mirror was posted with copies of an order, signed John J. Pershing, strictly forbidding the serving of hard liquor to American officers, in uniform, in public.

I mentioned a cocktail to the barkeep, he snapped the glass onto the bar, when three tall American officers clanked in. The leader had that unmistakable profile. I was motioning to the barkeep to forget it, but no need, he was already at attention before the general, setting them up. An aide, taller even than Pershing pointed to the placard, Pershing raised his cocktail in the same direction and toasted his order, in public.

He did have a sense of humor.

Mr. Lippmann's Criticism

Walter Lippmann was indignant in his July 19 column because President Truman waited outside during the Democratic convention in Philadelphia. It seems picayunish for Mr. Lippmann to be so upset about that since it has always been typically American to dispense with formality and unnecessary dignity when practical efficiency can better serve.

Political struggles are seldom pretty. They need not be. It is enough that they are good for our American way of life. They are the source of vitality to our democracy. And it is good that even a President must step down from his pedestal, roll up his sleeves and work as hard as his opponent to win the people's vote.

As for a special session of Congress—where better can members of each party prove to the people the sincerity of their platforms? Their acts in Congress during the next few months could speak far more eloquently than all their political speeches. Mr. Lippmann ascribed political motives and abuse of power to the manner in which Mr. Truman called the special session. Perhaps so, but under our system when two parties are vying for power such motives usually redound to the public benefit.

VIOLET CLARK.

Walter Lippmann says that Truman's convening Congress is a deliberate effort to show the voters that they must choose between Truman's legislative proposals and the legislative record of the Eightieth Congress. Since Truman's proposals as stated in the Democratic platform are very similar to those professed in the Republican platform, I think it is more of an effort to show that the Republicans don't mean what they say and don't say what they mean.

BEBE BARRON.
Springfield, Va.

I cannot join Mr. Lippmann's picayune criticisms of Mr. Truman's premature arrival at the convention hall as violating in some way "a decent respect for the forms of democracy." Even a pundit of Mr. Lippmann's omniscience would have had difficulty in estimating the durability of political "windbags" in their moment of glory before the microphone and television camera. I fail to see where Mr. Truman's waiting, first in Senator McGrath's office and then in the alley outside the convention hall trying to avoid the oppressive heat, as opposed to Mr. Dewey's waiting in his hotel, in any way intimidated the convention and violated the tenets of democracy and good taste as intimated by Mr. Lippmann.

Mr. Lippmann states "the Congress belongs to the whole people, not to a party" and berates the President for his "abuse of the constitutional power to convene it in extraordinary session." Would that Mr. Lippmann would instruct the Republican oligarchy, Messrs. Martin, Halleck, Allen, Taber et al, who obstructed many measures desired by the vast majority of the members of Congress and our citizens that "the Congress belongs to the whole people." This autocratical, obstructive leadership was in effect repudiated in many points by the Republican platform.

Various Republican partisans are trying to rationalize their position by asserting that members of the Eightieth Congress are not responsible for carrying out the new Republican platform. With few exceptions the members of the Eightieth Congress are standing for reelection in the Eighty-first under the new platform. Independent voters might well look askance at their sincerity should they indulge in manuevers to prevent votes on the various measures sponsored by the Republican platform by use of such devices as precipitating filibusters on "civil rights," adjournment, etc.

Calling Washington

Wallace's Dilemma

PHILADELPHIA.—The arrest of top officials of the Communist Party in the United States puts Henry Wallace in a most unhappy position. Coming on the eve of the convention of his third party here in Philadelphia, it forces him to make a decision that he has long sought to evade.

In reality, of course, he has no choice. He has gone so far with the shrewd managers who operate on the fringes of communism that only one course would seem to be open to him. He must espouse the cause of the Communists who are raising the cry of persecution.

William Z. Foster and the others had scarcely been arrested when the National Committee of the Communist Party issued a two-page statement. The significant passage of that statement said:

"Terrified of the growing support for the Wallace-Taylor ticket, the Democratic high command is seeking to brand the new party as 'criminal' because among the opponents of Wall Street's two old parties and their candidates are the Communists, who also join with all other progressives in supporting the new people's antiwar party."

The significance lies in the identification of interest between the Communists and the "new party." From the beginning this same strategy has been clear. The Communist Party took the credit for initiating the Wallace movement and every effort has been made to build up the relationship.

WALLACE is not a Communist and he has never been a Communist. There are indications that the fond embrace of communism has made him increasingly unhappy. In an informal talk in New Hampshire he went so far as to express the wish that the Communists would enter their own ticket in the presidential election. Then, said Wallace, I might lose 100,000 votes but I would gain 3,000,000.

But the Communists have not taken the hint nor are they likely to. They see in Wallace a useful symbol to use in recruiting a following which would otherwise be frightened by the label communism.

The growing split between Communists and fellow travelers, on the one hand, and non-Communist liberals and radicals, on the other hand, has stimulated the report that Wallace would withdraw. When he is asked about that possibility, he answers in a tired voice that he intends to go on to the end of the road.

He sounds, in private conversation at least, like a man who finds himself in a wretched situation which he had not foreseen. And even if he knew how to get himself out of it, those who have become his chief advisers would make it all but impossible for one of Wallace's malleable temperament.

IT IS too early to say whether the Communist cry of persecution will convince any others than the faithful who are ready to take up whatever line is ordered. In recent months many Americans with no connection whatsoever with communism have been deeply concerned by the way in which individuals have been condemned for their beliefs. Hysteria in the aftermath of the war has approached the phobia stage, as Bert Andrews of the New York Herald Tribune shows so effectively in his just-published book, Washington Witch Hunt.

Trial in the Federal courts is, however, something quite different. Here there will be carefully prescribed procedure in the long tradition at the root of American law, which assumes that a man is innocent until he is proved guilty. This will not be the House Un-American Activities Committee with its slapdash, hit-or-miss method of smearing anyone who comes before it.

The Government will have to produce conclusive evidence to show that Communist officials are trying to overthrow the Government by force and violence. This charge has been frequently made, and it will be important to have a decision by the highest court of the land.

For, of course, the final determination will be made by the Supreme Court. The test should be advanced as rapidly as possible since so much turns on the decision.

The indicted Communists will do everything they can to make themselves martyrs, conveniently ignoring the fact that they persistently subvert and pervert the law to their own uses when it suits their convenience. Nor should the political force of martyrdom be discounted.

There are millions of Americans who feel they cannot get a square deal because of discriminations and barriers raised against them. They are not Communists. But they may be attracted to Communism and to the third party if they feel there is no other way out.

"Courageous" Germans

The story from Berlin by John G. Norris that was featured on the front page of your July 16 paper would be more complete if it told what some of these "courageous" Berlin leaders, pictured as fighters for democracy, were doing four years ago—what they were fighting for and what against—and suggested, perhaps, what other courses of action they might possibly pursue now than that which they are following.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

What Does The Kremlin Want?

WHAT IS the grand prize for which the Kremlin is willing to bring the world to the very edge of a war which the Kremlin must know it can never win? No one can know for certain the answer to that question. Yet some of the experts are beginning to suspect, on the Basis of available evidence, that the Russians now intend actually to incorporate their eastern European empire, including the Soviet zone of Germany, into the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. For this purpose it is essential that the Western powers evacuate Berlin.

One important item of evidence to support this theory is a recent speech by Otto Grotewohl, Communist leader of the Soviet zone. The speech was delivered to the high chieftains of the Communist SED, and it bears all the earmarks of having been ghost-written for Grotewohl by his Russian masters. Therefore it is being studied with earnest attention in all the Western capitals.

The speech makes no bones about the desperate economic crisis into which the Russian policy of plunder has plunged the Soviet zone of Germany. Indeed, Grotewohl neatly sums up the crisis: "Hunger is the cause of low production; but to remove hunger, industrial production must itself be raised." The Soviet formula for breaking this vicious circle, as announced by Grotewohl, consists in effect of tranforming the Soviet zone of Germany into an economic and political replica of the Soviet Union.

THUS "diversionist" and "bourgeois" political elements are to be ruthlessly eliminated. This sounds the death knell for the stooge non-Communist parties in the Soviet zone. Further, the Communist Party itself is to be transformed into an "elite" party (kaderpartei) and "unreliable" elements are to be purged. The purge has, according to reliable reports, already started in Saxony. In short, the Soviets have decided to deal with an economic crisis of a sort familiar in the Soviet Union by political measures also familiar in the Soviet Union.

Moreover, Grotewohl repeatedly insisted in this Soviet-sponsored speech that the Soviet zone Communists are to have no more truck with the West. Henceforth the Soviet zone must be exclusively and wholly "oriented toward the Soviet Union." Grotewohl even hinted that the "German unity" theme which has been the chief instrument of Soviet and Communist propaganda in Germany is now to be abandoned. "For us as a party," he announced, "it is at present impossible to rely on any sort of groupings with the West. It is impossible at the present moment even with regard to German unity."

It is believed that this speech, taken together with other developments, may have the most crucial significance. Some of the other developments are: the purges impending or in progress in eastern Europe; the Kremlin's thunders against the "nationalism" of its Communist stooges; the disciplining of the western Communist Parties, and their transformation into "elite" parties, wholly dependable instruments of Soviet foreign policy; the Tito episode, and the siege of Berlin itself.

ALL THIS falls into a neat pattern. The pattern in turn implies that the Kremlin may well have concluded that the political capture of western Europe is now impossible, and that the Western powers cannot be blackmailed into scrapping their measures for the economic revival of western Germany. Already, to prevent a repetition of the Tito episode, and to counter the magnetism of a reviving west, the process of securing absolute control of the whole "Molotov area" is under way.

Some experts reason that the final objective of this process is to bring the entire Soviet European empire, including the Soviet zone of Germany, into the Soviet Union, thus providing absolute insurance against defection or revolt. This could be done on a "voluntary" basis, with Romania (already under pressure to join the Soviet Union) leading the parade. But it cannot be done while the Western allies remain in Berlin. That is why, according to this theory, the Soviets are willing to risk war to force a Western evacuation of Berlin.

THE THEORY is neat, but it is wholly speculative. It will soon undergo the test of events. For some observers believe that, although the Russians would dearly love to see the Westerners out of Berlin, their real objective is to force another German conference.

At this conference they could be expected to do their utmost to embarrass the West. They could offer apparently important concessions to the Germans—a central government so designed as to be subject to Kremlin control, some reduction in reparations, an offer to withdraw all troops and the formation of a German army (officered by the MVD). By offering spurious concessions, while refusing to negotiate on the real problem of Germany, the Soviets might hope to keep western Germany, and indeed all western Europe in a state of turmoil in which recovery would be impossible.

It will soon be known whether this is the real objective of the siege of Berlin. For in their forthcoming note to Moscow, the allies can be expected to make it entirely clear that they are prepared to negotiate again on Germany, provided the blockade is first lifted. If this note is also rejected, it will be wholly evident that Berlin itself is the minimum Soviet objective. Then this country and the Western world will have need of courage and quiet determination.

Broadcast Cites Value of VD Radio Work

Effectiveness of educational campaigns to combat ignorance about venereal diseases was spotlighted last night in a broadcast at 10:30 o'clock by radio station WTOP.

The program was a summary and report on "The Undiscovered," a series of 14 previous documentary broadcasts about venereal disease, particularly syphilis.

After the original series, 739 more men, women and youths showed up at District clinics for treatment in June than during the average four-week period during the previous six months, Dr. S. Ross Taggart, head of the District's venereal disease bureau, reported during last night's broadcast.

More Apply for Treatment

Clinics, moreover, reported a 45 per cent increase in the number of persons who applied for treatment of primary and secondary syphilis. And though the broadcast series focused on syphilis, gonorrhea cases jumped 189 per cent during June, Dr. Taggart said.

The pioneer scripts of "The Undiscovered," written and narrated by Gunnar Back, will serve as models for programs to be made available to radio stations throughout the country, Thomas I. Richmond of the United States Public Health Service said.

Last night's broadcast included presentation of voices of some of the venereal disease victims, who told in their own words, sometimes halting and confused, sometimes filled with pain, how they first learned that they had symptoms of the disease, listening to "The Undiscovered" program.

Mother Infects Daughter

One of these was a mother, about 35, who told how she unwittingly transmitted syphilis to her daughter. The mother implored all prospective parents to have blood tests.

Another was a feverish, emaciated youth of 27, whose infection was discovered too late. The germs had attacked his brain; he now is an inmate of St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Radio Station WTOP is preparing a broadcast on gonorrhea, similar to "The Undiscovered" series, in connection with the current year-long District drive against gonorrhea.

Postlude

Spectacular Latin Ballet Is Presented

By Paul Hume

Against the barbaric magnificence of the Aztec Esplanade of the Pan American Union, ballet of spectacular beauty was danced last night.

The Washington Concert Ballet, directed by Lisa Gardiner and Mary Day, presented dances with music from five Latin American countries. The United States Army Band added music from five more, plus the United States.

Brilliant flashes of lightning and distant thunder heightened the exotic atmosphere. Dancing in costumes of gorgeous colors, the ensemble wove intricate patterns of design and hue back and forth across the stage. A stunning conception of the legend of Quetzal set to music by Carlos Chavez was a perfect opening to a unique program.

In this dance, folk legend, primitive movement and savage beauty were made eloquent through the choreographers' art. At climactic moments, a traditional ballet gesture or pose added new beauty to the picture.

Some superb dancing was contributed by Mary Day and Monte White in La Bamba, and by Irmina Hardin, looking like a true realization of Carmen, in a Danza Negra.

For a Batuque fantasy, torches lighted across the front of the stage, combined with red flares, made Shirley Beaty's witch doctor a vivid thing. The Army Band, playing under Capt. Hugh Curry, provided smoothly, competent support for the dances (except the Chavez, played on records) and added several works without dancing. Keig Garvin's trombone playing in "They Didn't Believe Me" was top handling of that instrument.

Rich in imagination and excellent in execution, the Washington Concert Ballet's program is something that ought to be made available again in the near future for those who could not see it last night. We are grateful to the Pan American weatherman for holding off unfriendly rains and appreciate the contributions of thunder and lightning.

Special Term Held Possible D. C. Benefit

The special session set for Monday is a great opportunity for Congress to do something constructive for the District and at the same time avoid a partisan "political fiasco," in the opinion of one of the few Senators back on Capitol Hill this week.

Though not a member of the District committee, Senator Zales N. Ecton, Montana Republican, has some ideas about "overlooked" legislation and improvements needed by the District.

For one thing, he told The Washington Post yesterday Congress should "look into the jurisdictions of policing the various sections of the District area," some of which are undermanned, in his opinion.

Also, he said, some slum clearance program, similar to the one which failed to receive appropriations in the regular session, should be begun.

These and other District measures, such as the pay raise for District employes, are "things everyone should be able to agree on without wasting time on partisan politics," according to Ecton, who said he declined a bid for membership on the District Committee last year because of other assignments.

"All the people of the United States are interested in the District of Columbia, which belongs to them and is in the charge of Congress," said Senator Ecton, "so legislation for the District would have no political implications in this special session."

Gen. Pershing Estate Valued At $274,000

The late Gen. John J. Pershing left an estate of approximately $274,000, according to his will, filed for probate in District Court yesterday.

The petition for probate was filed by his son, Francis Warren Pershing, Col. George E. Adamson, his aide for many years, and the Riggs National Bank, executors named in the will, drawn up October 24, 1941.

The petition lists cash on deposit with bankers and brokers, $30,800; stocks, bonds and notes, $240,000; a 1942 Cadillac, $1620; and personal and household effects, $2000.

It also lists a royalty contract on an unfinished manuscript of General Pershing's memoirs, on which no value has been placed.

The will provides for cash bequests to several friends and for distribution of General Pershing's decorations, uniforms and military equipment. It provides that his memoirs be completed and the royalties be added to the estate.

The bulk of the estate is to be placed in trust for his sister, Miss Anna May Pershing, who is to receive an annual income of $6000 from it. Upon her death, the estate is to be turned over to his son.

2 C. U. Priests Made Prelates By Pope Pius

Two priests, now teaching at Catholic University, have been elevated to the rank of Domestic Prelate by Pope Pius XII, Catholic University has been informed by the Apostolic Delegate, the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani.

The new monsignori are the Rev. Dr. William J. McDonald, associate professor of philosophy in the School of Philosophy, and the Rev. Dr. Martin J. Higgins, associate professor of Patristic Greek and Byzantine history in the School of Sacred Theology.

Both priests are members of the archdiocese of San Francisco and will be invested with the robes of office there at a later date.

Monsignor McDonald, a native of Ireland, came to the United States in 1928. He has been at Catholic University as student and faculty member since 1936. A native of San Francisco, Monsignor Higgins came to the university in 1933 for graduate work and remained as a teacher.

Ohio Food Trucks Off on Goodwill German Mission

Sidney, Ohio, July 22 (AP).—Designed as a starter for a campaign of better understanding of America abroad, a caravan of eight trucks loaded with food will start from here Saturday, with the final destination Germany.

The trucks will contain 8000 boxes of food weighing 32 pounds each. All have been contributed by Shelby County residents who have joined in a citizens' movement, sparked by a Shelby County farmer, to knit this country and the foreign land closer together.

The shipment is due to arrive in New York Monday, and to be loaded on the Flying Enterprise for the Atlantic crossing.

The idea for the project came from Lewis Warbington, who was sent to Germany as a food consultant.

Back home, he sat down with his friends Lyman Allen and William Hoewischer, and the idea of the food-good will mission was born.

12:15 p. m.—Mr. and Mrs. Warren Pershing, son and daughter-in-law of late General Pershing.

Parking Ban Relaxation Is Refused

The Commissioners yesterday turned down a request by Northeast businessmen to relax the parking ban ordered May 11 on Benning rd. ne., between 15th and 34th sts.

The ban was imposed because of the high accident rate on the 26-foot-wide roadway. Traffic Director George E. Keneipp said 239 accidents—about 20 a month—occurred there during 1947. The rate increased to 30 a month during the first four months of 1948.

Following the parking ban, the number has been reduced to 28 a month. Traffic volume on Benning rd. has increased 46 per cent since 1941, Keneipp added.

Relaxation of the ban was urged by the Northeast Businessmen's Association, the Kingman Park Civic Association and merchants in the area who said lack of parking space was reducing their business.

While turning down the request, the Commissioners indicated they would be willing to reconsider the ban if the Public Utilities Commission permits Capital Transit Company to substitute buses for streetcars on the Benning car line next spring.

Dalstrom Pays Fine of $25

The Commissioners yesterday ordered Ivan J. Dalstrom, Fire Department superintendent of machinery, to pay a fine of $25 for driving a department vehicle improperly to cause an accident last April.

Dalstrom had been found guilty of the same charge May 19 before a Fire Department Trial Board, which recommended he be fined $125 and lose approximately $150 in pay as a result of his suspension following the accident.

The Commissioners, in effect, reduced this fine by $100 and restored Dalstrom's pay for the period of suspension. Both actions were recommended by Fire Chief Clement Murphy.

Two intoxication counts against Dalstrom had been dismissed by the trial board.

The Commissioners set aside the trial board decision following appeal by Dalstrom's attorney, on the ground that Assistant Corporation Counsel Henry E. Wixon, who was chairman of the trial board, had taken an improper oath when he became a member of the board.

Chief Murphy then asked for a corporation counsel's opinion on whether Dalstrom should be retried on all three charges or only the improper driving charge.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, in his opinion, said he believed "no useful purpose will be served by presenting these (intoxication) charges once again and that the chief engineer may in good conscience withdraw them."

The improper driving charge, he added, is "one of a minor nature which could be disposed of before the Chief Engineer on summary hearing." West said one of the Commissioners (he did not specify whom) had stated during consideration of the appeal that a $25 fine "would have been more commensurate with the gravity of the offense."

World Wheat Price Seen Dropping

London, July 22 (U.P.).—Food Minister John Strachey said today the price of world wheat is dropping steadily and will continue to do so.

"The price of wheat is steadily dropping," Strachey told a news conference. "That suggests the drop will continue much further and faster. It already is down to $2.25 on the Chicago market, which is $1 a bushel less than nine months ago.

"The cereals and rice position throughout the world is easier in relation to the present level of effective demand."

Strachey was asked about rumors that Britain is negotiating to buy Canadian wheat at $1.50 per bushel for the next crop year.

"That is the first I've heard about it," he replied. "The price for this coming year, 1948-49, was fixed some time ago at $2. Negotiations for 1949-50 have not begun yet, and in any event they need not be concluded before the end of the calendar year."

One on the Aisle—

Humor Earthy, Or Humor Mild

By Richard L. Coe

TEX RITTER may never have been Governor of Texas, but he's a durn better entertainer than the former Governor of Louisiana. Tex has succeeded Jimmie Davis as the Capitol's headliner, offering much the same sort of wilderness sophistication, but it's certainly a deal more crisp to listen to.

On the Capitol's screen is a gentle little family comedy called "Give My Regards to Broadway," and though it has some musical numbers it never, praise be, gets to Broadway. Dan Dailey and Charles Winninger play the important parts in this one and they're both skilled and likable. Nothing to rob the kids' penny bank for, understand, but nice enough.

A picture titled "Give My Regards to Broadway" not laid on the street of a million shattered hearts, who'reya tryin' ta kid? It happens like this:

Pop Winninger never was a headliner as the juggling Great Albert, but he and Mom Fay Bainter didn't do badly and the growing kids helped their act until vaudeville crashed. Then pop took a job in a Jersey plant to tide over until seals, jugglers and dance acts were in demand again. The family settled down happily in Jersey, pop reached a responsible job with the plant, but all through the years he viewed it only as a stopgap until he and the family would be back on the country's stages. Daughter Barbara Lawrence and Daughter Jane Nigh got themselves married to respectable types. Fay liked her home and icebox and only Son Dan Dailey was willing to take their juggling practice seriously.

Finally comes the chance pop has been waiting for, but by then even Dan is interested in getting ahead as an engineer. All is well with all and pop eventually is able to face the past for what is it and not just as an appetizer for future stage glory.

Granted there are loopholes in this—never once does pop or the family check up to find that there still is such a thing as vaudeville and never once does pop look in on his pals of the old days—still there's a good deal to be said for such a story. No doubt this is what happened to some of the two-a-day's smaller acts, and the tone of the picture is sincere. Lloyd Bacon has directed with nostalgic affection and the screen play by Samuel Hoffenstein and Elizabeth Reinhardt has at least a touch of originality.

Winninger's pop is soundly acted and Dailey's lanky dancing to the tunes of the past has certainly typed the young player as an expert in revivifying the past. Miss Bainter gives the mother her customary sincerity and the balance of the company, while little known, is as the roles demand.

Tex and "White Flash"

Tex Ritter's "in person" appearance brought an overflow first house yesterday. The hero of all those Westerns brought along his horse, "White Flash," his guitar, some songs, some gags and a lively Tennessee lass who's unbilled but who pleased yesterday's customers. Ritter's humor is a good deal earthier than you might expect from the traditional pristine quality associated with movie heroes who kiss only their horses. Still, his old friends gave him a big welcome.

Ladd Lyon has a fine balancing act and Betty Jane Smith twirls happily after Milt Slosser's organ didoes have loosened up vocal cords.

Woman Asking Divorce Calls Mate Gambler

A Hyattsville woman has filed suit in Prince Georges County Circuit Court for a divorce, saying in her bill of complaint that her husband is a "professional gambler . . . having an income of approximately $100,000 a year."

According to court records, the suit was filed last Monday by Mrs. Bethea A. Becker, asking a divorce from Robert Shelton Becker on grounds of cruelty.

The plaintiff lists both hers and her husband's address as 2003 Patterson rd., Hyattsville, although her bill of complaint states she left the home last June after she had been beaten by her husband. They were married in October, 1947. The papers do not list Mrs. Becker's present address.

Her bill of complaint alleges "the defendant is a professional gambler, is the owner of real estate valued at approximately $50,000, personal property valued at $25,000 and has an income of approximately $100,000."

No Means of Support

The plaintiff contends in her suit that she is unemployed, is expecting a baby and has no means of support, and asks "such sums of money as may be necessary for alimony" pending litigation.

Court officials said no answer to the suit has been filed by Becker, but a hearing has been set tentatively for July 26. Pending the hearing, the court has awarded her temporary alimony of $300 a month and $100 for legal fees.

Earlier records of the court show that Becker filed a suit for annulment of their marriage last December, but there has been no disposition of the case. In his suit, he alleged that his wife was granted a Florida divorce just four days before their marriage, after she had gone to Florida several months previously, "stayed for one day and simulated residence therein."

Contends It Was Fraud

Basis for the annulment action is Becker's contention that the Florida divorce was obtained by fraud.

Ralph W. Powers, attorney for Becker in the annulment proceedings, said he had not been served with a copy of Mrs. Becker's complaint and had no comment on the action.

Prince Georges County Police, informed of Mrs. Becker's allegation that her husband is a "professional gambler," said they were not familiar with Becker's activities. They added, however, that he has no recent record of arrests.

Chincoteague Pony Catch Set Thursday

Chincoteague, Va., July 22 (AP).—Retreating before the advance of civilization, the famous Chincoteague ponies are no longer found on the island in the numbers that once roamed the salt marshes.

All the same, residents of the Eastern Shore island are busily preparing for the annual "pony-penning day," next Thursday, confident the colorful affair will be just as successful as ever, and that some 15,000 visitors from all over the country will be on hand.

Although the wild ponies on Chincoteague itself are few and scattered at the north and south ends of the strip of land, neighborboring Assateague Island is well-populated with the free-roaming animals. Most of the herds formerly on Chincoteague are on Assateague now, as well as the ponies that once inhabited Wallops Island, now taken over by the Government.

Next Wednesday, the eve of pony-penning day, the Assateague herds will be rounded up and will swim across the narrow strait that separates the two islands.

Pony-penning day is a feature of the Chincoteague firemen's carnival, which began July 17 and continues through July 31. This is the twenty-fourth carnival conducted by the island's volunteer fire company, although the pony-penning dates back much farther.

Tuck Rejects Fairfax Plea For School Aid

Gov. William M. Tuck has rejected a plea from the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors for a special Virginia General Assembly session to provide funds for school construction.

Tuck's letter to the board was similar to one he sent several months ago to Nelson County officials, who also had requested a special session.

The Governor said he regarded school construction as a local matter and suggested local officials reexamine local tax sources before asking further State aid.

The Fairfax officials had suggested a general sales and use tax for the State sufficient to bring in ten million dollars a year, which sum would be distributed among the counties according to population and school attendance.

Hyatt Mansion Evictions Await Order

Hyattsville City Attorney Nicholas Orem, jr., last night was awaiting receipt of a copy of the Hyattsville city council's resolution on eviction of Hyatt mansion residents before posting, the official notice on the historic house.

The council adopted the resolution Monday night when the structure was deemed "unsafe for human occupancy." Orem indicated that he would post notices declaring the house unsafe as soon as he is formally notified of the council's action. If occupants fail to move after the posting they will be subject to prosecution, he said.

The building is occupied by 10 families, several having small children.

Dutch Leader Gives Up Trying to Form Cabinet

The Hague, July 22 (AP).—J. L. M. Beel gave up trying today to form a new cabinet.

Beel, head of the Catholic People's Party and premier since May, 1946, was asked 10 days ago to form a new cabinet. His government was dissolved following elections early this month in connection with the Indonesian problem.

The Dutch Labor Party has refused to take part in a cabinet which includes members of the Christian Historian Party and members of the Party for Freedom and Democracy.

Harlem's Eagle Visits Berlin, Wants to Stay

Berlin, July 22 (AP).—Hubert F. Julian, who calls himself the "black eagle" of Harlem, offered today to shovel coal, drop a bomb or do anything to stay in Berlin and serve with the United States Army.

He used to be the Ethiopian air force—that is, until he wrecked Emperor Haile Selassie's personal plane during the Italian invasion. He was a colonel in the Ethiopian army in 1942. Now he has turned businessman.

"I would take a reduction in rank to come here and serve," he said.

Decision Due On 17-Family Eviction Today

Chief Judge George P. Barse of Municipal Court is expected to rule today on whether 17 families, including 26 children, must move out of their rooms in the Winter Building, 1436 U st. nw., where they are subtenants.

Judge Barse on Wednesday granted a motion by the subtenants to intervene in a suit recently won by the Kass Realty Co., Inc., 4461 Connecticut ave. nw., owners.

The Kass firm won a judgment for repossession of the building, as well as $2265 in back rental, from L. E. Diggs, who had leased it on April 1 and sublet rooms to the 17 families. Diggs did not appear in Landlord and Tenant Court when these claims were heard on July 7.

The subtenants asked the court through their attorney, James T. Wright, to set aside the judgment and let them continue to stay in the Winter Building rooms. Their contention was that they did not receive the one-week eviction notice that would have allowed them to be heard in the case.

The Kass firm's position is that it has no contract with the subtenants, and that the property is not subject to the Rent Control Act eviction provisions because it is commercial.

Danger Seen in Hiking Scotch Whisky Price

London, July 22 (U.P.).—Col. Alan Gomme-Duncan said in Commons today that an increase in the export price of Scotch whisky might endanger the market in the United States. He added that foreign countries were making "frightful rubbish" and labeling it Scotch whisky.

Gomme-Duncan said he disliked whisky very much himself and never drank it.

Harry K. Thaw Left Estate With $1,211,094 Gross Value

Glens Falls, N. Y., July 22 (AP).—Millionaire Harry K. Thaw left a gross estate of $1,211,094.37, a transfer tax appraisal showed today.

Thaw, 76, died February 22, 1947, at his Miami Beach home. He directed in his will that $10,000 be paid to "Evelyn Nesbit Montani or her son, to whom she gave the name of Russell Thaw."

The appraisal by the Warren County treasurer listed:

Real estate, $48,000; stocks and bonds, $306,657.60; mortgages, notes and cash, $42,184.30; miscellaneous, $55,786.69; a trust fund created under the will of his father, William, $758,465.78.

Thaw met Evelyn Nesbit, a chorus girl, in 1903. They were married in Pittsburgh, his birthplace, in 1905.

Fourteen months later, Thaw burst onto the roof garden of the old Madison Square Garden in New York on its opening night and fired three shots that killed Stanford White, who had designed the landmark.

Thaw alleged that he had acted as a result of White's relations with Miss Nesbit before he married Thaw. He was acquitted of the murder charge but was confined to an asylum, from which he escaped a year later. A jury later declared him sane.

Thaw divorced Evelyn Nesbit a few years after the shooting.

How Military Service And 'Tontine' Affect Retirement Status

(Second in a series of three articles on the Retirement Act.)

No column on retirement could be complete without some mention of our old friend "tontine." In this connection, this question popped up: An employe resigned from the service before April 1, 1948, received his refund—minus the "tontine,' of course—and returns to the service after April 1, 1948. What happens to the money which was labeled "tontine."

The answer is that the employe forfeits the money unless he redeposits the refund. If he makes the redeposit, the "tontine" money is then placed to his credit in the retirement fund as a part of his individual account, and if he should leave the service at some future time his refund (if he is entitled to one) would include the entire amount which in the past had been earmarked "tontine."

Here is one which has to do with the method of crediting service for which a refund has been paid, but the redeposit not made. It is generally quite well understood that if the redeposit is not made no credit at all may be given for the service representing the refund. As there is no limitation now on the number of years of service which may be credited for annuity purposes, it is just good business for an employe to make the redeposit. However, he may find that he is financially unable to do so..

Here is how it will work: While failure to make the redeposit will eliminate the service covered by the refund in computing the rate of annuity, the time must be counted in determining title to annuity. For example: An employe upon reaching the age of 70 had completed a total of 15 years of service. Refund covering 3 years of this service had been withdrawn and had not been redeposited. He would have to retire, regardless of whether he returned the money, as his title to annuity would be based on the 15 years, but in computing the annuity, credit would be given for only 12 years, unless, of course, he made the redeposit.

From time to time, as the need arises, it will be necessary for the commission to make other rulings and interpretations. In fact even though a law may be on the statute books for years, there will always be situations arising which will require interpretation of the law in terms of the situation.

We will now review some of the provisions of the law which have proved to be of special interest but are not easily understood, and take a look at some of the interesting cases that have been handled by the Retirement Division.

I think there is no single provision of the Retirement Act which is of more immediate and special interest to a large group of the members of the retirement system than the method of crediting military service toward civil service retirement. All veterans—not just those who participated in the last World War—need to know exactly how this time is credited. It has been observed that there is a great deal of confusion regarding this subject. Since around 40 per cent of Federal employes are veterans, it should be thoroughly understood.

Here are the things every veteran should know:

1. Military service includes service in the Army, Air Corps, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard.

2. Service must have been honorable and must have been active.

3. Military service may not be counted until the employe has completed five years of civilian service. For example: If an employe is separated from his civilian position after four years of such service, and had served three years with the armed forces, he may receive only a refund of his retirement deductions, as annuity rights are not acquired until five years of civilian service have been performed.

4. This is important. No contribution to the retirement fund is required for any creditable military service. As many will recall, prior to the February 28, 1948, amendment, military service performed after August 1, 1920 (unless the person was carried in a furlough status from his civilian position during the last war emergency), was in the same category as temporary and unclassified service—that is, deposit was required to secure the maximum amount of annuity for the service. Now it is as free as air—it costs nothing and you get full credit for it. This is a real break for veterans who are in the Federal service.

5. Here is another important feature of the 1948 amendment. Prior to this amendment, military service forming the basis for a non-service connected military pension could not be credited toward civil service retirement. This had the effect of cutting off 90 days of the military time from retirement credit. This is no longer true; now the employe may be receiving either a service-connected or non-service-connected disability pension or compensation and still count all of the military time toward his civil service annuity.

6. Military service performed during the last war emergency period while the employe was carried on leave from his civilian position may be counted either as civilian or as military service. In either case, it requires no contribution to the fund. For the sake of simplicity in figuring, it will always be counted as civilian service unless it is to the advantage of the retiring employe to count it as military service. This would be to his advantage only if the base pay he received while a member of the armed forces would work out to give him a higher average salary for the five consecutive years than the base pay for his civilian position.

There are certain conditions, all having to do with employes receiving retired pay, under which military service may not be counted toward civil service retirement.

D. C. Police Refuse to Agree Road Death Is Traffic Fatality

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

HIT BY AUTO—A crowd of sympathizers surrounds Ellen Christensen, 26, of 40 Plattsburg ct. nw., as she sits on the curb holding her injured leg. She was struck by an automobile at 11th and F sts. nw. yesterday afternoon. Police said the car, going south on 11th, afterward hit a streetcar going east on F st. Woman holding the paper is shielding injured girl from the sun. The victim was treated for bruises on the scene by an ambulance doctor and released

Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy and police couldn't agree yesterday whether the death of a 19-year-old youth who fell from a streetcar should be recorded as a traffic fatality.

The victim, Charles Franklin Wilson of 1333 10th st. nw., forced open the center door of a moving northbound streetcar at about 10:40 p. m. Wednesday in the 5700 block of Georgia ave. nw., and fell on his head, police said.

The youth died at Freedmen's Hospital at 2:45 a. m. yesterday. After an autopsy, Dr. Murphy said death resulted from a fractured skull and said it would be considered a traffic fatality.

Detective Sergt. Emmett Waters of the Accident Investigation Unit said it would not be recorded as a traffic death. Final determination will be up to the coroner, Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald.

Before Wilson's death, the District traffic toll for this year stood at 40, the same figure for the date last year. Total deaths in traffic last year were 72.

A pretty girl, an automobile and a streetcar were involved in a traffic accident at 1:10 p. m. at 11th and F sts. nw.

John J. Rowe, 36, of 6106 44th pl., Riverdale, Md., was critically injured about 9 o'clock last night when struck by an automobile while crossing the Washington-Baltimore blvd. in Riverdale.

Rowe was admitted to Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, with a fractured back, broken ankle, possible fractured skull and multiple lacerations.

City Heads Adopt 'Tough' Policy on Getting Increased Budget Requests

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

A tough new economy policy which will ban most new District government jobs and new capital improvement projects in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1949, was adopted yesterday by the Commissioners.

They took the action on the advice of Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler after District department heads, who had been instructed to restrict fiscal 1950 requests to rock-bottom need, submitted preliminary estimates calling for a budget of about $120,100,000.

This year's budget totals only $99,879,483. The department heads asked for expenditures of 105 million dollars out of the general fund alone for 1950, approximately 26 per cent more than this year.

out" during the present fiscal year,

General Fund Reduction Seen

Best available estimates indicate the general fund will be reduced more than five million dollars for 1950 because the city's wartime savings will be "wiped out" during the present fiscal year, Fowler said.

Adding to the dark financial picture, he added, is the possibility that Congress may grant District employes a pay raise without passing a sales tax bill to provide the necessary funds to cover it.

If the pay raise is made retroactive to July 1 this year, and no additional revenue is provided, he warned, the District will end the current fiscal year with a deficit of $7,371,000. This deficit would grow to approximately 20 million dollars by July 1, 1950, unless new revenue sources are found, he said.

New Jobs Must Yield Profit

"We are therefore confronted," the Commissioners said, "with the necessity of establishing a policy so that considerable time will not be consumed in reviewing requests that cannot possible be approved."

"No new positions will be considered," they warned, unless they "assure" an increase in District revenues, result in a saving to the District, are necessary for the operation of new laws, or "absolutely essential for the operation of new facilities."

"Agency heads must indicate what positions can be abolished," they said, "and list positions that have not been filled for the past two fiscal years" when they submit final 1950 budget estimates.

Requests for capital improvement funds, they declared, will be considered only for "completion of projects already authorized," or to provide furniture and equipment for these projects.

New Schools Out

Effect of the order, Fowler said, will be to ban these proposed capital improvements:

New schools or additions worth $3,740,000.

A $750,000 Northwest Health Center.

Improvements worth $5,038,900 for the Welfare Department, which Welfare Director John Tramburg said would have included replacement of the infirmary at the Home for the Aged and Infirm, a new Industrial Home School for white children, and a new National Training School for Colored Girls.

Most of the $1,444,000 asked by the Recreation Department, which Recreation Superintendent Milo F. Christiansen said would have included three new swimming pools, several shelter houses, and improvements at 25 to 30 playgrounds and recreation centers.

No New Libraries

Construction of new branch libraries worth $1,381,000.

A $310,000 apartment house for medical officers at Glenn Dale Sanatorium.

Fowler said funds will be considered, however, for continuation of work on these projects:

A new laboratory building and a new building for pediatrics and crippled children at Gallinger Hospital.

Six public schools, including Walker Jones Elementary, Sousa Junior High, Birney Elementary, Stanton Elementary, Nalle Elementary, and an elementary school in the Oxon Run area.

Salary Raises Possible

A garage and shop building for the District Sanitation Division.

Dormitories at District Training School.

Necessary new sewer and water installation.

Additional funds required by pay increases also will be considered providing they are "fully justified," the Commissioners said, along with increases which result from "increased workload caused by another agency and over which the agency has no control and which cannot be decreased by rigid regulations."

Requests for more money to cover "within-grade salary advancements or longevity promotions" also will be honored, they said.

Steel Shell Around Bungalow Permits Year-Round Records

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

Want to beat the heat in one easy lesson?

Then heed the wisdom of Paul R. Achenbach, a man who spends these torrid days testing—of all things—hot-air furnaces. Believe it or not, he's one of the coolest men in town.

Achenbach, 37, is assistant chief of the heating and air-conditioning section of the National Bureau of Standards. With him it's a pleasure to get in the same room with a hard-working furnace.

It's this way: Over at the bureau is a typical, four-room frame bungalow. Built completely around the bungalow is a steel "shell," with freezing equipment between it and the house capable of sending the temperature down to zero.

But inside the bungalow all is serene, and no hotter than Achenbach's scientists want it. Seventy degrees, perhaps.

Some 200 thermometers inside the four rooms measure the temperature at points on the walls, ceilings, floors, and in between. That's how they determine where furnace heat goes, and where to place a furnace to get the best out of it. The "shell" permits year-round testing.

And when Achenbach and his brother scientists notice the heat a bit more than usual, they simply step into the 5-foot area between bungalow and "shell," and cool off. It ranges from zero to 60 degrees cool in there, at their pleasure.

As a matter of fact, E. M. Tierney, who stays in the house most of the time, can toss snowballs around anytime he wants in that 5-foot space. And sometimes does, he says. He makes them from frost collected on the freezing equipment.

Offers Hot-Day Tips

Canadian-born Achenbach, a veteran of 11 years with the bureau and a man who knows his heat, has a few tips for making the hot days a little more livable.

If you have an attic, he says, put an attic fan in it. Turn it on during the day and pull the hot air out; turn it on at night to pull the cool air in.

Your attic can get as hot as 130 degrees and the heat seeps into the rest of the house. With the fan, your house will be from five to eight degrees cooler.

Most housewives already know about "closing the house down" during the heat of the day, the scientist says. But it's worth repeating:

Close all windows and doors. Pull the shades or venetian blinds down soon after you get up in the morning. Leave the house closed until it's cooler outside than inside—"usually sundown."

If you have awnings, pull them down, too. Everything helps.

Ceiling insulation is helpful, too, Achenbach says, as is wall insulation. "But that costs money, of course," he added. And tell the little woman, the expert suggests, to cut down on her cooking. Stoves and ovens toss off a lot of heat.

Achenbach, married and the father of three children, lives at 1912 North Randolph st., Arlington. He doesn't practice what he preaches—no attic fan.

His house rests on a little knoll, a catch-all for every zephyr. Tall oak trees about the house keep it shady.

"What do I want with an attic fan," he smiles. "It's ten degrees cooler out there anyway."

BEATING THE HEAT—Miss Barbara Friedman, 5304 Chevy Chase pkwy., employed in the Technical Information Office at the United States Bureau of Standards, really needs that heavy coat she's wearing, because she's in a frigid, 5-foot space between a test bungalow and a shell built over and around it. In this area is freezing equipment and the temperature usually ranges from zero to 60 below

Publishers Join Fight On Crime News Curb

National Group Aids Radio Stations Cited for Contempt In Baltimore Court

The American Newspaper Publishers' Association yesterday joined the fight against the Baltimore courts' restrictions on the publication and broadcasting of crime news.

Elisha Hanson, counsel for the ANPA, announced here he would ask the association's board of directors for authority to file a petition with the Maryland Court of Appeals attacking legality of the Baltimore court code.

As a result of the Baltimore court rules, five radio stations and a radio commentator have been cited for contempt in their handling of the Eugene H. James case. James, 31-year-old Baltimore janitor, is the confessed slayer of Carol Bardwell, 11, here in Rock Creek Park and Marsha Brill, also 11, in Baltimore.

Confident of Approval

In announcing that ANPA would attack the Baltimore court rules, Hanson said there is little doubt his proposal will be approved by a telegraphic poll of the directors.

Hanson declared the Baltimore code is "absolutely in conflict" with Supreme Court decisions on freedom of the press and freedom of speech.

Previously, Justin Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters and former associate justice of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, had announced the NAB would take an active part in defending the radio stations against the contempt citations.

The NAB sent its general counsel, Don Petty, to Baltimore to confer with officials of the radio stations and the commentator cited by the courts.

To Support Broadcasters

The Prince Georges County and the Montgomery County Press Associations also have announced they will support the broadcasters in their fight against the court-imposed restrictions.

Specifically, the Baltimore court code prohibits the publication of any statements an accused person makes after he is arrested, any reports about his actions, any discussion of his past criminal record, or any disclosure about evidence found by police.

The two county press associations recently launched a bitter campaign against a proposal by a subcommittee named by the Maryland Court of Appeals, the State's highest tribunal, that it adopt the Baltimore court rules on a Statewide basis.

The contempt citations which have drawn up the battle lines in the Baltimore court rules issue were returned against Stations WITH, WBAL, WCBM and WFBR of Baltimore, Station WSID of Essex, Md., and James Connolly, news editor of WITH.

Suicide Note In Jive Talk Unpuzzled

Homicide squad detectives showed yesterday they were really hep to the jive.

A note left by a 75-year-old suicide, written in what teen-agers call "tut" or jive talk, was deciphered by sleuths quicker than a bobby-soxer could moan "Sinatra."

The note, addressed to FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, which was left by William C. Landon Wednesday night before drinking poison in his two-room apartment at 1225 N st. nw., read:

"Tuthusherure isus susomume cutasushush which cutamun bube furounundud inun a tutinun chutanun onun tutopup ofrer tithushe cuta bube in an etu witanuntut itb tuti gugo inun yicourur bibenunifurtut furnnundud asqsusioatutionun."

All of which, detectives said, meant: "There is some cash which can be found in the tin can on top of the cabinet. I want it to go to your benefit fund as tuition out of it."

Police plunged into a minute search of Landon's apartment. They came up with about a dollar's worth of change.

Ban on Blood At Gallinger To Be Revoked

Health Officer George C. Ruhland yesterday attacked the "unwarranted" order prohibiting use of free Red Cross blood supplies at Gallinger Hospital and said he would "rescind" it immediately.

Simultaneously, he rebuked the city hospital's chief of staff, Rear Admiral P. S. Rossiter (USN ret.), for issuing the order. It closely followed refusal of the District Red Cross Blood Center to designate race origin of blood and plasma.

"The Health Department was never asked about it," Dr. Ruhland said, "and it was no business of his (Rossiter's) to pass on this. I am going to rescind that order, of course."

Dr. Ruhland claimed that segregation of blood is "unjustified scientifically and unauthorized." Biologically, he added, "it doesn't make one bit of difference."

He said he was "more concerned with saving lives" than arguing about segregation of blood supplies. He said that Gallinger "was a pioneer in the establishment of a blood bank and we want that continued . . ."

The health officer revealed that he has discussed the entire matter with Red Cross officials and plans to direct a letter immediately to Gallinger Hospital—"to set right these practices."

He promised a full statement today.

Simultaneously, Dr. Ruhland—renewing an old feud between the city and local universities over administration of Gallinger—announced that hereafter he will ask that the institution's chief of staff be appointed by the District Government.

"If the District is responsible for the hospital, it should have the authority," he declared.

Dr. Rossiter, who assumed the Gallinger post in 1939, will retire September 1. George Washington and Georgetown Universities pay his salary jointly and their medical schools are slated to nominate a successor.

Navy Court Probes Todd's Disappearance

Norfolk, Va., July 22 (AP).—A Naval Court of Inquiry is continuing its investigation of Lieut. George Todd's disappearance from the sloop Hannah, according to the Fifth Naval District public information office.

A body, found floating in Chesapeake Bay yesterday, has not yet been identified as the 55-year-old naval officer, a spokesman said. The body was located by a Coast Guard helicopter about 10 miles from the point where Todds' sloop beached itself under full sail Monday morning.

Four Workers Injured in Falls on Jobs

Four persons, including a roofer who was impaled on a picket fence, were seriously injured in a series of unrelated falls from high places yesterday.

They included:

Cornelius Desmond, 32, of 48 New York ave. nw., who was impaled when he fell from a slate roof he was repairing at 1631 Primrose rd. nw.; Robert Lee Heskett of 4905 Quarles st. ne., a linesman with the Utilities Lines Construction Co.; John Henen, 55, of 5401 Belt ave., Prince Georges County, Md., and Alva Palmateer, 51, of Box 7, Severn, Md., both carpenters.

Blacked Out From Heat

Desmond said he must have blacked out from the heat.

He fell about 10 feet to a porch roof below, bounced off, dropped about seven feet more onto a three-foot iron picket fence and was impaled by the right thigh.

He was removed by fellow workmen and taken to Emergency Hospital by the Police Rescue Squad, treated for a fractured right arm and punctured right leg. His condition was described as "serious."

Heskett was working at the top of an electric power pole at 24th and Channing st. ne., near the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks, when he unloosened his safety belt to descend for lunch.

Working on a platform about 10 feet below him was another employee of the Utilities Lines Co., Thomas George Camp, 31, of 4013 Marlboro pl. nw.

"I heard a cry," Camp said, "and looked up in time to see Heskett falling.

"I didn't have my safety belt fastened, so I hung onto the pole with one hand and reached out and grabbed Heskett as he went by me.

Struck on Head

"I held him for a couple of seconds when something fell, hitting me in the head. It must have been a tool. It stunned me for a second and I lost my grip on him," Camp said.

Heskett and Camp were taken to Casualty Hospital. Heskett was treated for a fractured right leg and right arm, and possible internal injuries. His condition was reported "fair."

Camp was treated for a head injury.

Henen was working on the fourth floor of a construction job at 1336 Missouri ave nw., when shortly before noon his overalls caught on a nail. He tripped and fell, landing on the concrete floor of the third story.

He was taken to Emergency Hospital, treated for a fractured back. His condition was reported "serious."

Palmateer while working on a construction job at Eastern ave. and Quackenbos st. ne. fell 30 feet into an areaway, landing on some trash.

He was taken to Emergency Hospital by the Police Rescue Squad, treated for a fractured right leg and left arm, split nose, punctured right eye and possible internal injuries. His condition was reported "serious."

Buying Scheme

Taxi Driver Accused in 'Gray Market'

A scheme in which taxicab drivers have been used to purchase new cars for the "gray market," came to light yesterday in Municipal Court.

One cab driver, who denied knowing where the auto he purchased was headed, but admitted he had accepted $100 to purchase the car for another man, was found guilty of failing to apply for a title within five days, as required by District law.

He was Frank C. Weaver of 313 11th st. se., who was released under $100 bond, while his case was turned over to the probation officer for study. An answer from that office is expected today. The maximum sentence for such an offense is $300 and/or 10 days in jail.

The Coroporation Counsel's office said it expected to bring at least another dozen identical cases into court.

Automobile dealers speculated that the taxicab drivers may have been used by a "gang," since the majority of the dozen cars which were purchased, turned up in used-car lots in Montgomery, Ala.

They said that the cars probably were taken there by "tow bar" (towed by other cars) or were driven down with leader tags on them, supplied by the dealer in Alabama, for whom a purchaser here served as an agent.

One firm, Kaplan & Crawford, of 2329 Champlain st. nw., one of the first to discover the "gray market" scheme, is complainant in each of the dozen cases. Oother firms, however, are expected to bring the same type of cases to court, it was learned.

Weaver, who is a driver for the Premier Cab Co., testified yesterday that he was approached last April by a "Mr. Campbell," who offered him $100 to buy a taxicab for Campbell.

Weaver said he got an okay from his cab company, and on August 20 purchased a Plymouth sedan from Kaplan & Crawford. He bought it with $1700 furnished by Campbell, he said.

Weaver explained he then turned the car and all the papers over to Campbell. He considered his part in the transaction was through, he said.

However, five days later he was questioned because he had not applied for a title to the car. At the same time, the dealers, who held a six-months option lein for repurchase also were questioned about the title, they said.

Later, they learned the car had been sold at auction in Montgomery. They found this out from the manufacturer who had been asked by a new car dealer in Montgomery to check the motor number after it appeared as a used car, they said.

The [illegible]en cars were purchased in the [illegible] few months, but the situation [illegible] now under control, the dealers asserted.

No action can be taken against those persons who used the cab drivers, according to the Corporation Counsel's office.

Another Bell Plan Proposed By Corning

A juggling of school populations and buildings to provide new quarters for students attending the Bell Vocational School was proposed yesterday by Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of schools.

The plan calls for the transfer of Powell Junior High School students into the Central High School building and of Bell students into the vacated Powell building.

The Johnson Elementary School, across the street from the Powell building at Hiatt pl. and Lamont st. nw., will be used for apprentice training under the plan.

The proposal, the third made by Corning in an effort to find quarters for Bell students, went out by messenger to members of the Board of Education, and by mail to parent-teacher associations and citizens groups in the area of Powell School.

The groups bitterly opposed a previous recommendation by Corning that Powell students be scattered among other junior high schools and the building used to house Bell students. Corning's first proposal that Bell and Central be combined in the Central buildings was abandoned after it was found that Central was inadequate for the combined schools.

The new proposal would move the Powell school intact into Central. The name of the school, however, would be changed to Central Junior High School. Both schools would retain their identity, but would share physical education, shop, laboratory and auditorium facilities.

C. Melvin Sharpe, acting chairman of the board's committee on buildings and grounds, said he will call a meeting of his committee at 1 p. m. Tuesday to consider the proposal. Parents, representatives of citizens groups and of building trades organizations which have petitioned the board for new facilities for Bell are invited to express their views, Sharpe said. Bell now is located in a 65-year-old building at 7th and O sts. nw. A portion of the building is condemned.

Sharpe said that the new proposal has "many advantages."

Heat Wave Break Forecast Today With High in 80s

Some relief from the heat wave which has steamed the good burghers of Washington for six straight days was promised for today by the Weather Bureau.

The heat wave hit its peak at 4:55 p. m. yesterday with a sizzling 93 but the Weather Bureau said for today:

". . . mostly cloudy and not so warm with the high in the middle 80s . . . some chance of showers."

Yesterday the temperature rose slowly into the 90s from a low of 77 at 5:40 a. m.

It was the sixth straight day that the mercury had registered 87 or better. In the five previous days the temperature maximums had been 88, 91, 87, 89 and 90, giving an average temperature for the six days of 89.66.

But it wasn't Washington's worst heat wave so far this summer. The hottest string of weather, according to the Weather Bureau, was from June 24 to 30. For that 7-day period the temperature maximums were 95, 90, 89, 93, 95, 93 and 90 for an average of 92.14.

Man, 43, Drowns After Handing Wallet to Woman

A 43-year-old man drowned in the Potomac River last night after handing his wallet to a woman with the announcement "I'm going for a swim" and disappearing in the water.

He was identified by his wife as Alfred Brown, 937 F st. sw., a wholesale grocery clerk. His body was recovered by harbor police. The drowning occurred near the 14th st. bridge.

Agnes Hamilton, 37, of 4 E st. sw., and Joseph Thomas, 35, of 490 K st. sw., told police they were walking near the river bank when a man approached. They said he handed Miss Hamilton the wallet after saying he was going for a swim, stripped off his clothes and dived in. They said he waved once then disappeared.

Evicted Tenant Sues for $10,000

Herman J. Penn, 1709 H st. nw., has asked District Court to award him $10,000 damages because he has been wrongfully evicted from his apartment at 715 6th st. nw.

Named defendant in the suit is Mrs. Cassie McGee of the 6th st. address.

Penn also has asked that he be awarded $130 he alleges he spent to repair the apartment at her request and $168 which represents three times the rental overcharge he alleges she demanded.

The suit declares that Penn had rented the apartment for $12 a week since last January 15, and that on July 18, when he, his wife and their two young children tried to enter the apartment, they found the door padlocked. Mrs. McGee gave them no notice of eviction and seized their clothing, foodstuffs and personal property, according to the suit.

Hospital Drive Nears Mark

Alexandria Hospital has raised $193,936, or 97 per cent, of its $200,000 emergency fund campaign goal. The campaign started five weeks ago.

Campaign officials said the drive will continue until they reach the $200,000 mark, the amount of the hospital's current deficit.

Dance Partners Sought

Girls are sought to attend a dance sponsored by the Recreation and Welfare Service at the Quantico Marine Base Saturday night.

The affair will be held in the new air-conditioned service club. Young women wishing to attend are asked to call CO-0735 before 7:30 p. m. today.

Girls who have been attending dances at the various military posts in Greater Washington are sponsoring a moonlight cruise Sunday. Members of the armed forces who wish to attend must apply at their special services office.

Vollten Resigns

Resignation of Theodore F. Vollten as a Montgomery County deputy sheriff was announced yesterday by Sheriff Frank I. Davis.

Davis said he would swear in George W. McCeney, former county roads supervisor, to succeed Vollten on Monday.

Vollten, whose resignation is effective today, will become a tax investigator in Montgomery and Howard Counties for the State Unemployment Compensation Commission. He was formerly Montgomery County detective chief.

Equestrians on Guard

Horseback riders will aid park police in patroling Rock Creek Park under a plan expected to be put into operation next week.

Capt. Mark Raspberry and Percy M. Niepold, president of the Washington Bridle Trails Association, have prepared an announcement of the plan that will be made public in a few days.

As outlined by Niepold, the 250 club members when riding in the park will act as spotters for the police and will be instructed how to notify them about suspicious persons.

Archives Institutes

Two intensive training institutes for archives administrators and teachers will be conducted at American University, Monday through August 21, University President Paul F. Douglass announced yesterday.

Experts concerned with the written heritage of the United States will assemble for the fourth annual training program in "The Preservation and Administration of Archives" directed by Dr. Ernst Posner, professor of history and archives administration at the university. The institute is conducted in cooperation with the National Archives and the Maryland Hall of Records.

At the same time, presidents and officers of local and State Teachers' Associations will meet for the "Institute of Organizational Leadership" sponsored by the National Education Association. Cochairman of the institute are Dr. Douglass and Dr. Joy Elmer Morgan, editor of the NEA Journal.

$700 'Neighbor' Prize

Mrs. Marcia Zuesse, 2404 25th st. se., is $700 richer today after winning first prize in the National Good Neighbor Club Contest sponsored by the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co.

Mrs. Zuesse

Announcement of the award was made yesterday by Samuel Schwartzman, president of the Washington Pepsi-Cola Co.

Mrs. Zuesse's winning suggestion dealt with placing good art where it can be seen and enjoyed by all. She cited the hanging of paintings in a local food market.

The contest winner has been married 13 years and has two children, Evan, 8, and Lance, 5. The prize money will be put in a home purchase fund, she said.

6100 See Daredevils

Approximately 6100 thrill enthusiasts watched Joie Chitwood's "Circus of Death" go through its performance without mishap last night. In spite of a drizzling rain at the West Lanham Speedway, the auto-motorcycle show performed its complete program of 28 daredevil stunts.

Ceramic, Glasswork Show Opens Today at Center Market

The Washington Post

ART IN GLASS—Shirley Barger, 322 Webster st. nw., looks over some of the work done by the Lowry Studios of Silver Spring, Md.—figures carved in glass by means of sand-blasting—at the City Market art show

Washington's first all-ceramic and glasswork show opens this morning at Washington's first market-with-a-soul.

On a balcony overlooking a sea of meat, fish and other sundry edibles, the District's housewives—and art lovers—can stop in the next 30 days and browse among the delicate glazed figurines and massive glass carvings at the Center Market City, 5th and K sts. nw.

This unique idea that blends the serenity of a museum with the bedlam of a busy shopping center is the brain child of Leo Bernstein & Co., operators of the market. The first of these exhibits—the Bernsteins expect to have four a year—was a painting and sculpture show in May and June.

About 100 artists, ceramists and sculptors last night attended a preview of the show. Because the displayed works illustrate unusual, and sometimes rare, art techniques, visitors had many questions for the two art sponsors of the show—Willis Lowry, "sculptor of glass," and Robert Winthrop, director of the Winthrop Studio of Ceramics.

Lowry, who says he is the first and only man to develop an art form that utilizes the principle of sandblasting on glass, lives and works at 925 Selim rd., Silver Spring, Md. He produced the glass furniture used at the last World's Fair and the Golen Gate Exposition.

The 40-year-old artist whose works in glass have brought as high as thousands of dollars, said last night he is going to "the jungles" in India as a missionary as soon as he sells all his pieces. One of them on exhibit at the market is a carving on a section of thick plate glass that Hitler used to witness the effects of tremendous speeds on aircraft models in a wind tunnel.

Winthrop, whose studio is at 2012 K st. nw., sponsored the ceramics portion of the exhibit, with the works of about 30 artists—"housewives, businessmen, Government people"—on display. Winthrop founded his school three years ago after he witnessed the healing effects of pottery-making in military hospitals during his service in the Air Corps.

The free show will be open 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., Mondays through Saturdays, except Wednesdays, when losing time is 1 p. m.

Parole Denied G. H. Williams And Nimro

George H. Williams, real estate promoter convicted of defrauding veterans, and Bernard P. Nimro, convicted of embezzling, have been denied paroles by the District Parole Board, Charles W. Chapman, board secretary, said yesterday.

Requests of 25 others also were rejected by the board which met Wednesday at the District Reformatory, Lorton, Va.

The board granted seven paroles, revoked three and five applications were continued for further study. Three good behavior time releases were revoked and three were continued for further examination.

Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff in District Court last March 12 sentenced Williams to 4 to 18 months on charges of defrauding veterans of $98,000 in housing deals.

Nimro was sentenced the same day to three months to one year and a day on charges of embezzling $2628 in income tax refunds from Loy W. Henderson, now Ambassador to India.

17 Hospitals Sign Revised GHI Contracts

New contracts have been signed with 17 Greater Washington hospitals, it was announced yesterday by Group Hospitalization, Inc.

The contracts, which have been under negotiation for a number of weeks, call for payments for treatment of a GHI subscriber based on a cost survey of each hospital, plus $1.25 a day, or normal charges, whichever is lower.

A ceiling of $14.02 per patient per day is provided. In the case of George Washington University and Georgetown University Hospitals the ceiling is $15 because of the greater operating costs of the new institutions.

Increased costs in operating expenses probably will be reflected this autumn with GHI upping subscription rates, an official of that organization said yesterday.

Meanwhile, members of the executive committee of the Community Chest Federation met in an executive session reportedly to consider recommendations that a record amount of $1,080,000 be granted 14 hospitals for treating indigent patients.

Results of the meeting will be made public today, a spokesman for the federation said.

Jury Convicts Mrs. Burke in Berry Slaying

Winchester, Va., July 22 (AP).—Mrs. Louise Burke, 43, was convicted of second degree murder by a Frederick County Circuit Court jury here today and her punishment fixed by the jury at five years in the State Penitentiary.

The former Washington, D. C., rooming house proprietor has been on trial for the slaying on April 21 of Paul R. Berry, young war veteran formerly of Syracuse, N. Y., who had been living at her home near Star Tannery, Va., since last October.

Defense Counsel Frank Brumback of Woodstock moved that the verdict be set aside as contrary to the law and the evidence, and Judge Elliott Marshall set noon on July 31 for hearing arguments on the motion.

Whitaker was arrested today on a bench warrant issued upon complaint of a woman who alleged that he tried to influence her not to testify against his mother.

The warrant was issued on the complaint of a Commonwealth witness, Mrs. Katie Jenkins, who alleged that some days before the trial of Mrs. Burke was called, Whitaker appeared at her home in the vicinity of Star Tannery and declared, "If you testify against my mother it will not be good for you."

Judge Marshall released Whitaker on $500 bond for his appearance in court to answer the charge July 30.

Five More Steel Producers Join In Price Boost

Pittsburgh, July 22 (U.P.).—Five more major steel producers joined the industry's swing to higher prices today.

National Steel Corp., Jones & Laughlin Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Pittsburgh Steel and National Supply Co. announced price boosts approximating the 11.4 per cent raise put in effect by United States Steel Corp. Wednesday.

Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. followed up its increases on steel products by boosting the price of pig iron $4 a ton at Pittsburgh.

Two Builders Charged With Trust Breach

A Bethesda businessman and his partner in a home-building project yesterday were arrested by Montgomery County police and charged with larceny after trust.

They were Roger W. Eisinger, 52, of 4538 Cathedral ave. nw., owner of Eisinger Mill and Lumber Co., Bethesda, and Howard E. Redding, 49, of 1411 Chapin st. nw. Both men were released under $1000 bond.

State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson of Montgomery County said the charges grew out of a funds shortage claimed by Frederick E. Buscher, 4522 Rosedale ave., Bethesda, who said he turned "several thousand dollars" over to a joint bank account of Eisinger and Redding. The money, Buscher claimed, was to help finance a $21,000 home at Four Corners, Md., the two men were building for Buscher, the State's Attorney said.

An employe of Safeway Grocery Stores, Buscher is the brother of Joseph Buscher, an assistant to the attorney general of Maryland, and Charles Buscher, manager of the Montgomery County Liquor Dispensary System.

Police said a preliminary hearing on the charges has been set for August 16 at 9:30 a. m. in Bethesda Police Court.

Neither Eisenger nor Redding could be reached for comment.

While there he served as president of the California Debris Commission, was a member of the Harbor Line Board, and was in charge of turning Wake Island atoll into an airbase.

In 1938, General Kingman received the rank of brigadier general and was appointed Assistant Chief of Engineers in Washington, where he remained until his retirement in November 1941.

He was recalled to active duty two days after his retirement on December 1, 1941, as senior member of the Beach Erosion Board and Shore Protection Board. In 1943 he was appointed a member of the Board for Rivers and Harbors in addition to his other duties, and served in both capacities till his second retirement in February, 1946.

His work in the Second World War also included the supervision of the Army Map Service which was greatly expanded under his direction.

Since his retirement, Gen. Kingman had been consulting engineer for the Standard Oil Co.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Adelaide Warren Kingman, whom he married in 1911, and two daughters, Mrs. Jean Kingman Murray and Ann Kingman, both of the Cortland st. address.

Quarterly Net Gain Noted in Manufacturing

Net income after taxes of all United States manufacturing corporations totaled $2,600,000,000 in the fourth quarter of 1947, a Government report said yesterday.

The total was about 130 million dollars above the third quarter, according to a joint report by the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Federal Trade Commission. The report did not give comparisons for 1946 quarters.

Total sales of all manufacturing corporations were $41,200,000,000 in the final 1947 quarter, about $3,900,000,000 more than the preceding quarter, while costs and expenses were $37,000,000,000, a rise of about $3,600,000,000.

The report showed that small corporations sustained a sharp profit drop in the last quarter of 1947, while the larger companies increased profits.

The report said that an analysis of the decline in the profit margins of small size manufacturing corporations showed that a drop occurred in all of the industry groups except rubber and motor vehicles and parts, with the sharpest declines in the food, printing and publishing, and chemical industries.

Preliminary estimates for the first quarter of 1948 showed some increase in profit margins for the small companies compared with the fourth quarter of 1947.

Industries with the highest profits in the fourth quarter of 1947 were lumber, electrical machinery and textiles.

Nats Bounce Back to Win in 12th, 9-8

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THE SOCK MARKET is getting brisk in Washington, with a distinct upward curve in the caliber of punches about to be traded. On Monday night in Griffith Stadium, Promoter Goldie Ahearn presents his Tommy-Bell-Smuggy Hursey show, and one week later in the same park, the Variety Club offers its gilt-edge Ezzard Charles-Jimmy Bivins attraction.

POVICH

The Bell-Hursey thing is a repeat booking, 10 months after Bell all but macerated Hursey in the same ring but now it is regarded as a somewhat tighter fit. Bell has been blowing hot and cold in those 10 months and has slipped from high contention, and for Hursey it appears to be a chance to get even. The last thing that happened to Bell was a nine-round knockout by Anton Raadik in Chicago.

But Bell is still a name fighter, albeit an unpredictable one. He was a hot article in Joe Louis' training camp for the second Billy Conn fight, and he had Ray Robinson on the floor in one fight, and he fought three beauts with Jake LaMotta. Then he hit the skids against Raadik and is now dropping down in class in taking the plodding Hursey who bores in with both hands, hands, plus his chin.

THE HIGH ACTION to date has not been taking place in the training sessions of Bell and Hursey but on the mimeograph machines of their publicists. Last week the Hursey camp announced that it was hiring, at great expense, Trainer Larry Amadee to handle Hursey for this one match. Amadee, long associated with Joe Louis and the late Jack Blackburne as cotrainer and strategist, is an important guy in that phase of the boxing business and is supposed to work some kind of a wonder with Hursey who has been in the hands of amateurs.

Meanwhile, that stroke by the Hursey people was countered yesterday by the announcement by Mr. Chic Wergeles, Bell's manager, that no less than he, himself, Wergeles, will be in Bell's corner for the first time on Monday night. Also the manager of Beau Jack, the perpetual-motion kid, Wergeles writes this bureau: "This is the first time I have taken on such a job since Beau Jack a self-winder, comes along."

"Tommy responds to pepping up by me as he doesn't for anybody else,' writes Wergeles. "We both felt he needed the benefit of my needling between rounds . . . if he weren't so extraordinarily lazy he would have had the welter title long ago. Bell has a tendency to be a stalker like Louis but the stalker loses many points waiting to get in his finishing punch. I have many times sold Bell on the idea of putting up a different fight. Then, because I am not in his corner to remind him, he reverts to waiting . . . this will be different."

THE VARIETY CLUB has come up with something really important, however, in its Charles-Bivins show. It isn't bounded by local interest. The offers for television rights to the fight have been tremendous. The fight doesn't require any synthetic build-up. There it is--a battle between two of the top contenders for Joe Louis' vacant heavyweight title, and the first of the elimination bouts approved by the NBA.

A couple of years ago Louis, himself, rated Bivins as the best heavyweight fighter with the exception of himself. And no wonder, Bivins had licked no fewer than five world champions—the Middleweights Teddy Yarosz and Billy Soose, and the Lightheavies Melio Bettina, Gus Lesnevich and Anton Christoforidis.

Lesnevich is the man whom it is suspected Louis will take on if he renegs on his retirement. It is significant that Bivins gave Lesnevich perhaps the worst beating of his career. But Bivins hasn't been consistent. Louis says he's "lazy." However, with Louis out of the picture there is new incentive for the fancy-stepping, hard-punching Bivins to take himself seriously.

THE SHORTEST CUT to heavyweight fame at this point is beating Ezzard Charles. In the newest reckoning, Charles towers above all other contenders for Louis' throne, including Lesnevich. In three fights with Bivins, Charles has showed to advantage progressively. He lost the first one by decision, won a decision in their second fight, and in their third he knocked Bivins out.

Charles is now rated the hardest-hitter in the whole crop of contenders. His reputation as a puncher didn't suffer at all when, last winter, he fought Sam Baroudi and killed him, with body punches, mind you. He can't afford to lose to Bivins at Griffith Stadium, and Bivins needs a win over Charles to perpetuate his own title ambitions. They'll both be levelling.

Celebrities Golf Tourney Nets $15,410.46 for Kids

THE SECOND annual National Celebrities golf tournament and the Edgar Bergen-Charlie McCarthy broadcast on May 16 netted $15,410.46 for the boys and girls of this area.

This amount will be devoted to recreational and sports activities, for underprivileged youth in the Washington area.

Gross receipts of the afternoon and night attractions were $27,475.25. Federal tax was $5,432.72. Expenses amounted to $6,632.07.

An advisory committee made up of citizens prominent in boys' and girls' work will disburse the $15,410 in proceeds.

Members of this committee are J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI; Frank Jelleff, Daniel W. Bell, Leon Chatelain, jr., Christian Heurich, jr., and Alexander F. Jones of The Washington Post.

BOTH EVENTS were sponsored by The Washington Post in support of Attorney General Tom Clark's program on youth opportunity. Many of the Nation's outstanding figures in radio, stage, screen, sports and government circles participated.

It has been decided by the advisory committee to contribute $5000 to the Salvation Army summer camps for boys and girls. Assistance by the Community Chest for these camps has been discontinued and they are urgently in need of funds.

The Merrick Boys Club has received $2500 for its summer camp. Last year this club made camping vacations available to 525 boys. Additional donations will be approved by the advisory committee.

The Celebrities Golf Tournament was held at the Columbia Country Club and the broadcast at Uline Arena. The Washington Post is deeply grateful to these organizations as well as to all other groups and individuals who helped make the undertaking highly successful.

Proceeds from the first annual National Celebrities Tournament in 1947, totaling approximately $10,000, went to the Boys Club of Washington and the Police Boys Club for construction of facilities.

Macks, Browns Tied in 11th, 7-7

After jumping off to a five-run first inning, the Athletics were hard-pressed by the fighting St. Louis Browns and in the eleventh the teams were tied, 7-7, last night in Philadelphia.

It took a home run by Eddie Joost in the seventh to keep the A's in the ball in the game. Unfortunately, for the second-place Mackmen no one was on base.

Ol' Bobo's Here, Set to Pitch for A Team Like Nats

Louis Norman (Bobo) Newsom, unemployed pitcher, is a visitor in Washington this week and made it known yesterday he will "drop by" to talk business with Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats.

Idle since his outright release by the Giants last month, Newsom thumped himself on the chest and intoned "I'm as hard as a rock and in shape to pitch tomorrow."

He has served four different terms with the Washington club. Since his release by the Giants he has turned down four offers to pitch in the Pacific Coast League because, he says, "it's too far away." Something in the East, like a job on the Washington club or playing-manager of one of its farm teams, would be more to his liking, he indicated.

Texas Fullback Signs With 'Skins

Their fifth fullback, Roy McKay of Texas, was signed yesterday by the Washington Redskins as they completed arrangements for their July 29 departure for 1948 fall training at Occidental College.

McKay, a 6-foot 195-pounder, was obtained from the Green Bay Packers in a recent trade for Tackle Don Deeks. He is rated an excellent kicker and one of the best defensive backs in the National Football League, in which he has competed for four seasons.

The cowboy from Comfort, Tex., a prize winner in many of the Southwest's rodeos, earned three varsity grid letters at the University of Texas between 1939 and 1942. He was named to several All-America teams before entering the Navy during the war.

Red Sox Streak Hits 8 With 2 Over Chisox

Boston, July 22 (AP).—With Junior Stephens, the American League's most-runs-batted-in slugger, homering in each game, the Boston Red Sox broke their third-place tie with the New York Yankees and won their seventh and eighth in a row today by sweeping a doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox, 3-0, and 5-3.

Stephens clinched the opener for the five-hit pitching Denny Galehouse by lofting into the left field screen in the first inning after Stan Spence walked with two out.

And in the third inning of the nightcap, Stephens hit his twentieth four-bagger, again with Spence aboard via the base-on-balls route. Junior also knocked in the first run of that game with a single off the left-center wall with Dom DiMaggio on second base.

In Boston's side of the second game's fifth Johnny Pesky grounded to First Baseman Tony Lupien and when Umpire Red Jones declared the runner safe, Second Baseman Cas Michaels protested so strenuously that he was ejected.

Since the Red Sox scored in that frame, the dispute continued to rage when the Chisox came to bat. Jones then ordered Bing Miller off the field and Manager Ted Lyons was ordered to accompany his first base coach after a heated verbal exchange with Jones.

Among Brooklyn's Young Stars

HERE TUESDAY—Brooklyn is almost as proud of its young stars on the "Brooklyn Against the World" team as it is of the Dodgers. The best youngsters in Brooklyn will meet Washington's junior all-stars at Griffith Stadium next Tuesday night, 8:30 o'clock, with proceeds going to boys and girls activities. Among the lads who some day hope to play with the Dodgers are (left to right): Larry DiPippo, first base; Donald Zagardo, third base, and Ralph Dragotto, outfield

Post All-Stars to Practice Tomorrow for Tuesday Game

Manager Jim Munro announced yesterday that his Washington Post All-Stars will practice at 11 a. m. Saturday on the West Ellipse for their Tuesday night game against the Brooklyn Eagle All-Stars at Griffith Stadium.

Munro plans to start the same team that handed the Brooklynites a 12-to-2 drubbing at Ebbets Field July 12.

With all the boys participating in the Junior League—in fact three of the regulars play for Munro's first-place Marx nine—the practice will be just a formality.

And another Marx player, Pitcher Billy Witzel, will start for the local All-Stars. Witzel, a student at Maryland, has won three and lost only one.

The game here is the first of an impressive road trip by the Brooklyn team. The New Yorkers will travel to Halifax, Toronto, Nova Scotia, Quebec and Providence, R. I.

Tickets for Tuesday's top sandlot game in a major league setting will be on sale only at Griffith Stadium the night of the game, which starts at 8:30 p. m. Including tax, ducats will be priced at $1.20.

All proceeds of the game, sponsored by The Washington Post, will go to charity, with local boys' clubs the principal beneficiaries.

Nats Will Sign Sailor Harvath Upon Discharge

Aviation machinist's mate John Harvath, 22-year-old right-handed pitcher for the McKee Pontiac Flying Clouds, will sign a contract with the Washington Nats after he is discharged from the Navy, in September.

Harvath pitched batting practice for the Nats yesterday. Commented catcher Rick Ferrell: He's ready for Class B ball already."

A native of Nanticoke, Pa., Harvath has won 13 of 14 starts this season and has a strikeout record of 12 per game.

Cardinals' Rally Wins 2d, 7-6 After Giants Take 1st, 6-3

St. Louis, July 22 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals, beaten 6-3 in the first game of a doubleheader today, came from behind to nose out the New York Giants, 7-6, in 11 innings in the second game with Nippy Jones singling home George Kurowski with the payoff run.

Trailing, 5-0 going into the seventh inning of the nightcap, the Cardinals exploded for six runs before a man was retired.

The first three Cardinals walked. Pinchhitter Ron Northey followed with a two-run single and Marty Marion slashed a two-run triple. Stan Musial then came through with his twenty-third home run of the year to shoot the Cards ahead, 6-5. Clem Dreisewerd, third Giant pitcher in the inning, got the next three batters out.

Red Munger went into pitch for the Cards in the eighth and promptly was clipped for a homer by Johnny Mize which tied the score. Munger was yanked in favor of Ted Wilks after he walked Willard Marshall.

Pirates Beat Phils, 5-3, Rain Halts 2d at 1-1

Pittsburgh, July 22 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates nicked the Philadelphia Phillies for a 5-3 triumph today, but rain called a 1-1 draw after five innings of their second game.

The Pirates took an early lead in the first contest, collecting three runs at the outset. Eddie Bockman provided the Bucs' winning margin with a two-run homer in the third inning. Del Ennis made a valiant effort to recoup for Philadelphia with a two-run homer after two were out in the ninth. It was Ennis' fifteenth circuit blow of the season.

Blix Donnelly and Kirby Higbe were pitching good ball in the nightcap when the showers stopped play.

'Cats' Like Cheese

Fish Landed Without Boat Leaving Dock

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

ED OAKLEY, retired Navy bandmaster who achieved a lifelong ambition recently when he purchased a new 26-foot boat, finds he can catch fish in the Potomac without even leaving the dock.

Almost daily, Oakley putters around his four-bunk Steelcraft that's moored right off Maine st. And, because he's an avid fisherman, he generally drops a line in the water just in case an inquisitive fish comes around.

The other day, we saw him stop tinkering with the motor of his boat long enough to pull in a monstrous catfish.

Oakley, who lives at 2636 Mead st., Arlington, reported that catfish are about all he does catch when he's tied up. He explained that he first put out a line to see what would happen and that now he's experimenting with different baits. He finds cheese is acceptable to the bewhiskered cats.

For serious fishing, Oakley takes his boat, "Faded Glory," down Chesapeake Bay.

Oakley's present placid life makes wonderful recruiting propaganda. After putting in 24 years in the Navy, he's still in his early 40s and is the picture of health.

Now there's nothing for him to do but take things easy and enjoy life. With that $5000 Steelcraft, it's much more enjoyable. Things weren't always so peaceful for Oakley. During most of World War II he served aboard the Yorktown. However, he readily admits that he's more than getting even now.

A MOST UNUSUAL RUN of hardheads (croakers) is on in the Rock Point-Cobb Island area, reports Charles C. Lancaster, lifelong resident there.

Old-timers attribute it to the dry weather. Best time for hauling in the hardheads, according to Lancaster, is late at night and during the early morning hours.

Some of the catches sound interesting. Capt. Herbert Wise, veteran guide, led a party that landed 50 hardheads, averaging almost three pounds. With Capt. Raymond Stine, another party took 40 croakers. Top catch reported by Lancaster was that of Maryland Delegate Vernon Coakley, who brought in 75.

MISCELLANY—Like father, etc.—Guy Slusser and his son, Guy, jr., of Alliance, Ohio, topped recent tuna fishermen off Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. Slusser, sr., took a 549-pounder after battling it for an hour and a half. His 18-year-old son then boated a 555-pound beauty in only 40 minutes. . . If you're fishing off Ocean City, Md., in the bay, surf or inlet, and land a croaker, better weigh in with it for one of weekly $5 prizes. . . Last week, none was entered. . .

4-Year-Old Beats Spy Song, Rippey

Chicago, July 22 (AP).—H. G. Bedwell's Daily Dip, at odds of 62 to 1, won the $27,800 Myrtlewood Stakes at Arlington Park today.

Daily Dip, a 4-year-old son of Mahmoud-Dipsy Doodle, bred by C. V. Whitney, paid $126 to win, $37.60 to place and $14 to show.

W. E. Caskey's Sweet Woman, second longest priced horse in the race, was second, two lengths behind, and paid $29.60 and $9.80.

Completing the rout of such favorites as Spy Song, With Pleasure and Rippey was Mike J. Dant's Southern Pride, also a longshot, which paid $8 for third place.

Spy Song was a 2-1 favorite. With Pleasure was 3 to 1 and Rippey was 4 to 1. Spy Song ran sixth. With Pleasure was eighth and Rippey was fourth in the nine-horse field.

Daily Dip ran the 6-furlong race before 14,205 persons in 1:12 4-5 over a slow track.

It was the first stakes triumph for Daily Dip. Earlier in the meeting he had scored a 17-1 upset over a cheaper field, but had lost three races since then. The victory was worth $18,800 to Owner-Trainer Bedwell, veteran horseman from Savage, Md.

Spy Song set a fast enough early pace. Outrun by Sweet Woman for a while, the Dixiana colt then took a 2½-length lead and reached the half mile in 0:45 4-5.

Sweet Woman stayed in second place, with Istan third and Rippey fourth. Turning for home the field started to bunch up, then out of nowhere came Daily Dip. Jockey Harold Keene found a big hole on the rail and the colt skimmed through.

PALLASO, $8.00, $4.00, $2.40; BOW STREET, $5.60, $3.00; FORT MIFFLIN, $2.80.

PALLASO, away fast and dushed to front early, forged to a good lead rounding the turn and tired gradually in late stretch. BOW STREET, forwardly placed throughout, came to the outside entering stretch and finished strongly. FORT MIFFLIN, a trifle green at start, was hurried to contending position and hung in late stretch. FIRSTLY lacked early speed but rallied mildly. QUICK CURE stopped. SENOR BRAVO bore out badly entering stretch.

DAILY DOUBLE—KENTMERE MISS AND PALLASO—PAID $28.80.

THIRD RACE—Five and a half furlongs. Purse, $3000. For 2-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:41. Off at 3:41½. Winner, F. St. Charles' dk. b. g. (2) by Emilico—Hoosier Miss by Halcyon. Trained by G. S. Howell. Value to winner, $1650. Time, 1:06⅘.

Could Be Answer to Date Wars

Trot Success Has Big Tracks Studying Plans for Racing at Night

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

SOONER OR LATER, and perhaps sooner than we expect, Maryland's major race tracks will be operating at night.

Where they got the idea is not a secret. At almost every program of the recent Laurel Raceway harness meeting, top flat racing officials of the State were present. And they weren't on hand to see if the breed was being bettered nocturnally.

These track owners, directors, managers, etc., weren't exactly spying, but they were observing. To them, strange were some of the doings of the "jugheads" (flat racers' designation for harness men).

They watched the cars pack the parking spaces, noted crowds of from 8000 to 15,000 were not overestimated and saw the long lines of customers fighting to get bucks down on the line.

They couldn't quite understand why the trotters and pacers were warmed up, some of them for 3 and 4 miles between races. Other training methods, the opposite of those used on runners, were confusing, but there was no denying the harness boys were putting on a topflight show.

"Looks as if we haven't been on the ball," remarked one flat race bigwig. "I'll have to admit the harness fellows with their showboat style have something. Perhaps we should steal a couple of pages out of their book."

At least the trotter-pacer gang has caused a lot of thinking. For instance, it is not difficult to note the difference in methods. Harness racing thrives on the carnival spirit that once was a factor in the success of the runners.

In discussing the situation a run-of-the-mill race fan said, "Flat racing has become a deadpan proposition. No music, no frills between races—just watch a race, win money or lose it and then try to find a winner in the next race. Like being in a bookie joint.

"At the trots, the workouts between races add to the entertainment. A peppy record makes a guy forget a loser. Then there's the popcorn and pink lemonade, etc. All go to make for a homey feeling."

He scanned his program, asked me if I had a hot horse and, getting a negative answer, continued, "One thing about the trots that impresses me is the polite and friendly atmosphere. From the time the traffic policeman waved me into the track road there was a feeling of welcome. Don't get me wrong, nobody rushed up and handed me a fresh bankroll, but everybody seemed to want customers to feel at home.

"I don't mean that I get pushed around at the running races, but what I'm trying to say is that I don't get the calloused treatment here. Perhaps the harness guys, fresh in the mutuel business, will eventually get matter-of-fact with the fans, but I hope not."

Night racing for the runners would have to get the O. K. of the Jockey Club which not only frowns on under-the-lights programs, but almost suffers a collective stroke at the mere mention thereof.

However, unknown to most turf people, there's nothing in the Maryland Racing Commission's rules to prevent night racing.

Nocturnal cards could be the answer to the date wars now being waged in the Maryland, New Jersey and Delaware areas. Delaware has made known that it will stick to its May 28 to July 5 meeting, regardless if it has to run concurrently with Garden State and Havre de Grace.

Maryland is trying to keep from bucking Delaware and Garden State as well as Atlantic City and Monmouth Park.

Heads are being put together in Maryland to try to find a solution. Oddly enough, Bowie, supposed to have the worst dates down through the years, finally pops up with the best—the first two weeks in April and the last two weeks in November. These were once referred to as the "snow dates" but, now with no opposition, they have become the "gravy dates."

Night running races? Could be.

Trumpets No Longer Start Olympic Races

Loudspeakers Will Replace Old Method

This is the fourth of six articles by Bob Considine "Raising the Curtain" on the 1948 Olympics, which begin in London on Monday.

By Bob Considine

London, Eng., July 23 (INS).—Olympics potpourri:

The first Olympic races were started by trumpeting heralds. Sprints which must be started on a turn of the cinder track in the London Olympics will possess a starting apparatus which would have frightened the bravest gladiator out of his wits.

Six loudspeakers have been placed at equal distances around the bends on which the 1948 runners will start. The Wembley Stadium track is a 6-lane job and, as is the custom, the runners will be placed in staggered positions, so that the man on the rail does not have fewer yards to run.

At the ear of each crouched man will be a loud-speaker. Off in the distance the official starter will place a pistol against a mike—attached to the loudspeakers—and fire it.

Just for the record, those five interlocked circles which constitute the Olympics emblem stand for the five continents of the world, linked together through sports. The words "Citius, Altius, and Fortius" often appear under the rings, and they mean "quicker, higher, and more strongly."

In the 40 years that have passed since London last had an Olympics, six small but vital tenths of a second have been shaved from the 100-meter Olympics record (now 10.2) and a second and eight tenths from the 400-meter record (now 46.2).

The 1908 mark for the 800 meter event has been cut 6 8/10 seconds to 1:49.8, which means a difference of perhaps 50 yards. Thirteen and eight tenths seconds have been sliced away from the 1500-meter run—now 3:43.

The modern world's record for the high jump (6 feet 11) is a half a foot loftier than the best of the Olympics in 1908. The broad-jump has stretched out 2 feet to 26 feet 8¼ inches, the pole vault has soared up from 12 feet 2½ inches to 15 feet 7¾.

Today's best shot-put is propelled nearly 10 feet more than R. W. Rose's 46 feet 7½ inches in the 1908 games. The hammer is thrown 20 feet farther (193 feet 6⅞ inches), and the javelin is spiraled through the air 80 feet beyond the '08 best.

But try to tell any old athlete that the boys of today are better men than their fathers and grandfathers!

Jim Thorpe is still spoken of in London as "the Red Indian." He remains the tragic figure of all the countless Olympic champions. He was the greatest hero of the 1912 games and returned to America a national hero.

It was not until 1913 that it was revealed that Jim had accepted money for playing baseball. The prizes, medals, olive wreaths, etc., which had been awarded to him by King Gustav were seized by American officials and returned to the International Olympic body for distribution among the runners-up.

Lieut. George S. Patton, a young American cavalry officer, was one of the more dramatic competitors in the 1912 Olympics. He competed in horsemanship, cross-country foot-racing, revolver events, fencing and swimming—the so-called "modern pentathlon."

The official report of those games stated, "Among the fencers, Patton, U. S. A., distinguished himself by the rapidity he showed in the use of his weapons as well as for the immediate advantage he took of the weak points of opponents."

The report speaks glowingly of the courage Patton displayed as he "staggered past the tape" in the 3-mile cross-country run, and commented on his use of the standard United States Army revolver in competition against others armed with special target pistols.

The man who was to gain greater renown as a warrior finished fifth in the pentathlon, though he actually beat the winner, Lilliehook of Sweden, in three of the five events.

One Coach Registers

Local Colleges Unaffected By Draft for Coming Season

Local college football squads have no draft worries—at least for the coming season.

Selective Service officials have announced that any college student called will be permitted to finish a full school year. And the draft won't begin until October. High school students are deferred until graduation or until they reach the age of 20.

With each school playing an overwhelming majority of veterans, it's surprising how few boys would be affected anyway.

Most unusual situation is at Catholic University. Tom Chisari, newly appointed 25-year-old head coach, will have to register himself. Chisari was in the Navy for 3½ months during the war and received a disability discharge. Only three members of the Cardinal squad are non-vets.

GW's Coach Bo Rowland reported only two squad members who weren't GIs. Jim Tatum said he has only three or four and all are in the ROTC program at College Park.

Valetmen Score On Poston No-Hitter

Bob Poston pitched a no-hitter and fanned seven as Century Valet defeated Norman Paint, 8-1, yesterday in a Sport Shop senior softball league game at Sherwood Playground.

Sam Dellinger homered with two on for the winners in the first inning.

Kenwood Swim Team Defeats Indian Spring

Barbara Hobelmann won the 50-yard dashes in both the 15 and under class and the unlimited class to lead Kenwood Country Club to a 78-59 victory over Indian Spring in a team swimming match last night at Indian Spring. Participants all were sons and daughters of club members.

Lefty Keeps Bums' Hits Scattered

Chicago, July 22 (AP).—Lefty Johnny Schmitz humbled the Brooklyn Dodgers for the fourth time this season today, pitching the last place Chicago Cubs to a 6-3 victory over the pennant-striving Dodgers.

Schmitz yielded 10 hits but kept them well scattered while the Cubs collected 11 off four Dodger pitchers.

The Dodgers scored the first run of the game in the third inning on singles by Marv Rackley, Gene Hermanski and Bruce Edwards but the Cubs tied it up in the fourth when Bill Nicholson clouted his thirteenth homer of the season.

Chicago moved ahead in the fifth to stay, scoring twice with Peanuts Lowrey and Andy Pafko driving home the counters. They added two more runs in the seventh and another in the eighth.

The Dodgers, who scored only two runs in their three previous outings against Schmitz, picked up their final two runs in the ninth on two singles, a walk and error. Schmitz got Hermanski, who collected three of Brooklyn's safeties, to pop out to end the game with two men aboard.

Griffs Win Out In 12th, 9 to 8

second pitch for a single to end the ordeal.

It didn't take the Tigers as long as Manager Kuhel to learn that Wynn simply didn't have it yesterday. They greeted him with a vigorous five-hit welcome which saw 11 Tigers bat.

Vic Wertz clouted a triple, one of three the Tigers hit and one of two in the first inning, to score two runs; Hoot Evers followed with a triple to make it 3 to 0; George Vico slammed out the first of his four hits to produce another run, and Newhouser himself singled in the final pair of the inning.

Newhouser's hit also brought in Dick Welteroth, who finally caged the aroused Bengals.

The Nats got three of those back in their half of the first. Tom McBride, who accounted for three runs with a triple and two singles against Newhouser, clubbed in a pair with his triple. He scored the third run himself a moment later as Catcher Bobby Swift dropped Johnny Lipon's throw to the plate.

Benton Too Wild

The Tigers hopped on Hudson for two runs to increase their margin to 8 to 3 in the fifth, doubles by Evers and Vico and Pat Mullin's triple doing the trick.

The Nats got a single tally in the fifth, but got back in the groove against Newhouser in the seventh when McBride's single chased in one run and Christman's double fetched the other.

Al Benton relieved Newhouser at this stage and got the side out but he made a mess of things for the Tigers in the eighth with his wildness and the Nats scored two more runs to tie it.

Benton walked Sherry Robertson, batting for Hudson, and Yost and retired in favor of Houtteman. After Al Kozar had forced Yost, Gil Coan walked to load the bases and then Stewart came through with his single to send the issue into overtime.

IN SHORT—With three hits against Newhouser, McBride boosted his average against left-handed pitching to .397 . . . Fifty-four minutes were required to play the first two innings yesterday, with the Tigers consuming 30 of them in their six-run, first frame . . . Newhouser struck out seven during his tenure, getting Gil Coan three times . . . Al Evans lost a fingernail when a foul tip off the bat of Vic Wertz nipped him in the second. He was replaced by Rookie Len Okrie, who tripled in the sixth to maintain his .500 average . . . For today's get-away clash, Stubby Overmire (1-1) goes for the Tigers against Mickey Haefner (4-8).

Mr. Rooster Comes to Town

Milady's Fall Bonnet Drips With Beautified Feathers of Barnyard

By Peggy Preston

NEW YORK, July 22.—You'll be surprised to see what has happened to our common variety of barnyard fowl. He's right up there, dramatized and beautified, on milady's new fall hat, being shown at the autumn fashion preview here in Manhattan this week.

Never before has the rooster had so much to crow about. Practically all the big name designers have borrowed his tail feathers and whirled them all over their most expensive and elegant felts and velvets. Laddie Northridge, who owns a farm in up-State New York, was so carried away with the colors of his chickens that he plastered the feathers all over the entire brim of one of his wonderful gray-green felt casuals.

Other designers have used simulated aigrettes and birds of paradise to bedeck satins and velvets. But everyone is using feathers of one type or another, for it is a feather-flattering year.

As for size and shape, the rules are flexible, as usual. However, hats, generally speaking, are small, fitted to the head in back to allow for big coat collars, and rising with youthful lines over the brow. There are none of those hats that rest just over the eyebrow, making the wearer look old and matronly. Lots of turbans are in evidence. They are all little and tilt strongly to one side and sometimes just forward over one cheek. Eric Braagaard does adorable side-tilted bonnets; Hattie Carnegie has created darling satin turbans, and both Sally Victor and Lilly Dache show you how to wear big felts, dipped to one side.

Most of them tie under the chin or have veiling that drapes over the shoulder. Fur hats are a rage. Suits are shown with fur trim, matched with becoming berets of ermine, mink or squirrel. Sometimes a jeweled pin clasps one side. Oh other occasions a cluster of fresh flowers trims the edge just above the eyebrow line.

Gossip in hat circles this week centers around the breakup of the partnership of the two men who formed the firm of John Frederics, Inc. John Harburger and Frederick Hurst, who joined forces in 1929 and have since made the hats of John Frederics known from coast to coast, have finally decided to go their separate ways.

Each will continue to produce hats in the fabulous manner. Mr. Hurst bought the present shop. In addition to hats he intends to create a line of custom-made clothes.

Several of the designers who have shown us their collections this week have stressed the fact that many of their garments were designed especially for the large woman. Today none other than Hattie Carnegie joined the group of those who admit they are making dresses for the stout matron as well as for the pencil-slim young woman.

Her collection, shown at her showroom on Fifth ave., featured several suits for the woman with figure problems.

As might be expected, Miss Carnegie's costumes were among the outstanding ones of the week. Mostly in color and some in black, they are distinguished by intricate cut, subdued trim. Her collars are real contributors to fashion, and stand up above the neckline to frame the face, or can be crushed down to form a jabot. She makes elegant use of rich, silky black broadcloth in suits, of brilliant-hued pure silk taffetas and satins in dinner gowns.

The crisp silhouette which she creates belies the clever pleating, darting and cutting that is employed in every ensemble, making each dress a really beautiful garment. Except for a touch of lavish crystal embroidery here and there, her glistening evening gowns are simple and unadorned.

Mrs. Lea's Menus Are Light, Filling

Try California Food on Torrid Days

This is the seventh of a series of articles on regional cookery, featuring favorite recipes of congressional wives.

By Lucia Brown

AVOCADOS, grapejuice, nuts, raisins, and citrus fruits are featured in the delicious California recipes of silvery-haired Mrs. Clarence F. Lea, wife of the dean of Far West Congressmen.

Light but filling food is highly appreciated in sunny California, and is equally appropriate to Washington in the summertime. Her recipes for punch, salad, stuffed avocado, and rum cake should go well on summer menus, though you may want to wait until fall to try out Turkey a la Burbank.

Mrs. Lea, whose husband will retire in January after 32 years in the House of Representatives, has long been active in the Congressional Club here and was one of the first members of its cookbook committee back in the '20s. Some of her recipes have been included in the four succeeding Congressional Cookbooks issued by wives of the Nation's lawmakers, and there will be more in the new one to be published this fall.

A native Californian, Mrs. Lea is also the daughter of a native of California. She spent most of her girlhood in the "Golden State" and was married there in 1907 to a young Santa Rosa lawyer. When he was elected to Congress in 1917, they came to Washington and, for the past 18 years, have lived in the same apartment on Capitol Hill.

The Lea's home town is Santa Rosa, some 50 miles north of San Francisco and 19 miles from the Pacific Coast. It is the county seat of Sonoma, a rich agricultural county in which lies the "Valley of the Moon," made famous by the writings of Jack London. Representative Lea's Congressional District — the First — includes the Northern part of the State and such eye-filling natural phenomena as the great redwood forests, geysers, and petrified trees.

Almost equally impressive are the vineyards that cover mile after mile of sunny sloping land in this area, dotted occasionally by huge stone wine cellars. Unfermented grapejuice is also made from the fruit of these vines, and that is what is used in Mrs. Lea's recipe for a refreshing punch:

FAIRY PUNCH

1 quarter of a fresh pineapple
1 quart unfermented grapejuice
1 cup cold tea
Juice 3 oranges
1 lemon, sliced
½ banana, sliced
2 small cups sugar
Few cherries

Place a small block of ice in a punch bowl and pour in above ingredients. When ready to serve, add more ice and 1 quart of carbonated water.

BOTH RAISINS and nuts of various kinds are grown in California and are featured in Mrs. Lea's delicious rum cake. The recipe for it follows:

RUM CAKE

1 cup seedless raisins
1 1-3 cups nuts
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 eggs
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
2 cups water
1½ cups brown sugar
4 tablespoons dark rum, or substitute
1 cup butter
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cloves
2 teaspoons soda

Boil raisins in the water, uncovered, until liquid is reduced to 1 cup (about 20 minutes). Cool and add soda to the raisins and water. Cream butter, add sugar, then the beaten egg yolks. Next, add alternately the cooked raisins and water and the dry ingredients sifted together. Add the nuts and, last of all, the rum or flavoring and the stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Bake mixture in two large layers in a moderate oven.

FROSTING

2 cups powdered sugar
1 egg
½ cup soft butter
2 tablespoons dark rum or substitute
1 teaspoon vanilla

Break whole egg into sugar, add other ingredients and beat until light. Spread in between and over layers. Decorate top with nut meats if desired.

MANY Easterners look on the avocado simply as something to be served raw in a salad. Mrs. Lea uses it in a tempting and unusual baked dish, Seafood Avocado, ideal for serving at a luncheon.

SEAFOOD AVOCADO

1 cup lobster meat
1 cup milk
4 tablespoons butter
1 cup crab
1 cup cream
4 tablespoons flour
3 avocados
Salt and pepper

Heat the milk and cream in double boiler. Melt butter and blend with the flour. Add slowly to the heated milk and cook until smooth sauce is produced. Season, adding a few grains of cayenne pepper if desired. Add the lobster and crab, which has been flaked. Cut each avocado in two lengthwise pieces and fill centers with

Woman Yearns for Honeymoon Vacation Alone With Her Husband, but His Mother, Who Lives With Them, Pouts at Idea of Being Left Out

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: When a widowed mother lives with her married son and his wife most of the year, should she accompany them on their annual two weeks' vacation?

Bill and Mary have two small children, and Bill's mother, Mrs. F., has lived with them for seven years. She spends a few weeks each year with another daughter-in-law, but claims she favors Mary more.

Mrs. F. takes three or four trips a year, visiting friends or relatives in different towns for days or weeks; and she had many happy years and happy trips with her own husband before he passed on; but when it comes time for Bill's vacation, she expects to be counted in.

Is Couple Entitled To Holiday Privacy?

MARY has a certain fondness for Mrs. F., but finds her rather irritating and possessive, and in view of the fact that she has her underfoot much of the year, she would like to have these two weeks alone with Bill and the children.

Is Mary entitled to have this little honeymoon with her husband? Or is she selfish to want it? She claims Bill isn't spontaneous in speech or affection in his mother's presence, and neither is Mary; and therefore the couple feel that they really need two weeks' relaxed recreation together, without Mrs. F. around.

However, Mrs. F. acts so sad and dejected when the idea is broached that they feel guilty and stymied. Yet she could easily plan to visit someone during the fortnight. Or she could spend it quietly in their home, which is in a good neighborhood where all the neighbors are friendly and reliable; but she simply won't consider this. What is a reasonable solution? C. F.

Mother Wants Much Too Much

DEAR C. F.: Mrs. F.'s free-wheeling social program throughout the year disqualifies her to stick along with Bill and Mary when they take their annual vacation, if they'd plainly rather not have her.

As you say, she had many happy years and happy trips with her husband (sans duenna) before he passed on; and her widowhood doesn't invest her with "second childhood" privileges in relation to married offspring, if she gets about without a guardian generally.

In view of the fact that she is an inveterate gadabout, who tours the provinces periodically to visit friends and relatives, she must be up to her neck in social indebtedness; and given adequate opportunity, she cannot rightfully object to "paying the piper," I should think.

She Should Repay Her Social Debts

THEREFORE, I propose that the correct adjudication of the vacation problem is for Bill and Mary to plan a foursome family trip, and then break the news to Mother F. with the sterling but adamant recommendation that she take over the house in their absence, and have one or two of her much-visited friends or relatives come to her for a fortnight's gab-session.

To put over the proposition with minimum fuss, Mary must have Bill's full backing, of course; and Bill must be prepared to bear heroically and amiably, but also immovably, with the injured attitudes Mrs. F is sure to unloose, for the ambivalent purpose of (1) undermining their decision, if possible; or (2) making them suffer if they stand firm.

Mrs. F is nobody's martyr; she has a pretty good life these days; and one's sympathies are mostly with Bill and Mary if they must push her in the face, figuratively speaking, to get holiday respite from her too-interested presence.

M. H.

Sorting Stockings Is a Time Saver

How much time and trouble we would save in dressing if we kept our good stockings in one bureau drawer and our older ones in another. Then when we are in that inevitable hurry to get dressed we can find a good pair of stockings without opening all the others first. It also keeps an easy check-up on when some new ones must be purchased.

New Type Shoulder Pads

Fashion trends are reflected in the demand for new types of shoulder pads. The shoulder line is more modified this season, less built up and squared off than previously.

RUM CAKE, made with California seedless raisins and nuts and covered with white frosting, is one of Mrs. Lea's delectable culinary specialties. Spices and either dark rum or rum extract are used in flavoring the cake and icing.

ANOTHER good luncheon dish is Roquefort Cheese Ring. Cottage cheese, as well as Roquefort, is used in this one, and it is garnished with sliced avocados and tomatoes.

ROQUEFORT CHEESE RING

¼ pound Roquefort cheese
1 pint cottage cheese
½ cupful salad dressing or mayonnaise
½ cupful thick cream
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Few drops Tabasco sauce
2 teaspoons granulated gelatin
¼ cup cold water

Mash Roquefort cheese with fork and cream it with cottage cheese. (If necessary, put cottage cheese through a sieve to make it a smooth texture.) Season with salt, Worcestershire and Tabasco. Add salad dressing and cream, whipped stiff. Soften gelatin in cold water, mold and chill. When ready to serve, unmold onto a large chop platter and decorate with lettuce or other greens and with slices of tomato and strips of avocado. Serve with French dressing. This recipe will fill a 6-inch ring mold (one with capacity of about 2½ cups water) and will serve four to six persons nicely.

SANTA ROSA was the home of Luther Burbank, famous plant scientist, and the following recipe is named in his honor. Thousands of turkeys are grown in California, where, according to a poem by a native son, "the turkey roosts in the almond trees." In some sections there are even "turkey herders" who, like cattle herders, drive their charges out to pasture. They take them to the fields after the grain is cut to feast and fatten on fallen grain and grasshoppers.

TURKEY A LA BURBANK

Steam a 10-pound turkey for 2½ hours or until the muscles of the leg can be readily pierced with a fork. Take steamer from fire and carefully remove turkey to a roasting pan. Prepare dressing as follows:

Slice and toast 1 loaf bread until crisp and a light golden color. While hot, spread butter on each slice. Put toast, cooked giblets from the turkey, and 3 large whole onions through a meat grinder. Dampen with juice of 1 lemon. Add the following seasonings sifted well together:

1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon powdered sage
2 teaspoons summer savory
2 tablespoons sugar

Mix giblets, bread and seasonings together well and dampen with juice in which turkey was cooked. Fill turkey with mixture and place in slow oven. Place thin strips of bacon over fowl and roast an hour or so until thoroughly done and well browned.

Cooking Cues

To stretch a small amount of steak cut it in thin diagonal slivers; saute an onion for each person to be served—cut in thin strips—in hot fat in a skillet, then add the beef slivers and cook quickly stirring to brown the meat. Add salt and pepper to taste and serve on hot buttered toast.

Grind leftover luncheon meat with sweet pickles, or mix with pickle relish. Add mayonnaise or salad dressing to moisten and use for sandwiches.

Use moderate heat when making croutons on top of the range. To prepare cut crusts from bread slices, dice and saute in butter or margarine in a large skillet or wide-based saucepan, turning very frequently, until a golden brown.

What Will A Nickel Buy In New York?

New York.—One of the frivolous little trinkets we've picked up this week is a chain bracelet. It's fashioned with six slots, each designed to hold one nickel.

Now what, exactly, can one do with but six nickels in New York? We investigated. New Yorkers were amused, and mused: one newspaper; one telephone call (to a local friend to inquire what to do with our four other nickels); one package of chewing gum; one small coca cola; (you have to shop around for the latter, 10 cents is the favored price); one card of bobby pins, and that about did it. With the other coin in our bracelet we gave up and bought another newspaper.

It was our sad experience to discover that even a five cent chocolate has a penny tax. The old reliable subway that used to take you grumblingly from one end of Manhattan to the other for a sturdy nickel coin, now demands a thin silver dime. The nickel, once a potent member of our currency family, has woefully lost caste and the lordly buffalo almost seems to lower his head still further on the coin disc in contemplation of his shame. He and his nickel-plated breed are without dignity in this year of inflation, 1948.

About Double Wedding Ceremony

Can you give me detailed advice on how to proceed with a simple home double wedding, to be performed at 7 p. m., August 28. My grandson and granddaughter (brother and sister) are being married with a double ring ceremony in the presence of the three families. For decorations, I plan to use candles and home flowers, both cut and potted, arranged around a large closed fireplace, blending the white with the green. Should each couple have their own attendants? They plan to have a maid of honor and best man, with a close friend of each bride to give her away. How should the wedding party enter the living room? Should there be music? The brides are wearing street dresses. A reception follows the ceremony and any help you may give toward this will be welcomed.

Distraught Grandmother.

Yes, each couple should have its own attendants. Here's the way double wedding parties usually enter the room in a home wedding: First, the minister comes in and takes his place at the improvised altar. The bridegrooms follow, each accompanied by his best man. If there is a door close to the altar, let the grooms and their attendants come in this way to meet the brides at the altar. The two brides and their attendants should enter through the door farthest from the altar. First, one maid of honor enters, then a bride, accompanied by the male relative who is to give her in marriage. Then comes the second maid of honor, the second bride, and her father or other relative. When two sisters are being married, the elder and her attendant usually enter first. In this case you might let the matter be decided by whether the brother or sister is the elder.

Guests stand during the wedding, drawing aside to make an aisle when the bridal party comes in. Even though it is to be an informal wedding with the brides in street clothes, it would be nice to have music. Either a friend could play the piano or violin, or a phonograph record of organ and choir music made especially for weddings could be played. If there isn't a phonograph in the family, you can probably borrow one for the occasion. Records of this type are sold in most large music stores.

At the altar, one couple takes its place on the left and the other at the right, forming a semicircle with their attendants. The relative who is giving the bride away stands a step behind and a little to the left of the bride. A maid of honor stands at each bride's left, and a best man at each groom's right. The ceremony is a double one, read to each couple separately with the particular responses made twice. The minister will explain the procedure for the ceremony. If kneeling is part of the ritual, be sure to provide pillows or low benches for this purpose. After the relative gives the bride in marriage, he steps back to stand in the front row of guests. Following the ceremony, the couples merely turn where they stand to receive congratulations. The minister withdraws to join the guests.

At the hour selected for the wedding, most of the guests will have had dinner so (unless you plan to make this a full wedding supper), light refreshments would be all that are necessary. Wedding cake and fruit punch, with perhaps a few salted nuts and candies, would be adequate, though you could have ice cream if you wished. One easy-to-make punch combines gingerale with orange sherbert. Put a block of the sherbert in the center of a punch bowl and pour the gingerale over it. If the number of guests is sufficiently large, you might have a wedding cake at each end of the dining table for each bride to cut, with a big punchbowl in the center. If this much cake isn't required, have a large one in the middle.

Trivia About Town

It's a Boy for Pattons; Lindbergh, Youthful Still, Visits General Spaatz

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

GRAB BAG OF TRIVIA. Over in Paris, on July 4, the Bill Pattons became the very proud parents of a young man. The Pattons are exceptionally pleased because this is their first offspring and they've been married almost a decade. Susan Mary, daughter of Washington's distinguished Mrs. Peter Augustus Jay, has carved a decorative niche for herself in Parisian society during the years her husband has been attached to our embassy.

She's been photographed innumerable times for fashion magazines and her letters, round-robined to a wide circle of friends, have the quality of expression worthy of Mme. de Sevigne. Columnist Joe Alsop is to be the baby's godfather and may fly to Paris for the christening.

Texan Bryan Houston recently flitted Europewards to take up his job as director of public information under ECA Chief Paul Hoffman. Mr. H., whose eyebrows meet in a stern line across his forehead, is an advertising brightie; during the war he underwent considerable travail in the Pentagon, later dipped into OPA to figure out rationing, then was lured to the profitable task of plugging a soft drink.

CHARLES LINDBERGH slipped into town with his usual inconspicuousness and immediately went into a huddle with Gen. Carl Spaatz, who is spending the summer writing his history of our Air Force. In appearance Lindbergh has scarcely changed since 1927, when he soloed across the Atlantic. He is a touch more filled out, but there is not a line on his smooth face. In company he's very much at ease these days and altogether he is a far more appealing personality than he was two decades ago.

One of our top drawer personalities returning from a brief trip to England took in both the Derby and Ascot race meetings, reported that the tight little isle was doing fine. He based this opinion partly on a visit to Moss Brothers, the London firm which rents out suits, uniforms, costumes for every imaginable occasion. Our pal, traveling light, was minus suitable garments in which to attend these posh events. So like thousands of others he hied to Moss Bros. (pronounced Mossbroz) for the correct outfit, a cutaway and a gray topper. He obtained the suit without trouble, but found that Moss Bros.' 2000 gray top hats were all rented two weeks before the first race! Our hero was able to borrow the right chapeau from a friend and spent considerable time trying to figure out who, amongst the swells, were accoutered in Moss Bros. 6000 suits!

THE Question Club recently had one of its biannual meetings down in Hot Springs. It's the fanciest club we've heard of, because present-day members are willed into it—which necessarily keeps it exclusive. It was started years ago by pioneer auto men who, when they were out on the road pushing their businesses, evolved a more or less secret dialect. Walter Chrysler, Henry Ford were among the original members, and in their wills named their club successors. The question, from which the club's title is derived, is "How did you get your first million?"—and the club record should make interesting reading! Since all the members are rich, the club's functions have become almost entirely charitable—but their fun comes at the two yearly meetings.

Colombian Feminist Leader Surveys U. S. Clubs

By Genevieve Reynolds

The revolutionized Bogota Conference had at least one salutary effect, if not dozens of others. It added impetus to the equal rights movement in Colombia. So reports Senorita Camila Uribe Guevara of Colombia, president of Union Fememna de Colombia, who arrived in town recently for a survey of women's organizations, plus the culture and traditions of this Nation.

Composed of approximately 800 women, Union Fememna de Colombia, is one of the leading feminist groups in that country. It's double-barreled aim is to obtain full political and civil rights plus better understanding among the countries of the Western Hemisphere.

"Bogota stimulated our women to renew our campaign for suffrage," explained the brown-eyed, petite senorita. "When we saw three full women delegates, in addition to two feminine advisers, sitting in the conference with the same status as the men, then and there, we determined to have the right in future Pan American conferences."

Senorita Guevara pointed out Colombian women have partial civil rights but still must obtain suffrage. However, she's optimistic over eventual victory, for Colombia signed the Bogota Covenant for Equal Rights. "This plank still has to be ratified by our government," she said.

"And what's the greatest obstacle to "equal rights in Colombia?" I asked.

"Tradition," she replied. "We have many professional women, lawyers, doctors, scientists, teachers, and some 15,000 girls holding down office jobs now," she added, "so the men can't say we aren't prepared for the vote."

Senorita Guevara was quietly lunching in a resturant when the Bogota revolution burst during the spring conference. She slipped through the firing and returned to her office, where she holds down an executive position with an airline, "Aviancia." That night she dodged bullets in the streets to locate the women delegates to the conference in order to offer assistance.

Queried if Communists attempt to propagandize women's organizations in Colombia, she answered, "Yes. But we counteract any effect it might have by identifying and explaining the propaganda to the women so they won't be taken in by it."

Favorably impressed with the United States, Senorita Guevara says that she would like each man and woman in her country to visit this country. "Once they could see this very superior Nation, there would never again be any misunderstanding," she insisted.

And if the curly, brown-haired senorita gets her way, she would start the mutual exchange of good will visits with clubwomen.

Besides holding down a full-time job with the aviation company, Senorita Guevara writes a weekly article for the Bogota paper, El Tiempo.

Before returning home, she will visit New York, Canada and California.

A LOT of people have been fooled the past 10 days when they have walked by the Metronome Room at the Wardman Park and heard the voice of what they thought was Vaughn Monroe. Needless to say, the voice is not that of Vaughn but of one Jack Edwards, a recent arrival there.

Jack is a native of Greensboro, N. C., and attended Duke University. Instead of studying law or some such profession and then jumping into music later on, Jack studied music there. Both voice and trumpet. Jack played and sang with Johnny Long's orchestra from 1935 until 1940. In 1941 he traveled to Boston and the New England Conservatory of Music, for more studying. While he was in Boston he reorganized a local band up there and started out to do some bookings on his own. He's since played the Commodore and the Belmont Plaza in New York, the Park Plaza in St. Louis and the Statler and Copley Plaza hotels in Boston. Sometime in between all those hotel dates he squeezed a few years into the Army and managed to cut eight records before the Petrillo ban went on.

His career may not stop with playing the night spots and hotels, because Jack not only is a nice personality but he's good looking too.

Now all of this pretty general stuff for band leaders and you've probably read it several times, but their life really isn't as dull as all that. For instance, one time when Jack and the spouse were hurrying through Georgia on their way to a band date the law reached out and lowered the boom on them. They were hauled 15 or 20 miles to the town of Thomasville and put before the judge. While they were waiting to be tried the judge suggested they flip for cokes, since it was a warm day. Jack, thinking that if he played along the fine might not be so stiff, agreed. They all flipped and Jack was not one of the losers. After the judge had heard the tale of woe, he fined Jack and gave him a receipt for his money. On the receipt was 10 cents for two cokes. That's what what keeps band leaders from growing old.

Another likable thing about the Edwards aggregation is the fact that they steer away from the so-called 'Society Tempo'. The rhythm is smooth and very danceable. The orchestra should go over with the younger set for that reason. The older set, unless they've reached the Lombardo stage, should get a kick out of them, too.

RAY BRUEN, who, left the Sheraton Hotel some weeks back, has been replaced by James Patterson, who's just up from the Sheraton place in Daytona Beach, Fla. Patterson has been with the chain since 1931 and is also president of the Hotel Executives Association in New York.

The Shoreham Terrace has an amusing act in the Mignon Brothers this week. They're three diminutive men dressed as French sailors who go through a slapstick tumbling and burlesque routine that got plenty of laughs from the audience. They're a welcome relief from the run of the mill tumblers.

Bull Moose Jackson will be at the Bali for three more nights.

Chesapeake Beach park will not be having Carmen Cavallero tomorrow night. Instead it will be the semifinals for the Miss Nation's Capital contest. There's sure to be a bevy of beauties trying for the title and the trip to Atlantic City.

Royalty Sees Millionaire Earl Married

London, July 22 (U.P.).—The Earl of Derby, Britain's wealthiest young peer, was married today in a colorful Westminster Abbey ceremony to 28-year-old Lady Isabel Milles-Lade, described by her attorney last year as "personally penniless."

The wedding was one of the biggest social events in Britain this year. The royal family was among the 1500 guests who witnessed the ceremony.

[The Associated Press said the earl brought 400 farmer folk to London to see the ceremony. The earl's estates include about 200 farms in Lancashire.

[He provided special buses and basket lunches, and greeted everyone at a reception. Farmer Andrew Newsholme observed:

["It came at a convenient time, between the hay and the wheat."]

The 30-year-old earl, who has inherited 13 million dollars—with more to come—and the tall, beautiful sister of the Earl of Sondes became engaged in June. They had known each other for a number of years. Both are friends of the royal princesses.

He served as a captain in the Grenadier Guards in World War II and won the military cross at Anzio beachhead.

Lady Isabel was fined more than 2000 pounds sterling ($8000) in July, 1947, for failing to declare a new mink coat on her return from the United States. Her attorney said she was a "personally penniless and silly girl."

The bridegroom, Edward John Stanley, eighteenth Earl of Derby, succeeded to the 500-year-old title on the death of his grandfather last February. The old earl was a famous racing enthusiast. The new earl has his family's love of sports.

When he was 19, he inherited eight million dollars upon his father's death. He got five million dollars when his grandfather died and will inherit the rest of the estate when its value is established.

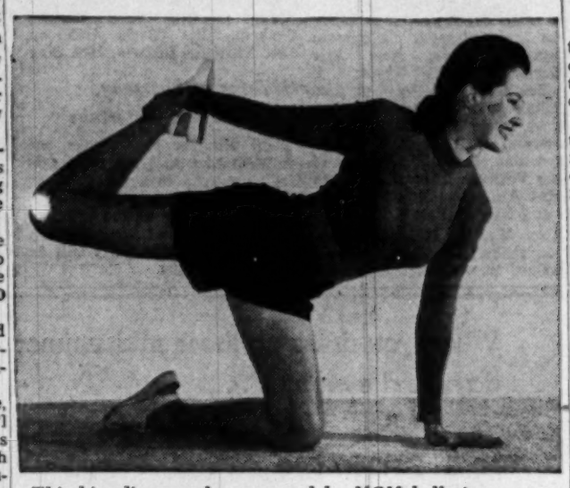
He also inherited Knowsley Hall, near Liverpool, one of the largest estates in Britain. It has a staff of more than 500 persons, and the annual poerating cost before the war was $160,000.

Lady Isabel wore a cream satin wedding gown with a tight bodice and full skirt. The gown was embroidered heavily with pearls and diamonds and had a long train. She had six bridesmaids, two pages and a Savoy reception.

"There couldn't be more fuss," the bride said, "if I were marrying the King of England."

Exercise to Slim Hipline

Fashion Bans Padding—Normal Lines Return



This hip slimmer, demonstrated by MGM ballerina-actress Cyd Charisse, is not for softies! Ida Jean Kain gives a less strenuous version of this exercise below

By Ida Jean Kain

FASHION has swung back to normal . . . hip padding is definitely out. This style reversal proves again that hindsight is better than foresight—or does it? Well, anyway, it was always an open secret as to whether the padding was bustle or muscle, especially on the girls with hefty hips. The fashion did nothing to minimize their figure problem. So although roundness of the hipline continues, all extra padding has been removed. Now to remove the excess fat padding.

We'll start with the gluteus maximus muscle, the one we sit on. What would happen if we lost the use of this muscle? Sitting could go on as usual, for that is not active exercise, and we could walk along normally. But stair climbing or going up hills would cause extreme fatigue, and running, jumping and dancing would be exhausting. So run in place, or take the stair steps two at a time.

And that's our angle on calisthenics. The big hip muscle is not called into vigorous action until the leg is flexed at the hip to an angle of more than 45 degrees, or moved against strong resistance.

Using this science of muscle action, let's work out a few hip slimming exercises . . .

Movement: Swing right leg slightly forward to get up momentum, then slowly and forcibly swing leg back, resisting strongly with the arm and hand muscles. This puts the force of the action through the bulky hip muscle. Repeat slowly, six times, change sides and continue with the opposite leg. Later work up to 12 counts or more, but change sides after each six swings.

Position: Resting on hands and knees.

Movement: Bring right knee forward, then straighten the right leg, bringing it back and up, raising the leg directly backward so the pull will be smack through the big hip muscle. Flex knee again and repeat six times; then perform with the left leg.

To make this exercise more rugged, grasp the right ankle with right hand, pull the leg back and up to a right angle, parallel with the floor. Again raise the leg directly backward to center the action. Four times . . . that streamliner is not for softies.

Forcing Food On Child Makes Fussy Eaters

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Overzealous mothers may cause their children to become fussy eaters by attaching undue importance to making certain the children eat everything placed before them.

"A well child has a good appetite, but may become a fussy eater if his mother forces food, makes eating a struggle, makes him think meals unpleasant," an article declares in the August issue of Good Housekeeping magazine.

"A mother may think her child will lose weight or become weak and sick, so she considers it her duty to make him eat, whether or not he wants food. Perhaps, forgetting the child's welfare, she merely wants him to be as plump as some friend's child."

"A healthy baby will let you know when he's hungry. Feed him only when he wants food; don't force him to eat. You can give him the right start toward good food habits."

Nature is the best regulator of how much nourishment a child needs, according to the article, which warns against forcing food on a child.

"Respect his right to determine how much he needs," the article states. "Nature regulates this. Fruit, fruit juices and plenty of water between meals should be available. But don't offer food until the next meal, and then give it casually and without urging. Small quantities and second helpings, if asked for, may be better than a plateful. Remember that your emotion makes the impression on the child. He will forget from one meal to the next unless you call his attention to his failure to eat or stress his eating. Never bribe, urge, or force. If you can't control your anxiety, the meals should be served by someone else."

In an Emergency

If the fountain pen runs dry and you have no opportunity to refill it, half fill it with water. There are usually enough dried crystals in the pen barrel to make good enough ink for an emergency.

Choose a Variety of Summer Salads

Beet cups make an attractive addition to a summer salad plate. To prepare them, cut a slice from the bottom of each beet so it will stand straight. Then scoop out center from the top to make a hollow. Fill hollow with finely diced celery mixed with cooked green peas, salad dressing and seasonings.

Marinate cooked fresh asparagus stalks in a snappy French dressing, place on a lettuce leaf, band with a strip of red pimento and serve.

Sliced pimento—stuffed olives are a delicious addition to cole slaw; moisten with a creamy dressing.

To make a tomato rose for a salad remove the skin and core, cut upper half in eights and separate. Fill center with hard-cooked egg salad and garnish with mayonnaise and finely chopped green pepper or parsley.

The small leaves and stalks of celery are good used for garnishes for salads. The large leaves are excellent for flavoring soups.

Dry salad greens, after they have been washed, by placing them between two towels and shaking gently.

Mrs. Maton Entertains Seton Hill Alumnae

Members of the Washington Chapter of the Seton Hill College Alumnae Association were entertained Sunday afternoon at a tea, given by Mrs. Joseph Maton in the garden of her Chevy Chase home.

The event was highlighted by the presence of two members of the college faculty who are spending the summer in Washington. Sister Maurice McManama spoke informally on happenings at Seton Hill during the past year. Sister Maurice is head of the psychology department of Seton Hill and is teaching for the summer at Catholic University.

Baruch Returning From Europe

NEW YORK.—In Sardi's one night Senator Claude Pepper of Florida heard some Harvard men discussing the college with great pride. Pepper then told of his friend Dr. George H. Denny, who was president of Washington and Lee and of the University of Alabama. At an alumni dinner one night, Dr. Denny called upon a minister to deliver the invocation. The minister was an alumnus of the college, and he recited this prayer to start the series of alumni speeches: "If it be possible, oh Lord, please justify our opinion of ourselves."

Bernard Baruch, who was scheduled to stay in Europe until August 19, has cut short his trip and is rushing back to New York . . . General Wedemeyer is in Europe making a survey of the contributions which can be made by the European countries in the event of another war . . . Israel's Olympic soccer team will come to America this fall to play exhibition games in Philadelphia, New York, Brooklyn, Boston and Chicago. One of the games will be played on October 1, the date when the new state will be dedicated.

Now that Actors Equity settled its differences with the producers, the theater press agents and managers' union started negotiations with the League of New York Theaters. They soon will select an arbitrator to decide on the merits of the demands . . . Randolph Churchill returns to Europe at the end of the week. He covered both the Republican and Democratic conventions for the British newspapers. "I had an easy time of it," says Churchill. "I had a 2 a. m. deadline, which was perfect—because it gave me time to read the analyses of the top political commentators, before I'd start writing."

When UNESCO's International Theater Congress met in Prague, J. B. Priestley, head of the British delegation, insisted that the congress use only two languages, English and French. The Czech delegate demanded that a third language — Slav — be included. Priestley objected because it would complicate the sessions. He finally approved a suggestion to use English and French temporarily, and have the next Theater Congress decide whether Slav should be included. "Our adoption of a Slav language for this session won't complicate the meetings," the Czech insisted. "Do I understand that Mr. Priestley is not opposed to the ultimate acceptance of a Slav language for this conference?" . . . "Ah, no," Priestley shouted . . . . The Czech beamed contentedly. Three days later Priestley discovered that "ano," in Czech, means "yes."

Irving Berlin, whose last political campaign song was for Al Smith, wrote an Eisenhower song when he thought the general would accept a nomination. One of the lines of the song was "With so many treasures in our back yard, It's good to have a soldier standing guard" . . . George Jessel, who promised Darryl Zanuck that he would cut down his after-dinner speech-making jobs, is making a speech in Cannes Tuesday night and then five days and 6000 miles later he's making a speech in San Diego . . .

Swifty Morgan and Joe Benjamin, the two soldiers of fortune, dined together at the Versailles last night. They first met in England, where Benjamin was making a tour with Jack Dempsey and sat in a box next to the King, at the race track. Benjamin got a tip, and started to bet £250 on it. A man near him shouted: "Do business with me—the only American bookmaker on the English turf." Benjamin gave him the money. Then he was told that the "bookie" was Swifty Morgan, who had disappeared. He next saw Swifty in the lobby of the Savoy, and demanded his money back. "I never saw you in my life," Swifty replied. "If you annoy me, I'll call a Bobbie." And he called, "Oh, Bobbie, Bobbie," and Benjamin, fearing bad publicity for Dempsey, fled . . . "You tried to hustle me into an argument with a uniformed officer," Benjamin reminded him last night . . . "I did not," Morgan confessed. "The man in uniform was not a copper. He was the doorman. His name is Bobbie."

The Family Scrapbok

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Wean Gradually

It has been common in some families for the baby to be left on the bottle or the breast until a certain time and then abruptly be forced to drink from a cup and to eat solid foods. Modern pediatricians usually start to give babies some solid foods in the early months of life. Though mothers are often encouraged to nurse their children until they are 6 to 9 months old, there also will have been many experiences with solid foods, with taking water or milk from a spoon and from a glass.

This mixed method of feeding the infant and the young child means that there never need be a period of struggle, emotional upset and general unpleasantness. It is probably true that some of the later eating problems have their beginnings at the time of the old-fashioned type of weaning—the sudden change in drinking from bottle or breast.

If, when one attempts to have the baby drink from a glass, there is a struggle, the best thing to do is to refrain from efforts to get him to accept the new way and try again another day. The password is: "Easy does it."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Red 'Slips' Heighten Berlin Crisis

By Drew Pearson

Most important factor influencing the dynamite-laden Berlin situation is that throughout most of Europe the Russians are losing out.

This is what makes Berlin even more dangerous—for the Russians cannot afford to back down. To do so would be a mortal blow to their prestige in all of Europe. It would mean even more cracks in the Iron Curtain.

Dimitrov

A nation that is winning can afford to be magnanimous, but a nation that is losing can't. And government leaders who are desperate are dangerous.

In addition to the Tito revolt, here are some of the signs indicating that the Soviet's alleged far-flung empire is beginning to crack up:

Bulgaria — Georgi Dimitrov, Communist leader of Bulgaria, is so afraid the long arm of Moscow will reach him that he doesn't go outside his home without an armed guard.

Poland — Russian attempts to communize the farms are stirring up increasing opposition from Polish peasants.

Czechoslovakia—Klement Gottwald, the Communist leader who deposed President Benes, has now been eased to the sidelines. Moscow has put Rudolf Slanski, secretary of the Communist Party, in his place. Several top Czech leaders have deserted to United States protection, including Gen. Antonin B. Hasal, Czech deputy chief of staff.

Italy — Moscow wasn't pleased with Communist Leader Togliatti even before he was shot. Some Intelligence observers believe Togliatti was shot by a Moscow agent: first to get rid of him; second, to arouse turmoil in Italy.

With these cracks beginning to appear in the Iron Curtain, Kremlin prestige in Berlin is vitally at stake. The 14 men who govern Russia need a psychological victory to keep their straying disciples in line. When a government's prestige is at stake anything can happen.

Why Ike Withdrew

A battle-toughened soldier like General Eisenhower doesn't often cry. But when, in George Allen's presence, he wrote his historic statement finally taking himself out of the presidential race, real tears swelled in Eisenhower's eyes.

The complete story is not yet known.

The fact that some of the big political bosses, such as former Mayor Hague of Jersey City, hopped on the Eisenhower bandwagon unquestionably had its effect.

It is also a known fact that some of Ike's own best military friends pleaded with him not to get into politics. As one of his closest battle comrades told Eisenhower: "Every time one of us goes up to Congress for an appropriation from now on, they'll be wondering whether the money they vote us will go to building up another candidate for President."

In addition, the White House inner circle hints that there was another personal factor, very close to General Eisenhower, which President Truman, cocksure and confident, seemed to know all about.

Ike's Personal Views

Eisenhower, himself talked with high-up Democrats as if he could be drafted. Most significant of these conversations was with William Ritchie, Democratic State chairman of Nebraska, who took careful notes on his talk with the general, and here is exactly what he said:

"The greatest issue before the American people and the Nation is world leadership for democratic institutions. If America does not back firmly, sincerely, and efficiently the Vandenberg-Marshall plan, then the world outside of America will go to dictatorship, with the result that American prosperity, the American way of living and American liberties will be gravely endangered.

"I meant what I said," General Eisenhower continued, "when I said that I didn't want to be a candidate. But I will say this: If the necessity arises, I will answer any draft to serve the American people along the lines that I have just discussed—even if it requires me to carry a gun in the rear ranks.

"I will not let down the boys who fought under me in Europe and Africa and who made me what I am today. I will never let down the boys who gave their lives for democratic institutions.

"If Vandenberg should be nominated," Eisenhower told Ritchie, "I know he will interpret the Republican platform in such a way that America will be safe."

After some further conversation Eisenhower concluded:

"If I should be President, I want you to understand this: I will be an American President, not a Republican or Democrat. And I would make appointments on the basis of what a man stands for and his qualifications for the job. I would pay no attention whatsoever to party labels. I wouldn't consider taking any office on any other basis and I hope the occasion will not call for me to change my first statement. I have no desire to run."

The greatest fun I have each year . . . Is at the county fair . . . When farmers take a holiday . . . And all the folks are there . . . When horses, hogs and cows receive . . . Where barkers shout and lovers see . . . A dozen different moons . . . Where there are wheels and bingo games . . . On which to take a chance . . . And music for the big parade . . . Or those who want to dance . . . And whether I take home a prize . . . Or both my hands are bare . . . The greatest fun I have each year . . . Is at the county fair.
